The Rise of Modern China

Fifth Edition

IMMANUEL C.Y. HSO

University of California, Santa Barbara

This new edition of the classic history of modern China from the seventeenth century to the present is now updated to explore the future of China after the collapse of communism in the rest of the world. In one entirely new and two revised chapters, Hsu explores these themes and furthers his analysis from the latest edition on the effects of the violent crackdown at Tiananmen Square. January 1995 976 pp.; 100 illus., 17 maps $39.95

Chinese Religion

An Anthology of Sources

Edited by DEBORAH SOMMER, Butler University

The first of its kind in well over thirty years, this text offers the student of Chinese ritual and cosmology the broadest range of primary sources from antiquity to the modern era. Readings are arranged chronologically, and cover such concepts as Taoism, Confucianism, Buddhism, and even communism. Complete with a helpful chronology of dynasties and list of possible video sources, this remarkable volume collects under one cover the most significant and influential works of China's dynamic spiritual tradition. January 1995 416 pp. paper $22.95 cloth $49.95

People's China

A Brief History

Second Edition

CRAIG DIETRICH, University of Southern Maine

Now substantially revised and updated, this balanced and lively history of the People's Republic of China offers a narrative and interpretive appraisal of this great nation since its post-World War II beginnings. Examining first the historical circumstances of the Chinese revolution and the cast of characters who seized power in 1949 after decades of national disintegration and defeat, the author then goes on to illuminate such epic events as the Great Leap Forward, the Cultural Revolution, and the post-Mao reforms. Addressing the bold economic reform of the 1980s, this new edition critically analyzes the cry for democracy which tragically led to the 1989 bloodshed in Tiananmen Square, taking full account of the confrontation's aftermath.

Religious Meanings of Rivers in Maharashtra

ANNE FELDHAUS, Arizona State University

Following recent scholarship by arguing that the earthly pursuits of wealth, beauty, long life, good health, food, love, and the birth of children are vital to an understanding of popular Hinduism, Feldhaus examines the role of these ideals in the religious meanings of rivers in Maharashtra, a large region of western India.

The Gods at Play

Līlā in South Asia

Edited by WILLIAM S. SAX

University of Canterbury, New Zealand

This is a collection of mostly unpublished essays on "līlā"—a Hindu concept meaning "divine play" that is at once a theological, dramatic, and aesthetic category. Although līlā is an important component in South Asian cultural history, it has received little scholarly attention until now, and this volume is the first to offer a comprehensive and interdisciplinary examination.

Mobilizing the Masses

Building Revolution in Henan

Odoric Y. K. Wou

"This is an absolutely splendid piece of work, a landmark study of the Chinese Revolution. It is the first study of its kind to be based substantially on internal party documents acquired as a result of research access to the People's Republic of China in the last decade. Mobilizing the Masses is a superb piece of empirical research, placed in a convincing and original analytical framework, that ushers in a new generation of scholarship on the Chinese Revolution."—Joseph W. Civil Law in Qing and Republican China

Edited by Kathryn Bernhardt and Philip C.C. Huang

The opening of local archives to Western scholars in the 1980's has provided the basis for this reexamination of civil law in Qing and Republican China. This pathbreaking volume demonstrates that, contrary to previous scholarly understanding, Qing and Republican courts dealt extensively with such civil matters as land rights, debt, marriage, and inheritance, and did so with striking consistency and in conformity with the written code. $45.00

Law and Local Society in Late Imperial China

Northern Taiwan in the Nineteenth Century

Mark A. Allee

Based on case files, this study explores the social significance of the traditional Chinese legal system, and investigates how people utilized the courts during the course of criminal and civil disputes. The author emphasizes the ways in which law shaped social and economic change and how in turn the legal code and court system were adapted to local realities. $45.00

The Rise of Confucian Ritualism in Late Imperial China

Ethics, Classics, and Lineage Discourse

Kai-wing Chow

"Wide-ranging, exhaustively documented, bold in its interpretations, and attuned simultaneously to questions of intellectual and social history—a rarity in sinological studies—this work will cause a sweeping reassessment of the eighteenth century in modern China's 'Confucian' past. The author's exciting new interpretation of textual scholarship and classical studies both challenges existing theories in modern Chinese intellectual history and adds rich support for new studies of social change at the local level in late imperial times."

Illusions of Influence

The Political Economy of United States-Philippines Relations, 1942-1960

Nick Cullather

This book uses Philippine sources released since the 1986 revolution and recently declassified U.S. records to reveal a complex structure that allowed both nations to attain their most cherished goals while sacrificing interests of lesser importance. The author rejects the myth that U.S. policy supported economic exploitation, finding instead that American business interests were docile bystanders sacrificed to U.S. strategic imperatives. $29.50

U.S. Containment Policy and the Conflict in Indochina

William J. Duiker

Retracing the steps that brought the United States into the Vietnam conflict and evaluating them in terms of conditions at the time and the information then available to policymakers, this book provides an overview of the U.S. experience in Vietnam and a discussion of whether there were feasible alternatives to the containment strategy that was pursued. $49.50

The National Economic Atlas of China

Supported by State Planning Committee, Chinese Academy of Sciences, State Statistical Bureau and National Bureau of Surveying and Mapping
Compiled and edited by the Institute of Geography, Chinese Academy of Sciences and State Planning Committee; State Economic Information Center; Institute of Statistics, State Statistical Bureau

Since 1978 China has made remarkable economic progress with the average rate of growth exceeding 9% per year. The National Economic Atlas of China is the most comprehensive and detailed picture of this achievement. It is based on the largest and most far-reaching investigations ever conducted at the national level in China including the Industrial Census of 1985 and the Third and Fourth Population Censuses of 1982 and 1990. This extensive collection of data is presented in map and text form. The 265 full-color maps and text have been divided into eleven topics: geographical and administrative background; resources; population; general economy; agriculture; industry; communications; building, urban construction, and environmental protection; commerce, foreign trade, tourism and finance; education, scientific research, culture, sports, and health; and the regional comprehensive economy of each of China's provinces and major cities. The maps illustrate over 500 socio-economic indicators at the country and city level, revealing the quantitative and qualitative aspects of China's socioeconomic growth. The text supplements and complements the maps by providing a description and analysis of each major topic, incorporating developments through 1990. This atlas offers the clearest and most comprehensive graphic picture of China ever, and makes an invaluable contribution to our understanding of the vast economic and social changes that have taken place.

