STUDIES IN ANTHROPOLOGY AND HISTORY

Studies in Anthropology and History is a series of books that will develop new theoretical perspectives, and combine comparative and ethnographic work with historical research.

ISSN: 1055-2464

Volume 3, TIME AND THE WORK OF ANTHROPOLOGY: Critical Essays 1971-1991

Johannes Fabian

This book is a collection of papers spanning twenty years of the author's intense engagement with modern thought and the problems of ethnography. Fabian shows the breakthrough into time and history from the ahistorical approach that characterized structuralism and functionalism with examples of his work on African religious movements and the role of religion in colonial history. In the latest essays he reflects on the politics of representing the other, opposing postmodern fashions and reasserting the need to continue with a truly critical agenda.

Volume 4, CATASTROPHE AND CREATION: The Transformation of an African Culture

Kajsa Ekholm Friedman

This study of Congolese society in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries focuses on the transition from a precolonial to a colonial order. It is shown that much of what is today considered "traditional" Congolese society and culture is a product of the transformation generated by the integration of the region into the world system. Phenomena that have usually been accepted as fixed cultural structures such as the kinship system, sacrificial sacred kingship, fetishism, witchcraft and cannibalism are shown here to be historical products of a turbulent transition. The discussion combines a structural analysis of social and cultural logics with a framework that stretches from the self to the global system in order to grasp the nature of social transformation.

Volume 5, COLONIAL SPACE: Spatiality, Subjectivity and Society in the Colonial Discourse of German South West Africa 1884-1915

John Kenneth Noyes

This book provides an important contribution to the study of colonial discourse, using spatiality as the concept which allows us to understand the interrelations between representation, personal experience and social form under the conditions of colonization. It combines an analysis of the concept of spatiality, drawing on theories developed by Lacan, Deleuze and Guattari, Derrida and Foucault, with a series of studies of colonial texts from German South West Africa in the period 1884-1915 showing that the production of space in colonization is achieved through various techniques for establishing and manipulating boundaries.

AFRICAN

VOLUME 51

1992

Edited by Deborah James

This special issue of African Studies includes papers from the fifth History Workshop, University of the Witwatersrand.

The forging of apartheid in the 1940s and 1950s is explored through the examination of situations which illustrate the immediate and long-term effects of apartheid on individuals and societies in South Africa.

AFRICAN STUDIES is the longest-established journal of Southern African studies. It publishes articles on social anthropology, history, politics, African languages and sociology.

Journal of Social History 1992-1993

The Journal continues to define new areas of historical coverage and to clarify major interpretive issues in the field with groupings of articles on such subjects as:

New approaches in gender history

- male friendships and the terra incognita of fatherhood
- women and family relationships
- sexual standards and sexual behavior

Issues in the social history of religion

Rural and environmental history

Issues in the history of 20th century leisure

A new emphasis on synthesis: social history and legal history; social history of slavery; labor protest.

Explorations in new aspects of comparative history: race, religious values.

Plus new research on social class, crime, and frontier patterns, in the United States, Japan, Latin America, Europe, Russia, and Africa.

Plus many other articles and reviews, as the JSH maintains its role as a major outlet for historical research.

Also: the JSH discount book service to individual subscribers - 25 percent off on titles from 15 American and British publishers.

Annual subscription rates: $55 institutions, $25 individuals, $17 students.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

The Journal publishes research and reviews on all aspects of the African past. Contributors should keep in mind the general readership for whom they are writing and relate their findings specifically to relevant secondary literature.

Contributions may be sent to any of the Editors listed on the inside cover; they should be addressed to them at their Departments of History.

Authors may submit contributions in either English or French. They should not exceed about 7500 words (excluding notes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. Where appropriate, carefully drawn maps, photographs, and other illustrations should accompany the text. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words, should be attached on a separate sheet.

Contributors should seek clarity, brevity, and simplicity of expression and avoid long sentences and unduly lengthy or short paragraphs. They should closely observe the conventions set out below ('Format and Style').

Typescripts or print-outs must be checked personally before despatch, to remove accidental errors.

Page proofs will be sent to each contributor, if necessary by air mail. Corrections must be kept to a minimum: they should not include new material. Contributors should be prepared to return corrected proofs promptly. Authors of articles and review articles receive 25 free offprints and may purchase additional copies, provided that they order before publication on the form sent out with proofs.

Format and Style

Articles should be submitted in two copies. They should be typed in double-spacing throughout. Lines beginning new paragraphs should be indented. Ample margins (at least one inch left and right, one and one-half inches top and bottom) must be left, and all pages should be numbered.

Spelling (in English) may follow either British or American convention but must be consistent. African words and names should conform to the orthography of the International African Institute. In referring to people, Bantu prefixes should normally be omitted: thus 'Luganda', 'Buganda', but 'a Ganda', 'the Ganda'.

Quotations of more than forty words or so should begin on a new line, indented from the left-hand margin.

Italics should be used only for the names of publications and for words in languages other than English. Foreign words should be used only when necessary, and then only with a translation in parentheses.

Figures should be used for units of measurement, percentages (to be shown in the form '7 per cent', not '7%'), and any number which includes a decimal point. Spell out other numbers up to ten and multiples of ten up to one hundred ('seven', 'twenty', but '25', '127', and '10,000'). Cite dates in the form '12 February 1968' (or 'Feb.' in source-references). Express sequences in the briefest form possible ('68-9', but '1911-12', '1849-50').

Notes should be numbered consecutively throughout the article and typed double-spaced, separately from the text. Citations of references should be made only in the notes and not in the text, and there should be no separate bibliography. First references should be given in full, thus: S. Johnson, The History of the Yorubas (Lagos, 1921); E. W. Smith, 'Sebetwane and the Makololo', African Studies, xv (1956), 49-74. All subsequent references should be given in abbreviated form, thus: Johnson, History, 43; Smith, 'Sebetwane', 65, except that ibid. should be used to refer to an immediately preceding citation of a title. Loc. cit. and op. cit. should not be used. Do not abbreviate periodical titles. Archival citations should be as brief as is consistent with clarity. The identity and location of each archive must be fully spelled out where it is first cited.

Maps should be prepared where the topography is important for an understanding of the text. Maps should if possible be camera-ready and show all relevant information, but only such information as is mentioned in the text. Photographs should specifically enhance the text and carry full captions and attributions.
