REMAKING THE ARGENTINE ECONOMY

FELIPE DE LA BALZE

"This absorbing book is a pleasure to read, and invites us to explore one country's monumental effort to modernize and make economic and social progress in its drive to regain its rightful place within the international arena." — ENRIQUE V. IGLESIAS, President, Inter-American Development Bank

Remaking the Argentine Economy is a valuable case study of one country's attempts to re-engineer its economic viability in today's world. De la Balze examines the encouraging changes that have occurred during the last few years and identifies the key issues that Argentina must face in order to provide a solid and permanent foundation to the political and economic reforms underway.

The Journal of Women's History is the journal of record for the burgeoning field of women's history. This feminist journal, which espouses no particular ideological or methodological approach, provides the best narrative and synthetic examples of historical work on women, provides an outlet for the abundance of new research in women's history, and promotes scholarship about women in all time periods that is broadly representative of national, racial, ethnic, and sexual groupings.

In addition to insightful and trenchant articles, each issue of the Journal of Women's History includes abstracts of books and a topical bibliography of periodical literature based on a survey of over 700 periodicals.

PRAEGER

Power and Television in Latin America The Dominican Case

By Antonio V. Menéndez Alarcón

A Choice Outstanding Academic Book, 1993

Praeger Publishers. 1992. 208 pages. 0-275-94275-9. $49.95

"Overall, a pioneering work that deserves a careful reading by scholars and students alike." Choice

This volume examines the relationship between the development and functioning of television and concrete political and economic processes in the third world. Antonio Menéndez Alarcón focuses on the Dominican Republic, where television was introduced by a dictator (Trujillo) as a form of political power, and where the old dictatorial forms have permeated the newer, supposedly democratic media. The author looks at the relationship between television network organization and control and programming; the industry's long-range effects on culture and development; and the extent to which television contributes to the free marketplace of ideas.

The methodology encompasses a set of techniques, including field research in the political democracy of the Dominican Republic (in-depth interviews and non-participant observation), content analysis, and document analysis. The results of the author's study reveal that even though some dissent is tolerated, the overall message diffused in Dominican television corresponds to the basic elements and interests of a business-oriented society; hence, the widely accepted assumption of the right to hear different opinions is subverted by the commercial role of television. According to the author, television portrayals of elections constitute dramatized rituals of democracy that legitimize the myth of political equality and collective self-determination while leading citizens to apathy and political resignation. Power and Television in Latin America should be read by all students and scholars interested in critical theory of mass media, production of culture, and sociology of Latin America.

Contents: Introduction; The Power of Television; The Growth of Television and Power Elite Control; Television as a Medium of Production; The Cultural Space; Television in the Marketplace of Ideas; The News; Election Ritual and Television; Conclusion; Diversity and Pluralism; Appendices; Bibliography; Index

ANTONIO V. MENÉNDEZ ALARCÓN is Visiting Assistant Professor of Sociology at the University of Indiana, South Bend. He has taught at the Instituto Tecnológico de Santo Domingo and at the Universidad Autónoma de Santo Domingo, and has published several books in Spanish.

Trade Liberalisation and Manufacturing in Bolivia

by Rhys Jenkins

This paper examines the impact of trade liberalisation on the manufacturing sector since the mid-1980s. The theory of trade liberalisation is examined critically and before being tested against the Bolivian data. The impact of trade liberalisation has, in general, been disappointing and the author explores the reasons for this.

Slave Rebellion in Brazil

THE MUSLIM UPRISING OF 1835
IN BAHIA

João José Reis

translated by Arthur Brakel

"In the course of explaining the causes and context of the uprising, Reis provides a fascinating social history of urban life and the African community in a city that was (and is) one of the most important centers of African culture in the Americas."—Barbara Weinstein, American Historical Review

Blackness and Race Mixture

THE DYNAMICS OF RACIAL IDENTITY IN COLOMBIA

Peter Wade

"Drawing upon his personal experiences, Wade has captured the essence of blackness in Colombia. With that, he has paid special attention to conveying the complexity of race as an indicator of social status in a heterogenous population."—Winthrop R. Wright, The Americas

The Journal of Latin American Cultural Studies (TRAVESIA) publishes articles on the history and analysis of Latin American culture and on the development of theories and methods for studying the cultural practices of Latin Americans. Multi-disciplinary articles which contribute to defining this strongly emerging area of research and debate are especially welcome, the disciplines of particular relevance being anthropology, communication studies, history and literature.

