

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

Clark D. Ahlberg, formerly director of the New York State division of the budget, has been appointed vice president of Syracuse University.

Henry S. Albinski, from the University of Minnesota, has been appointed as an instructor at the Pennsylvania State University.

Gabriel A. Almond, formerly of Princeton University, has been appointed professor of political science at Yale University.

Curtis Amlund has been appointed instructor at the University of Oregon.

Samir Anabtawi, formerly of Yale University, has been appointed instructor of government at Dartmouth College.

Satish K. Arora, of Yale University, has been appointed assistant professor of government at Skidmore College.

Douglas Ashford of Princeton University has been appointed lecturer in the department of government at Indiana University.

James D. Atkinson has been promoted to the rank of associate professor in the department of government at Georgetown.

Richard D. Baker, who has been a part-time instructor at the University of North Carolina, has been appointed an instructor in political science at the University of Oklahoma.

John T. Ballard has been promoted to assistant professor at San Jose State College.

Arthur C. Banks, Jr., visiting professor of political science at Atlanta University, will become full professor of political science at Morehouse College and coordinator of social science studies.

Ruth Baumann received promotion to associate professor of political science in the extension division of the University of Wisconsin. She served as acting director of the bureau of government while the director, James R. Donoghue, was on leave.

Loren Alan Beals has been appointed lecturer in government and politics at the University of Maryland and executive secretary of the Maryland Municipal League.

William M. Beaney has been appointed professor of politics, Princeton University, and will serve as chairman of the department.

Carl Beck, recently of Duke University, has been appointed assistant professor in the department of political science and senior research associate in the administrative science center at the University of Pittsburgh.

Eliot S. Berkley has been appointed dean of administration at the Kansas City Art Institute and School of Design.

Marver H. Bernstein has been appointed professor of politics, Princeton University. He served as chairman, American Faculty Committee on the Israel Fellowship Program, 1958-59, traveling to Israel, May 29-June 17, 1959, to arrange the first summer's program for American Fellows.

W. Richard Bigger has been promoted to professor at San Diego State College.

David A. Bingham, formerly assistant professor of political science at Arizona State University, Tempe, Arizona, has recently accepted a position as research associate with the bureau of business and public research, University of Arizona.

Guthrie S. Birkhead has been appointed chairman of the department of political science and director of the public administration programs at the Maxwell School, Syracuse University.

Joseph B. Board, Jr., of Indiana University, has joined the faculty of Elmira College, as assistant professor of political science.

R. Jean Brownlee, University of Pennsylvania, has been named acting dean of the College for Women.

Anthony T. Bouscaren served on the faculty of The National Strategy Seminar, The National War College, Washington, D.C., during July, 1959, and has accepted a position as associate professor of political science at Le Moyne College, Syracuse, New York as of September, 1959, after resigning from Marquette University.

Ralph Braibanti of Duke University has been advanced to the rank of professor of political science. He spent the summer of 1959 continuing his research on bureaucracy in Pakistan and also visited Japan, Okinawa, Formosa, Malaya, Thailand and India.

Bernard E. Brown, formerly of Michigan State University and for the past two years in France doing research on French political institutions, is assistant professor of political science at Vanderbilt University.

Albert C. Brouse, graduate student at Stanford University, has been appointed assistant professor of political science for the year 1959-60 at San Jose State College.

Ronald F. Bunn and James R. Soukup have been advanced to the rank of assistant professor in the department of government at the University of Texas.

David Calleo, candidate for the doctorate in political science at Yale University, has accepted a position as instructor in political science at Brown University, beginning September, 1959.

John W. Chapman, formerly of Smith College, has been appointed associate professor of political science at the University of Pittsburgh.

Peter B. Clark, formerly of the University of Chicago, has been appointed an assistant professor in the department of political science at Yale University.

Edward F. Cooke, has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science at the University of Pittsburgh.

Wilder W. Crane and Bernard F. Gordon have joined the staff of the Vanderbilt University department of political science as instructors.

Finla G. Crawford retired in June 1959 from his position with Syracuse University.

Robert T. Daland, formerly assistant professor at the University of Connecticut, has been appointed associate director of regional extension of the urban studies committee and acting associate professor of political science at the University of North Carolina.

David J. Danelski, Gerald S. Maryanov and Denis G. Sullivan are new members of the political science staff at the University of Illinois.

Raymond Dawson, who has been an instructor at the University of North Carolina, has been appointed Mershon Research Fellow at Ohio State University.

JeDon A. Emenhiser, Ph.D. candidate at the University of Minnesota, has been appointed instructor in the department of government at the University of Redlands, Redlands, California, for the year 1959-60.

