Wallace Stevens and the Question of Belief

Metaphysician in the Dark

David R. Jarraway

In this groundbreaking study David Jarraway considers the perplexing question of belief in Wallace Steven's poetry. From Steven's early attempts to address the contradictions inherent in a substantive humanism to his ultimate transformation of the metaphysical matter of faith into a post-metaphysical question of belief, Jarraway leads us step by step along the evolution of his High Modern icon's "genealogy of Belief."

The Scar of Race

Paul M. Sniderman and Thomas Piazza

What, precisely, is the clash over race in the 1990s, and does it support the charge of a "new racism," more subtle and covert than the bigotry of a generation ago? These are the central questions Paul Sniderman and Thomas Piazza set out to answer in this brilliant articulation of how racial issues have become entangled with politics. As this process has become more complex, so has the question of race in the public mind.

The Last Best Hope of Earth

Abraham Lincoln and the Promise of America

Mark E. Neely Jr.

Pulitzer prize-winning historian Mark E. Neely, provides for the general reader the first compact biography of Lincoln based on new scholarship. Neely vividly recaptures the central role of politics in Lincoln's life. Although he ultimately married and became a prosperous lawyer, Lincoln chose a political career, and throughout his life, politics remained his first love.

Chester Bowles—New Dealer in the Cold War

Howard B. Schaffer

When Harry Truman named him ambassador to India in 1951, Chester Bowles was already a prominent figure in American public life and yet his past hardly presaged the turn his path would take in Asia. Over the next two decades, Bowles would become one of the leading liberal lights in American foreign policy. His biography is the story of America finding its place in a changing world, a story of remarkable relevance to our own post-cold war era.

The Politics Presidents Make

Leadership from John Adams to George Bush

Stephen Skowronek

This innovative study demonstrates that American Presidential leadership needs to be understood in terms of "political time." Who is a new president replacing, what previous program is he extending or rejecting, and how strong is the resistance to his new agenda? The author's penetrating stories of fifteen presidents illuminate the theory vividly. The conflicts of James Monroe offer insight into the leadership of Lyndon Johnson; the contretemps of Franklin Pierce prompt a reassessment of Jimmy Carter; the battles of Andrew Jackson recast our understanding of the leadership of Ronald Reagan.

Northern Protest

Martin Luther King, Jr., Chicago, and the Civil Rights Movement

James R. Ralph, Jr.

"Jim Ralph has written the fullest and most perceptive account yet to appear of the 1966 civilrights campaign in Chicago, a crucial event in the history of the movement. Ralph has traced the origins of the campaign in the politics of Chicago's African-American community; he has described the uneasy relationship between local activists and the national civilrights leaders who came to their aid; and he has explained why the 1966 campaign produced reactions in Washington so different from those the earlier campaigns in the South had created."

—Alan Brinkley, Columbia University

Public Education

An Autopsy

Myron Lieberman

"Lieberman wants for-profit schools to be given a chance...He scrupulously, thoughtfully, and rigorously advances his position by examining trends that will erode public education even further in the near future...He [also] sets out an agenda for launching for-profit schooling...This is the public policy book of the year." —Booklist

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

- 1 All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to: The Editor, Journal of American Studies, History Department, Lancaster University, Lancaster LA1 4YG, England.
- 2 Articles should generally contain about 5,000 words. Longer or shorter articles, or articles in two or more parts, may be accepted by arrangement with the Editors.
- 3 Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, and has not been concurrently submitted for publication elsewhere.
- 4 Contributions should be clearly typed or printed in double spacing (including footnotes), with a wide left-hand margin. Diagrams, maps and illustrations may be included.
- 5 Spelling may conform either to British or American usage, providing it is consistent throughout.
- 6 Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered consecutively, and may most conveniently be placed, in double spacing, at the end of the article.
- 7 For guidance on matters of style, contributors should refer either to The Chicago Manual of Style (13th edition, 1982) or to the Journal of American Studies Style Notes, copies of which may be obtained from the Editors.
- 8 Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
- 9 Notes intended for the Editors or Printer should be on a separate sheet.
- 10 First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within three days of receiving them.
- 11 Proof corrections should be kept to an absolute minimum. They should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorizes otherwise.
- 12 Contributors of articles and review essays receive 25 free offprints. Extra copies may be ordered according to a scale of charges.
- 13 Contributors need not be members of the British Association for American Studies. Unsolicited typescripts can only be returned to overseas contributors who send International Reply Coupons (not postage stamps).
- 14 Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyright, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
