We don't tell fairy tales.

We tell you the real
story —

kisses, warts and all!

That is why so many people in business, government, labor, education and the church read the National Catholic Reporter.

NO RISK OFFER: You can try six issues with no money up front. Order NCR and, if you decide to cancel, just write "cancel" on your invoice and return it to us.

NCR costs $23 a year. If you pay now, it costs $19 — savings of $4 (and you can still cancel.)

If we've convinced you already, call our TOLL FREE NUMBER 1-800-821-7926 (8 a.m. - 4 p.m. C.T. Mon.-Fri.) If not, read the copy on your right.

Whether it's the pope's burning issues for social justice in Poland or his hot and cold pastoral messages in Latin America . . .

Or the smoke rising in South Succotash from an unemployed father who thinks his suffering children are a national issue, even if Ronald Reagan doesn't . . .

Or the pressure of a city's leaders against a bishop who asks workers to consider quitting their jobs at a nuclear arms factory . . .

Or the smoldering resentment of Catholics whose bishop makes women second class citizens in the church.

You can find both Pollyannas and prophets of doom to tell you about the Catholic church and its involvement in the world. But for a straightforward account of the news, and informed opinions about what the news means to you, try NCR. Accept six free issues and put us to the test.

You'll find the religious dimensions of today's news — often long before other media catch on. For example, in Central America our coverage consistently revealed untold facts about Archbishop Romero's assassination and the four slain U.S. missionaries. NCR's coverage, far ahead of the mainstream press, led the effort to keep U.S. armed forces out of El Salvador.

Nationally NCR focused on the exploitation of abortion and religious issues by the New Right. And in our coverage of perennial personal struggles and triumphs, you find people like yourself, as in the challenging work of some parishes where members help each other in times of need.

NCR grows out of a Catholic heritage for a catholic audience, cutting across denominational lines to the cutting edge of faith in our day. Says one layperson: "Your publication gives me vigor, renewal, laughter and most of all hope."
