CICERO'S PRACTICAL PHILOSOPHY

EDITED BY WALTER NICGORSKI

"Here is an impressive array of scholars addressing Cicero's two major themes: the philosophy of politics and the politics of philosophy. Walter Nicgorski has made a fine collection of competent opinions expressed with useful and intelligent diversity." —Harvey C. Mansfield, Harvard University and Hoover Institution, Stanford University

THE RIGHT TO THE CITY

Popular Contention in Contemporary Buenos Aires

GABRIELA IPPOLITO-O'DONNELL

"The Right to the City is an important contribution to the literature on social movements, democratization, and Latin American studies. It is timely, well written, theoretically ambitious, and rich in its empirical analysis."

POLITICAL CAREERS, CORRUPTION, AND IMPUNITY

Panama's Assembly, 1984–2009

CARLOS GUEVARA MANN

"This book not only delivers the goods in terms of detailed analysis of questionable practices, but it also explains why bad political behavior matters in theory. An amazingly authoritative and well-argued study."

RAWLSIAN POLITICAL ANALYSIS

Rethinking the Microfoundations of Social Science

PAUL CLEMENTS

"Paul Clements's Rawlsian Political Analysis mounts an important intervention into the philosophy of the social sciences, challenging the tired fact/value, empirical/normative binaries that continue to impoverish social analysis." —Fonna Forman-Barzilai, University of California, San Diego

Politics from Princeton

The Spirit of Compromise

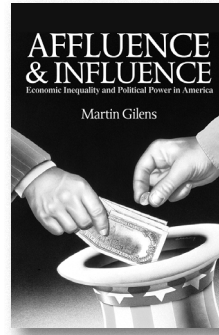

Why Governing Demands It and Campaigning Undermines It

Amy Gutmann & Dennis Thompson

“In this ‘no excuses’ look at Washington gridlock, Gutmann and Thompson offer a clear-eyed examination of the forces that bring warring political leaders together or keep them apart. . . . I wish every policymaker would read it!”

—Judy Woodruff, PBS NewsHour

Cloth $24.95 978-0-691-15391-9

Affluence and Influence

Economic Inequality and Political Power in America

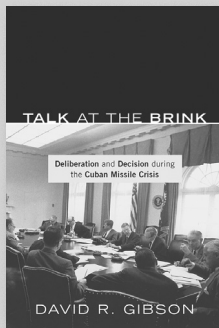

Martin Gilens

“Affluence and Influence is social science at its best, melding sophisticated scholarship with moral purpose. The book shows how better-off Americans sway elections and get the laws they want. If other citizens feel unrepresented, Gilens’s analysis could be a first step toward redress.”

—Andrew Hacker, Queens College

Talk at the Brink

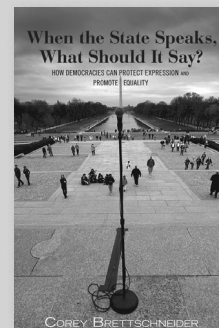

Deliberation and Decision during the Cuban Missile Crisis

David R. Gibson

“This book makes a major intellectual and scholarly contribution to our understanding of human behavior. I predict that it will be much cited and lead to significant shifts in the way scholars and the lay public think about the Cuban missile crisis in particular and decision making and leadership in general. The book’s strongest lesson is how open and nonlinear important decisions can be.”

When the State Speaks, What Should It Say?

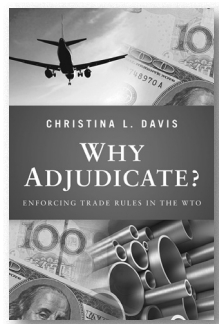

How Democracies Can Protect Expression and Promote Equality

Corey Brettschneider

“In this lucid and compelling book, Brettschneider takes on some of the most vexing issues in contemporary liberal politics, and offers a theory of value democracy as a touchstone for addressing those issues. His argument is one with which everyone will have to engage. A pleasure to read, this is political theory at its best.”

Why Adjudicate?

Enforcing Trade Rules in the WTO

Christina L. Davis

“Many scholars and professionals are focused on the question of the effectiveness of the WTO as a mechanism for resolution of trade disputes. This book offers particular insight into this question and also considers the implications for new entrants in the international trading system such as China. Why Adjudicate? is an extremely insightful volume and a pleasure to read.”

Reforming the European Union

Realizing the Impossible

Daniel Finkel, Thomas König, Sven-Oliver Proksch & George Tsebelis

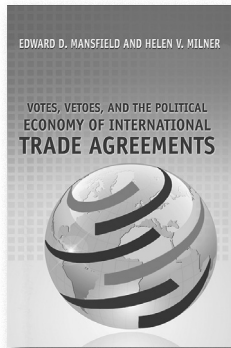

“Through theoretical and analytical interpretation of an extraordinary collection of original data, this book addresses the important and complicated process of treaty reform in the European Union. Novel and exemplary, it explores constitutional reform, the art of political manipulation, and the empirical study of bargaining. A major achievement.”

