OXFORD JOURNAL OF LEGAL STUDIES

The Oxford Journal of Legal Studies is published on behalf of the Faculty of Law in the University of Oxford. It is designed to encourage interest in all matters relating to law, with an emphasis on matters of theory and on broad issues arising from the relationship of law to other disciplines. No topic of legal interest is excluded from consideration. In addition to traditional questions of legal interest, the following are all within the purview of the journal: Comparative & International Law; The Law of the European Community; Legal History and Philosophy and Interdisciplinary material in areas of relevance to the law.

Using Human Rights Law in English Courts

Murray Hunt

Foreword by Peter Duffy

This book, written by an experienced human rights practitioner and former lecturer, shows how scope exists for using international human rights law in English courts, irrespective of the debate about "incorporation or non-incorporation." It does this by addressing directly the theoretical obstacles to using human rights law in English courts, and exposes the extent to which, in the light of recent judicial practice, these have now fallen away.

The Province of Administrative Law

Edited by Michael Taggart

Foreword by Sir Stephen Sedley

These new essays by scholars from the UK, North America, Australia and New Zealand address pressing issues in administrative law. What is its proper ambit? Where does the public/private divide lie at the margins of administrative law? How are courts reacting to the rationalisation and contractualisation of the regulatory state?
