

People in Political Science

Activities

Naseer Aruri, professor of political science at Southeastern Massachusetts University, has been elected to a two-year term to the Board of Amnesty International, U.S.A.

Philip J. Briggs, University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff, was an Invited Scholar in March 1985 at Hofstra University's Presidential Conference, co-chaired a session on Civil-Military Relations, and has continued to lecture as a Commonwealth Speaker for the Pennsylvania Humanities Council.

David Fleischer, professor of political science and department head, University of Brasilia, was appointed as political advisor to Senator Eneas Faria (PMDB-Parana) in the Brazilian Federal Senate, as part of the 1986 reelection campaign.

George Romoser, University of New Hampshire, was invited by Greek radio and television in August 1985 for a study visit, meeting with Greek social scientists and political leaders.

Marie Rosenberg-Dishman, Eastern Washington University, has been installed as co-chair of the Section for Women in Public Administration of the American Society for Public Administration.

Robert L. Savage, professor of political science, University of Arkansas-Fayetteville, has been elected vice chair of the International Communication Association's Division 6 (Political Communication). His two-year term will begin at the close of the Association's annual convention in May 1986. As vice chair, he will be primarily responsible for planning and organizing the program activities for Political Communication at the 1987 and 1988 conventions of ICA. Following the 1988 convention, Savage will succeed to chair of the division for another two-year term.

Sheldon Simon, director of the Center for Asian Studies at Arizona State University, presented a paper entitled "Soviet Policy Toward Southeast Asia: Emphasizing the Military" at a conference on the future of Southeast Asia at the Rockefeller villa in Bellagio, Italy, in December 1985.

Zoltan Tar, New School for Social Research, participated in the Symposium Internacional: Gyorgy Lukacs y Su Epoca in Mexico in November and was a member of the organizing committee.

Howard J. Wiarda of the American Enterprise Institute in Washington, D.C. and University of Massachusetts has been asked to serve as U.S. representative to and on the Advisory Board of the Institute for the Integration of Latin America. The Institute, a subsidiary of the Inter-American Development Bank, was established in 1965 to further the cause of Latin American economic integration. Wiarda will serve as an adviser to the president of the Bank on integration issues.

Administrative Appointments

Joel D. Barkan has been elected to chair the department of political science, University of Iowa, Iowa City, for a three-year term effective August 1985.

Peter Bergerson has been appointed acting chairperson of the department of political science at Southeast Missouri State University.

Earl Black has been appointed interim chairman of the department of government and international studies at the University of South Carolina.

David C. Bruce, Director of International Business Council, Atlanta, GA; formerly faculty member at Monterey Institute of International Studies.

John J. Carroll, associate professor of political science, Southeastern Massachusetts University, has been elected chairperson for a four-year term.

Richard J. Collings has been appointed academic associate to the provost at Southeast Missouri State University. He was formerly chairperson of the department of political science at Southeast Missouri.

Lawrence Eagleburger, former Undersecretary of State for Political Affairs, has been appointed distinguished visiting professor and chairman of the international advisory board of the Byrnes International Center at the University of South Carolina. He is also president of Kissinger and Associates.

David Fleischer was elected to a two-year term as chairperson of the department of political science and international relations at the University of Brasilia as of spring 1985.

Ruth S. Jones, professor, has been appointed chairperson of the department of political science at Arizona State University for a term of four years.

Charles W. Kegley, former chairman of the department of government and international studies, has been appointed chairman of the University Council of the Byrnes International Center at the University of South Carolina.

Bruce B. Mason, professor, Arizona State University, has been elected president of the faculty senate for a one-year term.

Dick Merriman, formerly instructor of political science at Berea College in Berea, Kentucky, is now the director of the Jefferson Foundation in Washington, D.C. The foundation is a nonprofit, non-advocacy educational organization that studies and organizes public forums for discussion of constitutional issues relating to the structure and performance of American national government.

Peter Nixdorff, professor of political science, who has previously served as chairman of the department of political science and dean of the school of social sciences and history, has been elected vice president of the University of Darmstadt for a term beginning December 1985.

John Stookey, associate professor, has been appointed director of graduate studies at the department of political science at Arizona State University.

Geoffrey R. Weller has been appointed vice-president (academic) at Lakehead University, Thunder Bay, Ontario, Canada.

Nils Hartley Wessel, Foreign Policy Research Institute, has been appointed director of Office of Research, U.S. Information Agency.

New Appointments

Ibrahim Abu-Lughod, professor of political science, Northwestern University;

Nils Hartley Wessel has been appointed director of Office of Research, U.S. Information Agency.

People in Political Science

formerly associate director of the Program of African Studies, Northwestern University.

Robert Abelson, joint appointment in psychology and political science, Yale University.

Jonathan D. Casper, professor of political science, Northwestern University; formerly at University of Illinois and Stanford.