The Reputational Premium

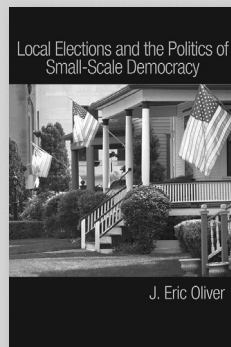

A Theory of Party Identification and Policy Reasoning

Paul M. Sniderman & Edward H. Stiglitz

“The Reputational Premium is a major substantive breakthrough. Sniderman and Stiglitz escape the chronic dispute about the comparative role of party identification and issue preference by taking it somewhere much more productive. My bet is that this book will quickly become a must-read for those who work at the center of the American politics syllabus.”

LITTLE AMERICA

The War Within the War for Afghanistan
by Rajiv Chandrasekaran

From the award-winning author of Imperial Life in the Emerald City, a riveting, intimate account of America's surge of troops and aid to Afghanistan. Portraying the effort as sabotaged not only by Afghan and Pakistani malfeasance but by infighting and incompetence within the American government, this is an unprecedented examination of a failing war—and an eye-opening look at the complex relationship between America and Afghanistan.

BEYOND OUTRAGE

What Has Gone Wrong With Our Economy and Our Democracy, and How to Fix It
by Robert B. Reich

Americans can't rely only on getting good people elected, Robert Reich argues, because nothing positive happens in Washington unless good people outside Washington are organized to help make those things happen post-election. But in order to be effectively mobilized, we need to see the big picture. Reich connects the dots, showing why the increasing share of income and wealth going to the top has hobbled jobs and growth, caused Americans to become increasingly cynical about public life, and turned many Americans against one another. Here is a blueprint for action for the future of America.

AMERICAN DREAMERS

How the Left Changed a Nation
by Michael Kazin

A panoramic yet intimate history of the American left—of the reformers, radicals, and idealists who have fought for a more just and humane society.

"With deft biographical portraits and telling historical detail, [Michael Kazin] shows how abolitionists, feminists, socialists, and even anarchists challenged Americans to embrace a larger life. Inspiring and engaging but also judiciously critical, American Dreamers reminds us that visions of utopia—whatever their flaws—remain an essential resource for creating a more humane society."

—Jackson Lears, Board of Governors Professor of History, Rutgers University

AMERICA THE PHILOSOPHICAL

by Carlin Romano

With verve and keen intelligence, Carlin Romano takes on the widely held belief that ours is an anti-intellectual society. Instead, while providing a richly reported overview of American thought, Romano argues that ordinary Americans see through phony philosophical justifications faster than anyone else, and that the best of our thinkers abandon artificial academic debates for fresh intellectual enterprises. Smart and provocative, America the Philosophical is a rebellious tour de force that both celebrates our country's unparalleled intellectual energy and promises to bury some of our most hidebound cultural clichés.

THE AGE OF AUSTERITY

How Scarcity Will Remake American Politics
by Thomas Byrne Edsall

"The economic collapse that began in 2008 and its aftermath . . . has mired us in what Thomas Edsall rightly calls 'the age of austerity.' What this means, the former Washington Post reporter argues in his eye-opening and hugely important account, is a transformation of US politics into 'a dog-eat-dog political competition over diminishing resources.' Edsall's point is powerfully argued. . . . [H]is book is essential . . . reading for anyone seeking to understand our broken politics."

—Chuck Leddy, The Boston Globe

TROUBLEMAKER

A Memoir from the Front Lines of the Sixties
by Bill Zimmerman

"A smart, tough, incisive look at the politics of the '60s and how they impact us today. A look at the past that gives us a lens on the present."

—Robert Greenwald, Producer and Director, Brave New Films

"For almost half a century Bill Zimmerman has labored with intensity for progressive causes as an organizer and political consultant. In this new memoir he looks back on his career with an unwavering commitment to his beliefs and an admirable intellectual toughness and pragmatism. . . . A valuable model for progressive activists of our own time."

POLITICAL EVIL

What It Is and How to Combat It
by Alan Wolfe

"In this impassioned and thought-provoking journey through the varied landscape of political evil, Alan Wolfe draws subtle and often heartbreaking distinctions examining what can—and cannot—be done to combat the most vile organized horrors that human beings have always inflicted upon one another. This is a necessary but disturbing book, because it is all about the heart of darkness that is so much more comfortable to ignore—and our own limitations even when we try to do the right thing."

