

OTHER ACTIVITIES

The Journal Fund, 200 West 7th Street, Plainfield, New Jersey, has included two articles published in this REVIEW among its Silver Pen Awards for 1955-59 to authors and editors of learned publications. The awards make "a modest stand on behalf of the English language in learned publication. [They] are little concerned with the hypotheses and viewpoints of scholars, the quality of their research or the importance of their subjects. Our concern here is writing: we like to see scholars express themselves clearly and . . . even with style; we encourage authorities to communicate their work to readers, not simply to make it available for inspection." The articles cited from this REVIEW are "Conservatism as an Ideology," by Samuel P. Huntington, in the July 1957 issue, and "Senate Rules and the Civil Rights Bill," by Howard E. Shuman, in the December 1957 issue.

The Foreign Policy Clearing House, 300 Independence Avenue, S.E., Washington 3, D. C., with the aid of a grant from the Institute for International Order, has prepared and published, in two parts, summaries of the principal findings and recommendations of the 13 foreign policy studies recently completed for the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations. Part I takes the reports in sequence; Part II analyses them topically. Copies are available at a nominal charge.

Long Island University in Brooklyn, New York, established a new department of political science in September, 1960. Edward W. Mill was appointed professor of political science and chairman of the department. Both undergraduate and graduate work are now offered by the new department. The graduate program is centered around two programs, one in international relations and diplomacy, and the other in public administration.

The Florida Interim Legislative Committee on Taxation and Finance has awarded Florida State University a grant to make a study of property taxation in Florida. Members of the department of government, the institute of governmental research and service and the department of economics are conducting the study. Juanita Gibson, associate professor of government is director of the project.

The American Council of Learned Societies lists three political scientists, William N. Chambers of Washington State University, Cariey B. Joynt of Lehigh and Sidney Warren of California Western University, among the 48 scholars in a national competition who received grant awards in June for assistance in research in the humanities and social sciences.

The Social Science Research Council's annual announcement describing fellowships and grants to be awarded in 1960-61 was ready for distribution in early September. It lists the following programs which are to be continued without major changes: Research Training Fellowships, predoctoral and postdoctoral; Faculty Research Fellowships; Grants-in-Aid of Research; Fellowships in Political Theory and Legal Philosophy; Grants for research on American Governmental and Legal Processes, and on National Security Policy.

International Conference Travel Grants are offered to American social scientists for travel to certain meetings abroad, a list of which will be announced later.

Under joint sponsorship with the American Council of Learned Societies, grants are offered to mature scholars for research in the social sciences and humanities on certain foreign areas. Grants for research on Africa South of the Sahara, on Contemporary China, on Latin America, and on the Near and Middle East (including North Africa) will be administered by the SSRC, while those for Asian Studies and for Slavic and East European Studies will be administered by the ACLS.

Inquiries and requests for the detailed announcement when issued may be addressed to the SSRC at 230 Park Avenue, New York 17, New York. Applications for some categories of awards will be due not later than November 1.

The World Affairs Center Fellowship for the Study of International Organization is being offered for the fourth year to American college and university teachers in academic fields concerned with international problems. The program brings one Fellow each year to New York City for nine or twelve months of study and observation at the United Nations, in pursuit of a specific project of his own choosing. The Fellowship was established under a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation to strengthen the teaching of world affairs in the United States.

The Fellowship is open to faculty members not over 40 years of age, who hold the Ph.D. degree or its equivalent and are firmly committed to careers as teachers in the United States. Candidates from fields such as economics, history, law, political science, public administration or sociology will be welcome. Those who have had previous opportunity to acquire first-hand familiarity with international institutions will not ordinarily be considered.

The World Affairs Center was founded in 1956 by the Foreign Policy Association in cooperation with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Lucian Marquis, University of Oregon, was given the Ersted Award for distinguished teaching. The award carries a stipend of $1,000.

Nicholas A. Masters of Wayne State University has become visiting associate professor at Washington University where he will be associate research director of a study of the impact of state political decisions on the public schools, under a grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Edward McWhinney, professor of International and Comparative Law at the University of Toronto, has been awarded a Rockefeller Foundation Fellowship in Legal and Political Philosophy and will be on leave of absence during the whole of the academic year 1960-61. He will work at the Max-Planck-Institut for Public Law and International Law at Heidelberg, and at other European legal centers.

Lennox A. Mills of the University of Minnesota was on sabbatical leave during the spring and summer of 1960. He spent the time in England in the furtherance of his research and writing on the domestic and foreign politics and economics of the countries of Southeast Asia.

Donald G. Morgan will take a leave of absence from Mount Holyoke College during the fall semester, 1960-61 in order to further his project on the Responsibility of Congress for Considering Constitutional Questions. Mr. Morgan has grants from the Social Science Research Council and the American Philosophical Society.

Robert J. Morgan, associate professor of the department of political science at the University of Virginia will be on leave during 1960-62 to serve temporarily on the staff of The Resources For the Future, Inc., Washington, D. C.

Fauzi M. Najjar, assistant professor of social science and foreign studies, Michigan State University, has been given a Rockefeller Foundation grant to do research on Democratic and Non-Democratic Patterns in Arab History and Thought. Dr. Najjar will spend 1960-61 in the Middle East on a leave of absence from Michigan State University.

