

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

MAURICE ZEITLIN, Professor of Sociology at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, is the author of Revolutionary Politics and the Cuban Working Class and editor of American Society, Inc.: Studies of the Social Structure and Political Economy of the United States. The present article is drawn from the forthcoming book Landlords and Capitalists: A Study of the Dominant Class in Chile (with R. E. Ratcliff and L. A. Ewen).

RICHARD EARL RATCLIFF is Assistant Professor of Sociology at Washington University, Saint Louis. In addition to the work on Chile, his current research focuses on the exercise of power by banks and bankers in Saint Louis, and other problems of urban political economy.

MARTIN C. NEEDLER is Professor of Political Science and Director of the Division of Inter-American Affairs at the University of New Mexico. He is author of various books and articles on Latin American politics and U.S. foreign policy, and is currently continuing his work on the political role of the military.

PATRICK ROMANELL is H.Y. Benedict Professor of Philosophy at the University of Texas, El Paso. His current research includes a comparative study of tragedy and contemporary Latin American philosophy.

ERNESTO ALDO ISUANI, Profesor Titular de Metodología de la Investigación Política, is affiliated with the Instituto de Investigaciones Políticas y Sociales of the Universidad Nacional de Cuyo.

RUBÉN ALBERTO CERVINI is Profesor Titular de Teoría Política Empírica, Universidad Nacional de Cuyo.

JOEDD PRICE, Assistant Professor of History at the University of Delaware, has focused his attention on teaching and on the development of a "visual history" of Latin America. "An Ecuadorean Views the Succession Crisis" will appear in the March 1976 issue of Civil War History.

ARTURO VALENZUELA, Assistant Professor of Political Science and Director of the Comparative Area Studies Program at Duke University, is the author of Political Brokers in Chile: Local Government in a Centralized Polity and The Breakdown of Chilean Democracy.

J. SAMUEL VALENZUELA, doctoral candidate in Sociology at Columbia University, has written articles on Chilean society and labor, published both in Chile and the United States. He is coauthor and coeditor, with Arturo Valenzuela, of Chile: Politics and Society.

DAVID GREEN is Associate Professor of History at the University of Saskatchewan. He is author of The Containment of Latin America: A History of the Myths and Realities of the Good Neighbor Policy, and has written a number of articles in the field of inter-American relations.

Correction: Volume X, number 1 listed Willard Gingerich as a graduate student at the University of Pittsburgh. Although teaching there, he is, in fact, completing his doctorate at the University of Connecticut.