“The Art and Science of Negotiation*
is one of the most important books ever published on the subject.
I learned more about negotiation from reading this book than I have from reading everything else on the topic.”

— Lawrence Susskind,
Massachusetts Institute of Technology

An essential tool for serious negotiators looking to improve their performance, Raiffa's book blends shrewd analysis with a touch of art.
An expert look at the subject.

Drawn from experiences over 25 years as a professor at Harvard Business School and Kennedy School of Government, and as founder and first director of the International Institute of Applied Systems Analysis, this sophisticated new book surpasses other negotiation books, stressing analysis as well as psychology.

Achieve ethical results.

Emphasizing the need for joint problem solving to achieve results benefiting all parties, Raiffa offers a rational, creative approach to settling disputes.

“Howard Raiffa's clear exposition, keen analysis, and wealth of illustration go far toward providing a feeling for the art and an understanding of the science of negotiation. His insights into the ethical dilemmas confronted by the responsible negotiator are especially valuable.”

— Elliot L. Richardson