Joyotpaul Chaudhuri, formerly head of political science at New Mexico State, is professor of political science and associate dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at Arizona State University.

Lawrence J. Connin, assistant professor of political science, University of Toledo.

Carlene J. Edie, assistant professor of political science and Afro-American studies, Northwestern University; Ph.D., University of California, Los Angeles.

Tom Konda, assistant professor of political science, SUNY, Plattsburgh; formerly of the University of New Mexico.

Rich Melberth, assistant professor of political science, SUNY, Plattsburgh; formerly of the University of Vermont Law School.

John P. Pelissero, assistant professor, department of political science, Loyola University of Chicago; formerly of Texas A&M University.

David Plotke, assistant professor, political science, Yale University.

Jong Ra, adjunct professor, department of political science, Virginia Tech; formerly visiting professor, Virginia Tech.

Stephen Skowronek, professor of political science, Yale University; formerly of University of California, Los Angeles.

Robert Slagter, assistant professor, department of political science, Birmingham Southern College; formerly of Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Dennis L. Soden, assistant professor, department of political science, Appalachian State University.

John D. Stephens, associate professor of political science, Northwestern University; formerly at Brown University.

Laura Woliver, ABD, University of Wisconsin, has been appointed instructor at the University of South Carolina.

Promotions

Sheikh R. Ali has been promoted to professor of political science at North Carolina Central University.

Q. Whitfield Ayres, University of South Carolina, has been promoted to associate professor with tenure. In addition, he has been selected by the APSA to serve as a Congressional Fellow for 1985-86.

Ann O'M. Bowman, University of South Carolina, has been promoted to associate professor with tenure.

James Lewis Canfield, professor, University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point.

Dale Christophersen, professor, Sul Ross State University.

Michael Magglio, University of South Carolina, has been promoted to associate professor.

Gary Mucciaroni, associate professor, Brown University.

Marie Rosenberg-Dishman, professor, graduate program in public administration, Eastern Washington University.

Steven Rosenstone, professor and director of graduate studies, political science department, Yale University.

Harvey Schantz, associate professor, SUNY, Plattsburgh.

Rogers Smith, associate professor of political science, Yale University.

Clifford J. Wirth, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of New Hampshire.

Visiting and Temporary Appointments

Donald G. Baker, Long Island University, Southampton Campus, is spending the 1985-86 academic year on sabbatical leave pursuing research on race and ethnic conflict as a senior associate member at St. Antony's College, Oxford University, and as a visiting fellow at Goldsmith's College, University of London.

Deborah Gerner, visiting assistant professor of political science for 1985-86, Northwestern University (from Hamilton College, Clinton, NY).

Peter Haas, visiting assistant professor of political science, Yale University.

Chun-tu Hsueh, University of Maryland, was appointed visiting fellow at the Australian National University for early 1985, visiting professor of history at the University of Hong Kong for the Trinity Term, and research associate at the Center for Chinese Studies, University of California at Berkeley, for 1985-86.

Shanto Iyengar, visiting associate professor of political science, Yale University.

Robert Kaufman, visiting professor of political science, Yale University.

Carol Leach is a visiting instructor of political science at Southeast Missouri State University from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Ronald Libby, visiting associate professor of political science for 1985-86, Northwestern University (from the University of the West Indies).

Michael Nicholson, visiting professor of political science, Yale University; from University of Manchester.

Austin Ranney, visiting professor of political science, Yale University.

Maurice M. Roumani is visiting professor at George Washington University, Washington, D.C., for the years 1984-86. During last year he was also visiting fellow at the Center for International Development and Conflict Management at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Edward J. Sidlow, visiting assistant professor of political science for 1985-86, Northwestern University (from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio).

Jonathan Still, visiting lecturer in political science, Yale University.

Evert Vedung, associate professor of political science, Uppsala University, was appointed a visiting professor at the Graduate Institute of Peace Studies, Kyung Hee University, Seoul, during November and December 1985.

Mark E. Warren, visiting assistant professor of political science for 1985-86, Northwestern University (from University of Texas, San Antonio).

Jerzy Wiatr, professor of political science, University of Warsaw, spent fall semester 1985 as visiting professor of political science, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Resignation

Norman J. Ornstein, department of politics, The Catholic University of America.

Retirements

Harold Guetzkow was appointed to emeritus status, Northwestern University, June 1985.

Frank M. Lewis, professor emeritus of political science, University of Toledo, retired in Spring 1985.

Award Recipients

APSA Annual Meeting Travel Grant Awards

The following foreign graduate students studying political science in the U.S. were awarded travel grants to attend the 1985 Annual Meeting of the APSA in New Orleans. The funds were provided by the Asia Foundation and the U.S. Information Agency (via the Institute for International Education).

Asia Foundation Grant Recipients

Asma Barlas, Pakistan; Denver University

Chan-Rai Cho, Korea; University of Cincinnati

Yogesh Grover, India; University of Missouri