

New year: new changes for PDJ

With the New Year, PDJ announces some changes to the journal. The first is our online only publication. This is in line with many other publications, reduces our carbon footprint, and speeds up publication.

Additionally, we have updated the Author Notes. Please find the updated Author Notes here: <https://www.icdd.com/pdj-authors-notes/>. Please note: the Chicago Manual of Style (<https://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/home.html>) format will now be used for listing references in text and in the reference list. This was chosen in hopes that it would allow authors to use their preferred reference citation tool, while still being able to easily use/convert references they commonly use.

If you have any questions regarding our newest changes, please contact us at pdj@icdd.com.

We thank our readers and authors and hope you all have a safe and successful year ahead.

Nicole Ernst Boris
Managing Editor, Powder Diffraction
ICDD, Newtown Square, Pennsylvania, USA
pdj@icdd.com