The Formation of Christendom

JUDITH HERRIN

'This is a book written with great verve, freshness of approach and originality of view. It shows a vivid appreciation of the immense variety of local conditions, opinions and customs in both the eastern and the western halves of the Roman Empire in the early Middle Ages: an important contribution to a huge subject which is just beginning to be studied as a whole.' The Formation of a Persecuting Society

Power and Deviance in Western Europe 950–1250

R. I. MOORE

The developments of the eleventh and twelfth centuries, which saw the appearance of popular heresy in Europe, the establishment of the Inquisition and the persecution of Jews, lepers, prostitutes and other minority groups, are here examined by R. I. Moore, who argues that the true origins of persecution lay in fundamental changes in social and economic organization, religion and government then taking place in Europe.

The Intellectual Origins of the European Reformation

ALISTER McGRATH

The French Reformation

MARK GREENGRASS

The French Reformation seemed well-placed to succeed: there was a vigorous pro-reform movement, and the beginnings of a powerful and well organized church structure. Yet French protestantism remained the faith of only a minority. This book seeks to understand this apparent contradiction and to explain why protestantism failed to take hold in France.