—Susan Jacoby, author of The Age of American Unreason

THE MYTH OF THE MUSLIM TIDE

Do Immigrants Threaten the West?
by Doug Saunders

Since September 11, 2001, a growing chorus has warned that Western society and values are at risk of being overrun by a tide of Islamic immigrants. In The Myth of the Muslim Tide, Doug Saunders offers a brave challenge to these ideas, debunking popular misconceptions about Muslims and their effect on the communities in which they live. Rather than responding to our new religious-minority neighbors with fear and resentment, this book shows how to make this change work to our advantage.

2012–2013 Call for Applications

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Scholars in Health Policy Research

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Scholars in Health Policy Research program helps to develop a new generation of creative health policy thinkers and researchers within the disciplines of economics, political science and sociology. Each year, the program selects up to nine highly qualified individuals for two-year fellowships at one of three nationally prominent universities with the expectation that they will make important research contributions to future U.S. health policy.

The participating universities are: Harvard University; the University of California, Berkeley and San Francisco; and the University of Michigan.

Applicants who expect to begin training in August 2013 must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents at the time of application and have received a doctoral degree after January 1, 2008 but no later than July 2013. For those applicants who expect to receive degrees in 2013, all degree requirements must be completed by July 15, 2013.

Application Deadline
October 16, 2012

The complete call for applications is available on the Foundation's website at www.rwjf.org/cfp/scholarsinhealthpolicyresearch and the program's website at www.healthpolicyscholars.org or by calling (617) 353-9220.

About the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation focuses on the pressing health and health care issues facing our country. As the nation's largest philanthropy devoted exclusively to improving the health and health care of all Americans, we work with a diverse group of organizations and individuals to identify solutions and achieve comprehensive, meaningful and timely change.

For 40 years we've brought experience, commitment, and a rigorous, balanced approach to the problems that affect the health and health care of those we serve. When it comes to helping Americans lead healthier lives and get the care they need, we expect to make a difference in your lifetime.

SCHOOL FOR COMMUNICATION
UNIVERSITY of PENNSYLVANIA

The Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania is seeking to fill up to three tenured or tenure track faculty positions (open rank) in the area of digital media to begin fall semester 2013. Preference will be given to scholars whose innovative research and teaching falls in one of the following three areas.

- Theory-driven use of archival, depth observational, and/or field methods to understand digital media, including but not limited to topics such as cultural production, location-aware and other social media, virtual reality, digital design, technoculture, gaming, transnational flows, surveillance, and/or intellectual property.
- The use of communication theories and quantitative methods to illuminate the social, cultural, political, economic and/or psychological uses, effects, and policy implications of evolving digital technologies.
- The application and development of communication theories using “web science” approaches and/or the analysis of “big data” generated through various online or mobile information and communication technologies. Specific research methods could include social network analysis, web and mobile analytics, data aggregation and analysis, computational social science, computer facilitated content analysis, behavioral prediction, data visualization, and/or related modes of inquiry.

Applicants must hold a Ph.D. (in Communication or a related discipline) and have a strong record of teaching and research. Responsibilities include conducting a program of research and publication, teaching at the graduate and undergraduate levels including supervising doctoral dissertations, and contributing service to the school and university.

The Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania is a graduate school of communication theory and research, with 18 full-time faculty and approximately 80 doctoral students representing a wide range of disciplinary backgrounds and interests. The faculty also has primary responsibility for an undergraduate communication major within the School of Arts and Sciences.

Send letter of interest, curriculum vitae, three names of references, and up to three articles, chapters or other research to Professor Michael X. Delli Carpini, Dean, Annenberg School for Communication, University of Pennsylvania, 3620 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, PA 19104-6220 via facultysearches.provost.upenn.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=51067. To receive full consideration, applications should be received by September 15, 2012

The University of Pennsylvania is an Equal Opportunity Employer. Minorities, females, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply.

New eJournal

Political Science Jobs New eJournal from APSA

In July 2012, APSA launched a new monthly and online journal focused on jobs in political science. Political Science Jobs contains active job listings from APSA's eJobs database. The combination of the new online journal and the daily APSA eJobs database provides a continued platform for a transparent, efficient, and ethically grounded political science labor market. APSA has maintained an open academic job market for many years, and this new journal forms the next phase of these efforts.

Format and Frequency

Political Science Jobs includes all active positions in a monthly downloadable PDF and link to the searchable eJobs system online.

APSA Members

APSA members (individuals and departments) have free access to the online journal as a benefit of membership. All members also receive free access to the daily PDF of eJobs listings.

Replacing PS Supplement with Political Science Jobs

Political Science Jobs replaces the former PS Supplement of job listings. The April 2012 PS Supplement was the last published volume since establishing the journal in 2008 to fulfill federal regulatory requirements tied to international hiring requirements. These federal rules recently changed to recognize online or web-based professional journals as an eligible outlet.