Work which investigates the multiple effects of modernization is of special interest to the Journal as are articles which seek to explore the notion of cultural field. The Journal also welcomes research articles concerned with situations of cultural hybridity and with the development of methods for their analysis. The scope of articles is not limited to the nineteenth and twentieth centuries: the Journal also publishes work on the cultural history of the colonial period. There is a review section which carries authoritative review articles on the state of the art in given fields.

Articles are welcome on the whole range of cultural processes and expressions, including the arts (literature, film, visual arts, music), communication and the practices of ethnic sub-societies.

Third World Quarterly

EDITOR

Shahid Qadir,

Royal Holloway, University of London, UK

Supported by an International Editorial Board

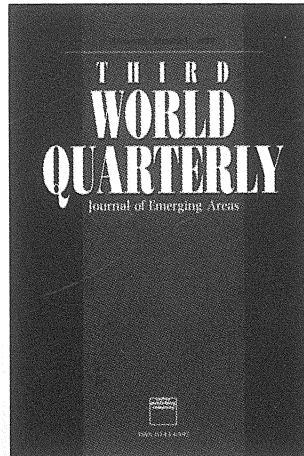

Third World Quarterly is the leading journal of scholarship and policy in the field of international studies. For almost two decades it has set the agenda on Third World affairs. As the most influential academic journal covering the emerging world, Third World Quarterly is at the forefront of analysis and commentary on fundamental issues of global concern.

Third World Quarterly provides expert and interdisciplinary insight into crucial issues before they impinge upon media attention, as well as coverage of the latest publications in its comprehensive book review section.

Third World Quarterly's original articles provide diverse perspectives on the developmental process and a candid discussion of democratic transitions, as well as identifying significant political, economic and social issues. Readable, free from esoteric jargon, informed without being abstruse, always authoritative and often provocative, Third World Quarterly covers the key North-South developments in the post-wall world.

SPECIAL ISSUES

Third World Quarterly annually commissions special issues on key concepts and processes. The 1995 Special Issue will be entitled Non-Governmental Organisations, the United Nations and Global Governance.

The United Nations Blue Books Series

...is a unique collection that covers major developments in international affairs in which the United Nations played a central and determining role.

The following books in the Series have just been released:

The United Nations and the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty

The Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty represents the cornerstone of efforts by the international community to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons while ensuring that the benefits of nuclear technology are readily available for peaceful purposes. This publication details the Treaty and brings together, for the first time, key documents relating to the nuclear non-proliferation issue. Complementing the documents are a detailed chronology and an introduction by Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, which provide an overview of the key role played by the Organization and its Member States in meeting the new and intrinsic challenges of the nuclear age.

Sales No. E.95.I.17 ISBN: 92-1-100557-4 $29.95

The United Nations and El Salvador 1990-1995

The United Nations played a central role in the Salvadorian peace process, combining peace-making, peace-keeping and, especially post-conflict peace-building. The United Nations and El Salvador, 1990-1995, is a chronicle of one of the most comprehensive operations in the history of the United Nations - the United Nations Observer Mission in El Salvador (ONUSAL). Now, for the first time, the texts of more than 100 key documents relating to this mission have been brought together in a single volume. Complementing the documents are a detailed chronology and an introduction by Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, which offer a complete account of the Organization's multi-faceted work as mediator, human rights monitor, peace-keeper and electoral observer.

Sales No. E.95.I.12 ISBN: 92-1-100522-3 $29.95

Other titles in the Series include:

- ▲ The United Nations and Apartheid, 1948-1994
- ▲ The United Nations and Cambodia, 1991-1995
- ▲ The United Nations and Mozambique, 1992-1995
