

New in cloth & paper

Managing the Environment, Managing Ourselves

A History of American Environmental Policy

Richard N.L.
Andrews

“Easily the most comprehensive history of American
environmental policy I have ever seen. It will serve as an excellent reference book for policy historians, environmental historians, and environmental policy analysts.”—Robert Paehlke 28 illus. cloth $65.00; paper $30.00

A Primer for Environmental Literacy

Frank B. Golley

Unique in its breadth and accessibility, this book presents the key concepts of environmental science and an overview of the entire field.

74 b/w illus. cloth $37.50; paper $18.00

Forests to Fight Poverty

Creating National Strategies

Edited by Ralph Schmidt, Joyce K. Berry, and John C. Gordon

Foreword by James Gustave Speth

The authors of this clear, hope-filled book explore the diverse causes of tropical deforestation and show how modern forestry techniques enable us to alleviate poverty without destroying forests.

23 illus. cloth $30.00; paper $15.00

Children's Interests/ Mothers' Rights

*The Shaping of America's Child Care
Policy*

Sonya Michel

“This book is indispensable for understanding why child care, a painful problem for millions of American parents, gets pushed again and again to the politicians' back burner. Michel's well-told history is remarkably relevant to the policy questions we face today.”—Barbara R. Bergmann 24 illus. $35.00

New in paper

Ecosystem Management

Applications for Sustainable Forest and Wildlife Resources

Edited by Mark S. Boyce and Alan Haney

“The authors of this fine book have clarified the theory and application of sustainable ecosystem management.
The book will be received well and widely.”—Tim W. Clark

130 illus. cloth $45.00; paper $19.95

Preserving Nature in the National Parks

A History

Richard West Sellars

“This fine work focuses on the National Park Service's stewardship of the nation's most spectacular natural regions. . . . Both the National Park Service and the public will profit from this book and the story it tells.”

—Robert W. Righter, Environmental History 16 illus. cloth $35.00; paper $14.95

Yale University Press

www.yale.edu/yup/
1-800-YUP-READ

A classic social history book back in print

Life, Liberty, and Property

A Story of Conflict and a Measurement of Conflicting Rights

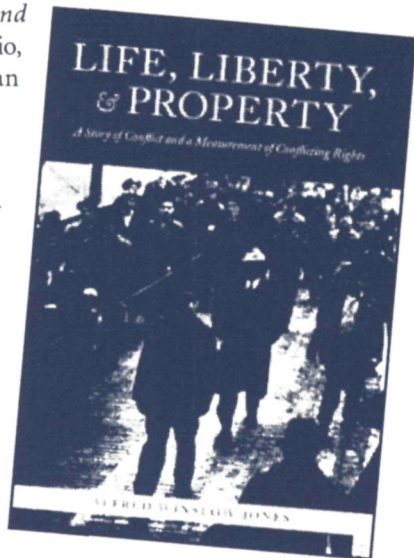

Alfred Winslow Jones

Edited by Daniel Nelson

In the fall of 1938, Alfred Winslow Jones, a Columbia University graduate student, interviewed 1,705 Akron, Ohio, residents in order to gauge attitudes toward large corporations. Life, Liberty, and Property reports the actual comments of these interviewees on a broad range of issues. Their statements provide a compelling and often colorful commentary on life in a divided and anxious midwestern city. By 1938, the worst of the Depression was over, but jobs remained uncertain. The international turmoil that would lead to World War II was beginning to be a source of concern. Most of all, the appropriate roles for government and big business in a democratic society troubled Akron residents. Jones's interviews illuminate the whole range of public issues at a critical juncture in American history. Life, Liberty, and Property is an invaluable source on Ohio, on the Midwest, and on American society.

"This is a most encouraging book. Not only does it show that the great majority of people in this country approach the basic questions of social policy in a spirit of compromise and with a willingness to reason, but it also shows that common sense is stronger than propaganda. It is a convincing testimonial to the strength of democracy among the common people."

—Peter Drucker, Saturday Review of Literature, March 15, 1941

Second edition, 231 pages, 1999

paperback $27.95

plus postage and handling

Order toll free at 877-UAPRESS (877-827-7377)

The University of Akron Press

374B Bierce Library Akron, OH 44325-1703 • www.uakron.edu/uapress/LLP.html