

Action

SIR MALCOLM KNOX

'This study of moral experience is based on Gifford Lectures delivered in Aberdeen. Special consideration is given to the nature of action as such and the book ends with an examination of the relation between morality and religion.' Muirhead Library of Philosophy 45s.

Prelude to Aesthetics

EVA SCHAPER

'Dr Schaper has brought off some notable coups, most significant being that of giving fresh and deserved emphasis to Plato's earlier work on aesthetics, the Ion, while at the same time reducing the import which can be attached to the aforementioned section of the Republic. In addition she has provided some thought provoking material on Aristotle.' The Scotsman 40s.

Freedom and Rights

A. J. M. MILNE

'Has an original contribution to make to the study and definition of fundamental social and political values.' Church Times 60s.

Hegel's Science of Logic

Translated by ARNOLD MILLER

Fills the real need for an accurate and faithful presentation of this fundamentally important work at a time when there is a revival of interest in the work of Hegel. Muirhead Library of Philosophy 100s.

Laws of Form

G. SPENCER BROWN

The author presents a new mathematical concept for understanding the nature of logic and its application.

'In this book Mr Spencer Brown has succeeded in doing what, in mathematics, is very rare indeed. He has revealed a new calculus of great power and simplicity. I congratulate him.' BERTRAND RUSSELL 45s.

Aristotle's Ethical Theory

W. F. R. Hardie

In this book the author expounds Aristotle's main ethical doctrines. Passages quoted from Aristotle's works are translated; where Greek words are used they are transliterated and their meanings explained. The book is written for those interested in Aristotle's moral philosophy, whether they can read Greek or not. 50/- net

Aristotle's 'De Anima': Books II and III (With Certain Passages from Book I)

Translated with Introduction and Notes by D. W. Hamlyn

Aristotle's De Anima has a claim to be the first systematic treatment of issues in the philosophy of mind, and is also important for the history of psychology. This volume provides a close and accurate translation of Books II and III, and of some sections of Book I. Difficult terms are translated.

Theological Science

Based on the Hewett Lectures for 1959

Thomas F. Torrance

Professor Torrance shows that theological science necessarily differs from other sciences through the uniqueness of its object, for God cannot be treated merely as one of the constituents of the universe. This is a philosophical investigation on the highest level deserving close attention from scholars and advanced students. 84/- net

The Socratic Paradoxes and the Greek Mind

Michael J. O'Brien

The paradoxes that virtue is knowledge and that no man does wrong intentionally, which are the central doctrines of Plato's ethics, are examined and elucidated in this extensive study of Plato's moral philosophy. 57/- net

Rhetoric and Philosophy in Renaissance Humanism

The Union of Eloquence and Wisdom, Petrarch to Valla

Jerrold E. Seigel

The author examines the union of Rhetoric and philosophy, a central intellectual idea of the Renaissance. He traces the origins of the union, first formulated by Cicero in the ancient world reappearing in the Renaissance through Petrarch, to shape the attitudes of the humanists towards intellectual life and towards philosophy in particular. 80/- net (Princeton University Press)

PHILOSOPHICAL BOOKS

Philosophical Books, edited by Professor J. Kemp, was started in 1960 with the object of assisting librarians and individuals in the choice of books in the field of philosophy. Reviews in the professional journals often appear some considerable time after the publication of the book, while reviews in the general weeklies are often inadequate in length and in quality for professional purposes. The aim of Philosophical Books is to provide reviews that are both reasonably prompt and of a high professional standard. Reviews are normally between 300 and 1,000 words in length, though they are occasionally longer. The journal appears three times a year, in January, May and October. Paper covered. 32 pp. Subscription 20s. ($2.40) per year. Single copies 5s. (7s. from January 1970).