Martin L. Faust became acting director of the bureau of government research at the University of Missouri on September 1, 1959.

Mark F. Ferber, Ph.D. candidate and public administration analyst at UCLA has been appointed assistant director of the American Political Science Association and director of the Congressional Fellowship Program.

John H. Ferguson has been named director of the new institute of public administration at The Pennsylvania State University. For his recent work in Harrisburg as secretary of administration and budget director of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, he received the first annual award of the Central Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration.

Webb S. Fiser has returned to the department of political science at Syracuse University from his work with the office of urban renewal of the city of Syracuse.

Joseph Fiszman has been appointed to an instructorship in political science at the University of Oregon.

Joseph P. Ford, who recently completed his Congressional Fellowship during which time he worked with Congressman Bass of New Hampshire and Senator Case of New Jersey, has been appointed to the political science staff of the University of New Hampshire.

Ludwig F. Freund has resigned from his position at Roosevelt University to return to Western Germany, where he has lecturing and writing commitments. He has also accepted the offer of the faculty of the Pedagogische Hochschule at Hannover to establish and head a department of political science. In his place Robert Runo has a three-year term as chairman of the department at Roosevelt.

Lawrence H. Fuchs, associate professor of politics, after directing research on the social and political history of Hawaii for one year, has returned to Brandeis where he has been appointed chairman of the department of politics.

William P. Gerberding of the University of Chicago has been appointed instructor in political science at Colgate University. He served during the past year as a Congressional Intern.

Hubert S. Gibbs has been promoted to the rank of full professor at Boston University.

Arthur Glover has been appointed assistant to the coordinator of overseas operations in the department of government at Indiana University.

Edward M. Goldberg, formerly instructor in political science at the University of Pennsylvania, has been appointed assistant professor of government at the University of New Mexico.

Marshall Goldstein is now instructor in political science at the University of Oregon.

Milton Greenberg has been promoted to associate professor at Western Michigan.

Fred I. Greenstein has been appointed an instructor in the department of political science at Yale University for the academic year 1959-60.

Elisha Greifer, formerly of Wheaton College, joined the department of political science at Vassar in September, 1958. This past summer he taught at New Paltz Teachers' College. He has recently been promoted to an assistant professorship.

Myron Q. Hale, formerly of Monmouth College, has been appointed visiting lecturer in the department of political science at the Ohio State University.

Manfred Halpern served as consultant in 1958-59 to the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California; also as consultant to Special Operations Research Office, American University, Washington, D.C. He has accepted an appointment as associate professor of politics (jointly with the department of oriental studies), Princeton University.

Rolf N. B. Haugen has been promoted to the rank of full professor at the University of Vermont, effective July 1, 1959.

Richard H. Hedrich has been appointed instructor in government and politics at the University of Maryland.

Bernard Hennessy of the department of government of the University of Arizona has been promoted to the rank of associate professor. He recently held a fellowship with the Democratic National Committee in Washington, D. C., and returns to the university in January.

James Herndon, doctoral candidate at the University of Michigan, has been appointed instructor in the department of political science at Drake University.

Milton Hobbs, of Northwestern University, has been appointed lecturer in government at Indiana University.

Vance Holland, who was at the University of Arizona for two years, has joined the staff of the department of political science of Brigham Young University.

W. V. Holloway has been appointed the vice president of the University of Tulsa, effective July 1, 1959. He will continue to occupy his present positions as dean of the graduate school and professor of political science.

James B. Horigan, S. J., formerly chairman of the department of government, has been appointed as acting dean of the graduate school of arts and sciences at Georgetown.

J. Woodford Howard, Jr. has been promoted to assistant professor at Lafayette College.

Lawrence Howard is now assistant professor of politics at Brandeis University.

Jack F. Isakoff, director of research of the Illinois Legislative Council, Springfield, Illinois, will become professor and chairman of the department of political science at Western Reserve University as of February 1960.

W. Turrentine Jackson has been named chairman of the department of history and political science at the Davis Campus of the University of California.

Daniel N. Jacobs, formerly of Hunter College, has been appointed assistant professor of government at Miami University (Ohio).

Whittle Johnston has been appointed assistant professor in the school of international service of the American University, Washington, D. C. He also received the Sumner Prize for 1958-59 at Harvard University for "the best dissertation . . . dealing with any means or measures tending towards the prevention of war and the establishment of universal peace."

Robert Dale Judy has been appointed instructor in political science in the extension division, University of Wisconsin, teaching at Manitowoc, Sheboygan, and Menasha Erwin F. Karner, who did his graduate study at the University of Wisconsin, has accepted a position at Lees Junior College, Jackson, Kentucky.

