NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

LORENZO CARLETTI completed his M.A. in Art History with a thesis on images of Pisan medieval architecture from the fourteenth to nineteenth centuries. Specializing in Tuscan medieval art and art critics, he wrote 'La devozione continua' in Sacre Passioni, Scultura lignea a Pisa dal XII al XV secolo (Milan, 2000); I pittori dell'oro (Pisa, 2002).

NICOLA COLDSTREAM took her Ph.D. at the Courtauld Institute and has worked as a freelance editor and lecturer in the history of medieval architecture. Her books include The Decorated Style, Architecture and Ornament, 1240–1360 (1994) and Medieval Architecture (Oxford History of Art, 2002).

PETER DE FIGUEIREDO is an architect, architectural historian and urban designer, and is Inspector of Historic Buildings for English Heritage. He is co-author of Cheshire Country Houses and The Rows of Chester.

DIANNE DUGGAN has a Ph.D. in Architectural History from the Courtauld Institute of Art where she researched the seventeenth century history of Woburn Abbey and Covent Garden, both projects of the 4th Earl of Bedford. Currently she is engaged in further research on the period.

KATHRYN FERRY is currently completing her Ph.D. at Darwin College, Cambridge. Her thesis will examine the influence of youthful travels to the Near East and Spain upon the architectural career of Owen Jones. This article derives from her essay which won the Hawksmoor Medal.

CHRISTIANO GIOMETTI is currently completing his Ph.D. on the Baroque sculptor Domenico Guidi. Interested in the relationship between material sculpture and the history of sculpture, he wrote Scultura medievale pisana. Percorsi nel territorio tra Medioevo e Rinascimento (Milan, 2001) and some articles on late Baroque sculpture.

MILES GLENDINNING is a historian and architectural critic. Specialising in the twentieth-century city and Scottish architecture, he is currently writing a biography of the architect Sir Robert Matthew. He is presently head of the Threatened Buildings Survey at RCAHMS.

ROSEMARY HANNAH took an M.Theol. at St Andrews in 1975, and gained a Ph.D. in Church History from the Department of Theology at Durham in 2000, with a thesis on 'The early life and achievement of John Patrick Crichton Stuart, Third Marquess of Bute, 1847–81'. A part-time lecturer for the Theological Institute of the Scottish Episcopal Church, she is currently completing a full-scale biography of the Third Marquess of Bute.

ROSEMARY HILL is writing a critical biography of A.C. and A.W.N. Pugin. Her most recent publications include: 'The Eye of the Beholder', The 2001 Royal College of Art Peter Dormer lecture; "'The ivi'd ruins of Grace Dieu'", Catholics, Romantics and Late Georgian Gothic in Gothic Architecture and its Meanings (ed. Michael Hall) and 'Ruskin and Pugin' in Ruskin & Architecture (eds Rebecca Daniels and Geoff Brandwood). In 1994 she received V.S. Naipaul's award for work in progress on the history of art and ideas.

ROBERT HILLENBRAND is Professor of Islamic Art at the University of Edinburgh. His architectural research focuses on the early Islamic period in Syria and buildings of the mediaeval Iranian world. Author of some 110 articles and of five books, and editor or co-editor of five more, in 1996 he was awarded the Society's Alice Davies Hitchcock Medallion for his book Islamic Architecture.

ANNE LAURENCE is Professor of History at the Open University and author of Women in England 1500–1760: A Social History, Weidenfeld and Nicolson/Orion, 1994. She is currently working on women and patronage in the seventeenth century.

MARGARET RICHARDSON has worked at Sir John Soane's Museum since 1985 and been its Curator since 1995. She co-edited (with Maryanne Stevens) John Soane architect: master of space and light (London, 1999).

ANDREW SPICER was formerly Research Fellow in History at the University of Exeter, taking up the post of Lecturer in Early Modern European History at Oxford Brookes University in September 2003. His research focuses on the socio-cultural impact of the Reformation, in particular looking at the effect that liturgical and theological change had upon the appearance, function and design of places of worship, the subject of a monograph to appear with Manchester University Press.

GAVIN STAMP was senior lecturer at the Mackintosh School of Architecture, Glasgow School of Art, and Honorary Professor of the University of Glasgow. He is currently a Bye-Fellow of Gonville & Caius College, Cambridge, for a year, having been awarded a Mellon Senior Fellowship.

CHARLES WEMYSS was awarded an M.Phil. in architectural history at the University of Dundee in 2002, where he is currently researching the internal planning of late seventeenth-century Scottish country houses.

MATTHEW WILLIAMS has been Curator of Cardiff Castle since 1990. He holds a degree in Art History from Nottingham University, and trained in Postgraduate Museum studies at the University of Manchester. He has undertaken much research into the work of William Burges, and is currently working upon a history of Cardiff Castle.
