COMMUNISM IN CENTRAL AMERICA AND THE CARIBBEAN

Robert Wesson - Editor

Central America and the Caribbean are deeply troubled areas and their peoples ready recruits for radical movements. These concerns form the background for the nine essays in this volume. Two focus on the regional influence of Cuba and the Soviet Union, the others are individual surveys of particular nations.

CONSTRAINT OF EMPIRE: The United States and Caribbean Interventions

Whitney T. Perkins

Constraint of Empire traces the policies and actions of the US towards Cuba, Nicaragua, the Dominican Republic and Haiti. The US intruded into these nations trying to implant political practices compatible with its own interests. This volume illustrates the goals, process and limitations of American imperialism.

Peasant Cooperatives and Political Change in Peru

CYNTHIA MC CLINTOCK

Sharing with other radical government leaders—such as Castro, Nyerere, Mao, and Allende—the common goal of developing a new political consciousness in their countries, General Juan Velasco Alvarado claimed to be leading Peru toward a “fully participatory social democracy” from 1968 to 1975. To determine the extent to which this was true or even feasible, Cynthia McClintock examines Peru’s experience with self-management and its effect on the political culture of the country’s peasants.

Oil and Politics in Latin America

Nationalist Movements and State Companies

GEORGE PHILIP

This book studies the transformation of the Latin American oil system from one in which the international oil companies dominated to one in which the main state oil companies are pre-eminent. It also provides a comprehensive account of how some of the more important state companies have operated.

White Servitude in Colonial America

DAVID W. GALENSON

White servitude was one of the major institutions in early colonial British America. This study of the system of indentured servitude subjects the origins of this labour force to rigorous analysis and provides a quantitative description of the demographic, social and economic characteristics of over 20,000 indentured immigrants.

Editor

Howard Temperley,
Professor of American Studies,
University of East Anglia

Sponsored by the British Association for American Studies

The Journal of American Studies publishes work by scholars of various nationalities on American literature, history, institutions, politics, economics, geography and related subjects. Articles which cross the conventional borders between academic disciplines are particularly welcome, as are comparative studies of American and other cultures. It also publishes review essays, book reviews and, biennially, a list of doctoral theses on American topics in progress and completed at British universities.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Journal of Latin American Studies is published twice a year under the academic sponsorship of the Centres or Institutes of Latin American Studies at the Universities of Cambridge, Essex, Glasgow, Liverpool, London and Oxford.

The scope of the journal is the study of Latin America from the standpoint of the social sciences, including anthropology, archaeology, economics, geography, history, international relations, politics, sociology, etc., though it is not concerned with linguistic or literary studies.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, but welcomes free discussion of such issues in the Latin American context, on the understanding that all responsibility for opinions expressed rests exclusively with the author concerned and not with either the journal or its editors.

Contributions are invited from all parts of the world. Articles should generally not be more than 8,000 words long, and two copies, typed with double-spacing, should be submitted. Diagrams and maps may be included by arrangement with the editors. The journal is published in English, but articles written in other languages may be considered, and arrangements made as required for translation into English. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for use in correcting proofs.

All contributions and editorial correspondence should be addressed to Journal of Latin American Studies, Institute of Latin American Studies, 31 Tavistock Square, London, WC1H 9HA.

Each contributor will receive, free of charge, 25 offprints of their article and a copy of the issue of the journal in which it appears.