Edward Katzenbach is now lecturer in politics at Brandeis.

Robert W. Kaufman has joined the department at Western Michigan.

Earle H. Ketchum retired in June, 1959 from his chairmanship and professorship, department of political science at Syracuse University.

T. James Leonard of the University of Minnesota has been appointed an assistant professor of political science at Arizona State University.

E. Lester Levine of the graduate school of the University of Chicago has been appointed instructor in political science at Occidental College.

George T. Little has been promoted to the rank of full professor at the University of Vermont, the promotion dating from July 1, 1959.

Charles B. McLane has been appointed professor of government at Dartmouth College.

William Manger, professorial lecturer in Latin American government and politics has been appointed director of the new Latin American studies program at Georgetown University.

Albert B. Martin, professor of political science, has been appointed dean of the school of liberal arts at the University of Pittsburgh.

Milton R. Merrill, formerly dean of the college of business and social sciences and head of the department of political science at Utah State University, also a member of the council of the American Political Science Association, has been appointed vice president of Utah State University. Dr. Merrill will continue as head of the political science department.

Ernest G. Miller, who received his doctorate at Princeton, joins the department of the University of California as assistant professor.

Milton B. Millon has been appointed director of the municipal technical advisory service of the bureau of governmental research at the University of Maryland.

Stephen R. Mitchell, who is currently completing his work for the doctorate in political science at the University of Wisconsin, will become an instructor in political science at Washington State University, Pullman.

Joseph Murphy has been appointed instructor in the department of politics at Brandeis.

James E. Nadonly has joined the department at Western Michigan.

Martin C. Needler, formerly of Harvard University, has been appointed instructor of government at Dartmouth College.

Robert Nelson, who received his doctorate from Fordham in June, has joined the political science faculty of Canisius College.

Morris S. Ogul has been promoted to the rank of assistant professor of political science at the University of Pittsburgh.

John R. Owens, formerly of the University of Michigan, has been appointed assistant professor in the field of political parties and process at the University of California.

William V. O'Brien has been promoted to the rank of associate professor in the department of government at Georgetown.

Jack W. Peltason has been promoted to full professor at the University of Illinois.

Howard R. Penniman, professor of American government, has been named chairman of the department of government at Georgetown University.

Harvey S. Perloff, Resources for the Future, has been appointed professorial lecturer in the school of government and public administration of The American University.

Paul A. Pfetzschnner has been promoted to a full professorship at Lafayette College.

Frank P. Piskor has been appointed vice president for academic affairs at Syracuse University.

Robert C. Pitchell, formerly resident director of the Indiana Commission on State Tax and Financing Policy, has been appointed associate professor of government and associate director of the bureau of government research effective July 1, 1959.

Kirk H. Porter has become a professor emeritus at the University of Iowa, but is continuing his teaching during the current year.

James W. Pratt has been appointed assistant professor at Lafayette College.

Eugene C. Price has been promoted to assistant professor at San Jose State College.

Lucian W. Pye, associate professor of political science at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been appointed visiting lecturer in the department of political science in Southeast Asia studies at Yale University.

Laurence I. Radway, professor of government, has been appointed chairman of the department of government at Dartmouth College.

Austin Ranney has been promoted to full professor at the University of Illinois.

Leo F. Redfern, formerly of the University of New Hampshire, was appointed assistant professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin, July 1. He is an assistant director of the bureau of government.

Ross R. Rice has been appointed chairman of the department of political science at Arizona University.

Joseph K. Roberts, Jr., instructor in government at Barnard, has been appointed instructor in government at Skidmore College.

John P. Roche, professor of politics, has been appointed dean of faculty at Brandeis University.

Eleanor Roosevelt has been appointed as visiting lecturer in politics at Brandeis University.

Edward J. Rozek has been promoted to the rank of associate professor at the University of Colorado. He also serves as assistant editor of The Journal of Central European Affairs.

Philip B. Secor, formerly political science research associate at Duke University, has been appointed instructor of political science at Dickinson College.

Foster H. Sherwood has accepted an appointment as chairman of the department of political science at the University of California, Los Angeles.

H. Gordon Skilling has left Dartmouth College to accept a position as professor of political economy at the University of Toronto, where he will help to develop a graduate program in Slavic Studies.

Frank Smallwood has been appointed assistant professor of government at Dartmouth College.

Frances L. Starner, formerly at the University of California, has been appointed assistant professor of political science and public administration at San Jose State College for the year 1959-1960.

