ST. CLAIR: A Nineteenth-Century Coal Town's Experience with a Disaster-Prone Industry

Anthony F. C. Wallace

New in paper! "Monumental. . . . A book of grand scale and impressive accomplishment. . . . Wallace has revised our image of 19th-century industrial development."—Roy Rosenzweig, New York Times Book Review. $12.95 paper

HANDS OF HONOR: Artisans and Their World in Dijon, 1550–1650 James R. Farr

"Farr draws upon a rich variety of archival sources which permit him to examine the beliefs and behavior of men and women who have remained invisible in most historical writings."—Barbara Diefendorf, Boston University. $34.95

FAIR SHARES: Unions, Pay, and Politics in Sweden and West Germany Peter Swenson

"Fair Shares is an excellent book which will make a significant impact on our understanding of industrial and organized class relations in Sweden and Germany, as well as on comparative theory."—Peter Lange, Duke University. $29.95

DISTANT COMPANIONS: Servants and Employers in Zambia, 1900–1985 Karen Tranberg Hansen

Hansen tells the story of the domestic servants and their employers in Zambia, emphasizing the interactive nature of relationships of domination, and focusing on the way socially constructed notions of race, gender, and class transform the servant-employee relationship. $14.95 paper, $42.50 cloth

WORKERS' HEALTH, WORKERS' DEMOCRACY: The Western Miners' Struggle, 1891–1925 Alan Derickson

The most dangerous work in North America at the turn of the century may have been extracting metal-bearing ore from mountains of hard rock. Beginning in the 1890s miners in the West worked through local unions both to prevent occupational hazards and to assure themselves of adequate health care. "A superb, thoroughly original piece of research."—Leon Fink, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. $26.95

On the Line

Essays in the History of Auto Work

Edited by Nelson Lichtenstein and Stephen Meyer III

"The essays in this collection are at the cutting edge of scholarship on the shop-floor history of the auto industry. Some are sure to provoke debate, and all add significantly to our fund of knowledge about twentieth-century labor history."

— David Brody, author of Workers in Industrial America.

"A rich analysis of work, technology, management theory and practice, and the social relations of production in a variety of settings." — James R. Barrett, author of Work and Community in the Jungle: Chicago's Packinghouse Workers, 1894-1922. Illustrated. Cloth, $32.50; paper, $12.95.

The Butte Irish

Class and Ethnicity in an American Mining Town, 1875-1925

David M. Emmons

"A stunning accomplishment. Perhaps the most richly researched and carefully analyzed study of an Irish-American working-class community that I have ever read." — Kerby A. Miller, author of Emigrants and Exiles.

"Sets a new standard of scholarship for studies of working-class communities." — Jay P. Dolan, director of the Cushwa Center for the Study of American Catholicism. Illustrated. Cloth, $25.95.

New Paperbacks

Barons of Labor

The San Francisco Building Trades and Union Power in the Progressive Era

Michael Kazin

"Kazin's book is about far more than the construction industry: it also illuminates the social and political history of San Francisco. . . . Gracefully written and adorned with evocative portraits of local political and labor leaders, Barons of Labor is absorbing reading as well as a fine piece of history." — The Nation. Illustrated. Paper, $10.95; also in cloth, $24.95.

Black Labor in Richmond, 1865-1890

Peter J. Rachleff

"The best full-length treatment we have of black labor in a postbellum southern city. . . . The book is about much more than 'black labor' in Richmond; it is about social change, family networks, community institutions, and popular politics as well." — International Labor and Working Class History. Available in May; paper, $10.95.

The Paddy Camps

The Irish of Lowell, 1821-61

Brian C. Mitchell

"Mitchell goes well beyond describing ordinary community relations in this notable book. He presents a detailed portrait of both communities, describing the social organization of each, the employment patterns, the relationship between the communities and the various churches, and the relationships within each community as well. This is an in-depth study and should be welcomed by all those who have an interest in Irish-American history."

— Irish Echo. Cloth, $24.95.

German Workers in Chicago

A Documentary History of Working-Class Culture
from 1850 to World War I

Edited by Hartmut Keil and John B. Jentz

"With this mass of original documents, Keil and Jentz have conveyed the lost world of Chicago's German working class. Their work will advance ethnic and labor historical scholarship: a model for other such studies." — Milton Cantor, Library Journal. Illustrated. Cloth, $29.95.

Bloomington's C & A Shops

Our Lives Remembered

Edited by Michael G. Matejka and Greg Koos

"A number of vivid recollections provide illuminating sketches into the work and community life of certain kinds of shopmen." — Frederick C. Gamst, Railroad History. Distributed for the McLean County Historical Society. Illustrated. Paper, $11.95.

City of Women

Sex and Class in New York, 1789-1860

Christine Stansell

"A colorful and vivid account of the lives of New York's working women and the challenges they posed to the middle class from 1789 until the eve of the Civil War. . . . This is an immensely important book for historians." — Martha Saxton, New York Times Book Review. Paper, $9.95.

The Jungle

Upton Sinclair

With an introduction and notes by James R. Barrett

In this new fully annotated and illustrated edition, James Barrett places Upton Sinclair and The Jungle in historical context and assesses Sinclair's classic novel as a document of social history. Illustrated. Paper, $9.95; also in cloth, $32.50.

Plain Folk in the New South

Social Change and Cultural Persistence, 1880–1915

I. A. NEWBY

I. A. Newby thoughtfully examines an often misunderstood group—the impoverished white working class of the turn-of-the-century South. He discusses their migration to towns and cities, their adjustment to mill work, paternalism, social life, morality, health, education, racism, unionization, and poverty.

Telling Memories Among Southern Women

Domestic Workers and Their Employers in the Segregated South

“Susan Tucker makes a wonderful contribution to our understanding of the lives and feelings of black and white southern women. The voices that emerge from her interviews ring absolutely true, by turn loving and angry, compassionate and thoughtless, but always distinctly southern.”—Elizabeth Fox-Genovese, Emory University

THE ILLINOIS-NWSA BOOK AWARD

$ 1,000

The National Women's Studies Association and the University of Illinois Press announce the creation of the Illinois-NWSA Book Award, to be presented annually for the best book-length manuscript in women's studies. The National Women's Studies Association will present the winning author a prize of $1,000, and the University of Illinois Press will publish the winning manuscript.

Manuscripts can be on any subject in women's studies that expands our understanding of women's lives or gender systems. Interdisciplinary studies and discipline-specific studies are equally welcome. Manuscripts may be by a single author or co-authored. Anthologies, essay collections, fiction, poetry, or unrevised doctoral dissertations are not eligible.

Deadline for submission of manuscript abstracts is in January each year.

international review of social history

The journal is edited by the International Institute of Social History, Amsterdam, and appears three times a year. Since its inception in 1956 it has become the leading journal on the history of social classes and social relations, the European labour movement occupying a preponderant place.

Each issue of about 130 pages provides articles and studies by experts of international standing. As a special feature, entitled "Documents", the journal carries hitherto unpublished source materials, for which it can draw on the rich collections of the International Institute of Social History. Moreover, each issue includes a comprehensive descriptive bibliography of current literature on social history and related themes. Articles are written in English, German and French.

Recent publications are:

Working-class housing problems in Britain 1850-1914, by Richard Rodger

Strikes and power in Britain 1870-1920, by James E. Croning