Peter Odegard of the University of California was visiting lecturer in the department of political science at the University of Mississippi during April.

Felix E. Oppenheim, formerly at the University of Delaware, was visiting lecturer in the department of politics at Princeton University during the spring term, 1960.

Richard L. Park, associate professor of political science, University of Michigan, taught at the 1960 summer session of the University of California, Berkeley.

Malcolm B. Parsons, professor of government at the Florida State University, received a summer research grant from the University Research Council in support of a study of "The Bloc Composition of the Florida State Senate since 1947."

Guy J. Pauker, associate professor of political science, University of California, Berkeley, will be engaged in full-time research on the military in Indonesian politics for the RAND Corporation during the 1960-61 academic year.

Roy V. Peel, chairman of the department of political science at the University of Utah, spent the winter and spring quarters as visiting professor at Michigan State University.

Edward L. Pinney of Louisiana State University will spend the summer of 1960 in Bonn, Germany under a research grant from the Louisiana State University Graduate Council.

E. Raymond Platig, associate professor of international relations and staff member of the Social Science Foundation, University of Denver, is on a twelve-months leave of absence to do research on "John Foster Dulles and the Baghdad Pact: A Case Study in Coalition Diplomacy," facilitated by a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

James W. Prothro, professor of government at Florida State University, is visiting professor of political science and visiting research professor in the institute for research in social science at the University of North Carolina, June 1960 through August, 1961.

Robert S. Rankin of Duke University will be on sabbatical leave during the academic year 1960-61. During his absence his duties as chairman of the department of political science are being exercised by Professor John H. Hallowell.

Michael D. Reagan, Williams College, will be visiting assistant professor of politics at Princeton University, 1960-61.

William O. Reichert of the University of Kentucky will serve as visiting assistant professor of political sciences at Nebraska during the year 1960-61.

At the request of the Department of State Henry Reiff of St. Lawrence University will lecture in Korea for three months in the fall of 1960.

Elston E. Roady, professor of government, has received a summer research appointment from the Florida State University Research Council to study "Money in Florida Politics: A Study of the Operation of Florida's Unique 'Who Gave It—Who Got It Law,' 1952-60."

Carl G. Rosberg, assistant professor of political science, University of California, Berkeley, will be on leave during 1960-61 for research in British East Africa on political leadership in groups.

Leo Rosten, author and editor, will be Ford Rotating Research Professor in Governmental Affairs at the University of California, Berkeley, during 1960-61.

Richard M. Scammon, director of elections research for the Governmental Affairs Institute and editor of the Institute's America Votes series, has been appointed Consultant on Voting to the Commission on Civil Rights.

Lester G. Seligman, University of Oregon is spending his sabbatical year 1960-61 as a Fulbright lecturer in American Studies at the Hebrew University.

Robert J. Steamer, associate professor of government at Louisiana State University, will be visiting associate professor at Cornell University for the summer of 1960.

James A. Storing of Colgate University served as a special consultant to the International Summer School at the University of Oslo during the course of the summer.

Richard W. Van Wagenen of the American University has become a member of the board of trustees of the Social Science Foundation of the University of Denver.

Eric Waldman, chairman, department of political science, Marquette University, was awarded a NATO Advanced Research Fellowship for the summer of 1960.

Myron Weiner, University of Chicago, has been appointed as chairman of a newly created Committee on State Politics in India under the auspices of the Committee on South Asia on the Association for Asian Studies.

Guenter Weissberg has been appointed visiting assistant professor for the fall term 1960-61 at Cornell University to replace Herbert W. Briggs, who will be on sabbatical leave next year, having received a Rockefeller grant for study of the International Law Commission in Geneva.

Richard S. Wheeler, lecturer in political science at the University of California (Berkeley), has accepted a post as visiting faculty member at Duke University.

Rene de Visme Williamson, chairman of the department of government, Louisiana State University, was visiting professor of political science at Vanderbilt University for the summer of 1960.

Raphael Zariski, University of Nebraska, has been appointed to a Fulbright lectureship for 1960-61 at the University of Florence, Italy.

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

Merritt G. Abrash, candidate for Ph.D., Columbia University, has been appointed instructor in the department of history, government and international relations, Clark University, 1960-61.

William G. Andrews has been promoted to assistant professor of government at Dartmouth.

M. Margaret Ball, professor of political science, Wellesley College, has been elected a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Samuel H. Barnes has been promoted to the rank of assistant professor at the University of Michigan.

Paul Beckett of Washington State University has been re-elected departmental chairman for another four-year term.

Gary Lee Best, of Northwestern, has been appointed instructor of political science at the University of Oregon.

David A. Bingham, research associate in the bureau of business and public research, University of Arizona, has been promoted to associate professor of public administration.

William W. Boyer, University of Pittsburgh, was awarded a State Department grant to conduct a world lecture tour from May through August, 1960. His tour included lectures before university and other groups in Taiwan, Singapore, Malaya, Burma, Ceylon, and Jordan.

John J. Bucholtz, candidate for the Ph.D. in the department of politics at Princeton University, has been appointed instructor in political science at Mount Holyoke College.

Elbert M. Byrd, Jr., has been promoted to the rank of assistant professor at the University of Maryland.

Francis P. Canavan, S.J., formerly of St.