Richard W. Sterling has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of government at Dartmouth College. He is on leave for the academic year 1959-1960 to accept a position as research associate at the Washington Center for Foreign Policy Analysis.

Charles I. Stastny, who has just completed his work for his Ph.D. at Harvard, has been appointed an instructor in the department of government of the University of New Hampshire.

Richard W. Staveley has been appointed assistant professor of political science at San Jose State College.

Richard Stevens, formerly of Wabash College, has been appointed assistant professor of government at the College of William and Mary.

Melvin P. Straus, formerly at the University of Texas, has been appointed assistant professor of political science at San Jose State College.

Frank Tachau has been promoted to assistant professor of history and government at the Purdue University Center in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Peter A. Toma has joined the department of government of the University of Arizona as an assistant professor.

George O. Totten, formerly of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been appointed assistant professor of government at Boston University.

Raymond Uhl of the University of Minnesota has been appointed professor of political science at Arizona State University.

Cecil Van Crabb has been made an associate professor at Vassar. Last summer he taught at The Johns Hopkins University. This winter he will give a course in American Foreign Policy at the Salzburg Seminar on American Studies.

Vernon Van Dyke has been named chairman of the department of political science at the University of Iowa. During the summer of 1959 he was a visiting professor at Columbia.

Melvin W. Wach has joined the department at Western Michigan.

Earle Wallace has been promoted to the rank of assistant professor of political science at the University of North Carolina.

Eugene V. Walter is now assistant professor of politics at Brandeis University.

H. Wesley Ward, associate professor of government of Southern Illinois University, accepted an appointment, effective September, 1959, as professor of political science and acting chairman of the division of social sciences, Elmira College, Elmira, New York.

James E. Watson, graduate student at the University of California (Berkeley), has been appointed assistant professor of political science, San Jose State College for this year.

David M. Welborn has been appointed lecturer in government and research assistant in the bureau of government research at Indiana University.

John P. Wheeler has become chairman of the newly established department of politics at Hollins College. He is also dean of the faculty. Other members of the department include Edwin Fedder, assistant professor and Joseph B. Hampton, assistant professor.

Robert F. Wilcox has been appointed chairman of the political science department at San Diego College.

J. D. Williams, recently promoted to the rank of associate professor in the political science department at the University of Utah, has been designated by the Board of Regents to be director, for the academic year 1959-60, of a new Bureau of Community Development, established within the Extension Division. Function of the new Bureau will be to launch in Utah a self-study town-meeting approach to community development, such as has been used in the states of Washington and Illinois. In his absence his classes will be taught by Kenneth W. Treacy.

David Wilson of Cornell University has accepted an appointment as lecturer in the department of political science at U.C.L.A.

Deil S. Wright, formerly of Wayne State University, has joined the department of political science at the State University of Iowa as an assistant professor.

Joseph J. Zasloff has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science at the University of Pittsburgh.

IN MEMORIAM

Daniel Bernard Carroll, McCullough professor of political science at the University of Vermont, and lately professor emeritus of political science, died suddenly at his home on April 19, 1959.

Professor Carroll's life in higher education, except for a bachelor's degree at the University of Illinois and a doctorate at the University of Wisconsin, was devoted wholly to the University of Vermont. He was born in Illinois and taught for some years in the public schools of that state and in Indiana. He served as a captain in the United States Army during World War I, and for a short while in 1924.

Professor Carroll served the University with great distinction as a teacher. A generation of students value the academic discipline they acquired in his classes. When he retired in 1951 a petition with hundreds of student signatures was presented to President Carlson asking that he be permitted to continue teaching. For nearly the entire length of his tenure at the University of Vermont, he was advisor to the Inter-Fraternity Council which now confers a cup bearing his name. His academic life was as genuine as was his social delight in advising students. He was a democrat in all the best senses of the word.

Professor Carroll served the academic community with merit. He steadily contributed review articles to learned journals and wrote more substantive pieces on unicameralism in state legislatures and on constitutional law. A bibliography of his writings shows his wide range of interest, from local government to international affairs. His favorite topic in political science was constitutional law: and he brought to that often ambiguous and opinion-dominated subject the precision of hard study and devotion to facts and clear reasoning. Professor Carroll's greatest contribution to the scholarly community perhaps was his skill in teaching by example. Inside his classroom and office he was tolerant of those who were striving for accuracy and understanding. Outside, on the campus and in the town, his friendliness and personal concern knew no bounds. He taught not only students, but faculty as well—a difficult accomplishment. Under his chairmanship a majority of the present department of political science at the University of Vermont had their first contact with the University. He leaves a double impression on his associates: that of uncompromising academic standards combined with a charming personal friendship.