History of Education

History of Education is a half-yearly journal sponsored by the History of Education Society, which was founded in 1967 to promote the study of this subject in all its aspects. It contains original articles on the development of education both in Britain and abroad – schools, universities and colleges, teaching methods, personalities, the politics of education and its philosophy. Some papers are illustrated with plates and drawings, and the journal is concluded with a section of book reviews. It is edited by Charles Webster of Oxford University, in conjunction with an editorial board of distinguished scholars, including several corresponding members overseas.