Thailand's Turn

Profile of a New Dragon

Elliott F. Kulick and Dick Wilson

"There is an old Thai saying that Thailand is not for beginners. If this is true, then Thailand's Turn is the best beginners handbook."

—Gore Vidal

Thailand is the next country to watch in Asia. It is about to move into the select league of newly industrializing economies and its democratic politics are well advanced. The authors of this book subject Thailand's recent development to a searching analysis covering all the major factors in Thailand's success and the problems which face the country.

North Pakistan

Karakorum Conquered

Edited by Nigel J. R. Allan

This fascinating book provides a wealth of information on the Hindukush-Karakorum-himalaya borderlands. The place "where three empires meet"—the British, Chinese, and Russian—was historically a complex frontier of small principalities and anarchic communities, and its integration into the Pakistan state apparatus has been problematic. This material creates a rich and varied picture of life in this remarkable region of the world.

Political Economy and the Changing Global Order

Edited by Richard Stubbs and

Geoffrey R.D. Underhill

The end of the Cold War, the rapid growth of the Asia-Pacific powers, the arrival of NAFTA and the European Union, and the new GATT Accord signal an unprecedented pace of change in the global economic order. This book provides an authoritative introduction to the theory and practice of international economic relations in the post Cold War world.

The International Politics of South Asia

Vernon Marston Hewitt

This new textbook goes beyond a traditional study of South Asian politics to examine the region's connections with the wider international system. Hewitt emphasizes the historical experience and domestic politics of the region's countries and shows how these factors have shaped the foreign policy agendas of states both towards each other and towards the rest of the world.

THE CONFUCIAN TRANSFORMATION OF KOREA: A STUDY OF SOCIETY AND IDEOLOGY

MARTINA DEUCLER

Winner of the Wiam Chang Chi-yŏn
Memorial Award for Scholarship in History

In this critically acclaimed study, the stresses placed on Koryŏ society by Neo-Confucian legislation at the beginning of the Chosŏn dynasty are explored in depth. Ancestor worship, mourning, inheritance, marriage, the position of women, and the formation of descent groups are explored anthropologically along with historical examination of shifts in political and social power through the seventeenth century.

KOREA: OLD AND NEW A History

CARTER J. ECKERT, KI-BAIK LEE, YOUNG ICK,
MICHAEL ROBINSON, EDWARD W. WAGNER

The most reliable and popular history of Korea available in English. The tumultuous developments of the modern era receive the greatest coverage, but the book's balanced treatment of traditional Korea emphasizes cultural events as integrally related to the political, social, and economic evolution of this ancient nation. Six outstanding scholars give a wide-angle view of each distinct period, elucidating the past while providing new understanding of the vast changes that have taken place in Korea.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF RELIGIOUS BOUNDARIES

Culture, Identity, and Diversity in the Sikh Tradition

Harjot Oberoi

In this major reinterpretation of religion and society in India, Oberoi questions basic assumptions underlying fundamentalist claims and the construction of all social and religious identities. Through a searching examination of Sikh historical materials, he shows that modern Sikhism is a relatively recent invention which replaced an earlier pluralistic world view.

John W. Dower

More than any historian of his generation, John Dower has changed the way American scholars view relations with Japan.

Here he examines unexplored continuities and connections in Japanese politics, economics, and society at large. Dower argues that the origins of many of the institutions responsible for Japan's dominant position in today's global economy derive from the rapid military industrialization of the 1930s.

This book presents a story told by a Korean that is an alternative to the Japanese version; it is, so far, the only one of its kind written in English!

FROM DOMINOES TO DYNAMOS

THE TRANSFORMATION OF SOUTHEAST ASIA

JOHN BRESNAN, COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

"A lucid, thoughtful analysis of the new American stakes in Southeast Asia, a region where America's Cold War interests were heavily—and painfully—engaged. . . . This is the most cogent, thoroughly documented study yet on the dynamics of the new and vibrant Southeast Asia. It should be required reading for Clinton administration officials as they address post-Cold War challenges in an important region of the world."—Frederick Z. Brown, Director of Southeast Asian Studies, Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies

Black Eggs:
Poems by Kurihara Sadako
Translated with an Introduction and Notes by Richard H. Minear

Kurihara Sadako experienced the atomic bombing of Hiroshima in 1945, and she used her poetic talents to describe the blast and its aftermath. Available for the first time in English, this volume is a full translation of the complete 1983 edition of Kuroi tamago (Black Eggs), poems from before, during, and immediately after the war, along with a large selection of her later poems, which focus on inhumanity in its many guises, including the threat of nuclear war and human rights issues.

$34.95, 329 pp.

Literary Patronage in Late Medieval Japan

Edited by Steven D. Carter

Patterns of patronage and professionalism in the world of poetry are the focus of the papers in this volume, which discuss how and under what specific conditions socio-political and economic changes took place in late medieval Japan. Contributors are Steven D. Carter, H. Mack Horton, Kaneko Kinjirō, Kumakura Isao, and Tsurusaki Hirō.
