Publication Policy

The role of the American Bar Foundation is to create and disseminate knowledge about law and the workings of the legal profession and legal institutions. With that purpose in mind, the American Bar Foundation Research Journal invites the submission of unsolicited articles and research notes by lawyers, legal academics, social scientists, and other scholars. The Research Journal publishes articles on the legal profession, the provision of legal services, the operation of legal institutions, trends and policy developments in the law, and related topics. Recognizing that a variety of disciplines and approaches can contribute to knowledge of the legal system, the Research Journal strives to be multidisciplinary and publishes empirical, doctrinal, and theoretical analyses.

The analyses, conclusions, and opinions expressed are those of the authors and not those of the American Bar Foundation, its officers and directors, research staff, or others associated with the Foundation's work.

Manuscript Evaluation: To ensure informed publication decisions, the Research Journal employs a refereed publication process. Articles and research notes that the Editor deems potentially appropriate for the Research Journal are normally evaluated by two or more reviewers chosen on the basis of their familiarity with the subject matter and the research methods. Manuscripts produced by scholars affiliated with the Foundation are evaluated by the same process as outside manuscripts and are not accorded priority in publication.

Submission of Manuscripts: Manuscripts submitted to the Research Journal should be typed double spaced with an abstract of not more than 150 words. It is preferable that the author's identity not be disclosed when a manuscript is sent to reviewers. If feasible, the author's name, credentials, institutional affiliation, and any acknowledgments should appear only on the cover sheet or other separate pages.

To avoid placing unnecessary burdens on reviewers, the Editor requests that manuscripts be submitted only if the author is committed to publication in the Research Journal if the manuscript is accepted. If a manuscript is submitted that is under consideration by another journal, that fact should be disclosed to the Editor at the time of submission. The Editor will make publication decisions promptly, usually about two months after submission.

Editing of Accepted Manuscripts: All manuscripts accepted for publication will be edited for style by the Research Journal's professional editorial staff in consultation with the author. The editorial staff also checks citations. Authors see both edited manuscript and galleys.

Reprints to Authors: Without charge, the Research Journal provides the author 50 reprints of each published article or research note and 5 copies of the issue in which it appears.

Republication Rights: The Foundation will normally permit authors to republish or use their manuscripts subsequent to publication in the Research Journal, but the Research Journal will have the right to first publication of edited manuscripts. The Research Journal will retain the right to republish manuscripts as reprints or as part of any reproduction of the issue or volume in which they appear, by any means, including without limit electronic means or microfilm.

Article or research note manuscripts may be sent to: Thomas Y. Davies, Editor, American Bar Foundation Research Journal, 1155 E. 60th St., Chicago, IL 60637. Inquiries regarding book reviews or review essays may be sent to: Howard S. Erlanger, Review Section Editor, University of Wisconsin Law School, Madison, WI 53706.

Managing Complex Litigation: A Practical Guide to the Use of Special Masters

Wayne D. Brazil, Geoffrey C. Hazard, Jr.,
and Paul R. Rice

- * Authors present a full debriefing of their experiences in the federal government's antitrust action against AT&T
- * Lead attorney for AT&T evaluates lessons of general application from his experiences with the case
- * Presiding U.S. District Court Judge in the AT&T case cites the requisites for the successful use of special masters
- * Conclusions developed from empirical and qualitative studies of the civil discovery system present the pros and cons of using special masters
- * Eighteen appendixes provide samples, documents, and day-to-day schedules of the work of the special masters in the AT&T case

"The overview provided in this volume by Professor Wayne Brazil, and the dialogue between Professors Geoffrey Hazard and Paul Rice—who served as special masters in the AT&T litigation—and Robert McLean—who was a lead attorney for the defendant in that case—explore with intelligence, analytical skill, and practical insight the key issue of the kinds of responsibilities that should and should not be entrusted to special masters. Their essays make a very significant contribution to this field, and in the main I am in agreement not only with their analysis but also with their conclusions."

Judge Harold H. Greene, United States District Judge for the District of Columbia. Judge Greene was the presiding judge in United States v. AT&T and appointed Special Masters Geoffrey Hazard and Paul Rice to serve in that case.

Wayne D. Brazil is Professor of Law, Hastings College of the Law, University of California, San Francisco, and Affiliated Scholar, American Bar Foundation.

Geoffrey C. Hazard, Jr., is Nathan Baker Professor of Law, Yale Law School, and Professor of Law and Management and Deputy Dean of the Yale School of Organization and Management.

Robert D. McLean is an attorney with the firm of Sidley & Austin, Chicago. McLean was a lead attorney for the defendant in United States v. AT&T.

Paul R. Rice is Professor of Law, Washington College of Law, American University.
