

Association News

John Kessel, Department of Political Science, Ohio State University, Columbus, OH 43210.

Kathleen McGinnis, Department of Political Science, Trinity College, Washington, DC 20017.

Nelson W. Polsby, Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences, 202 Junipero Serra Blvd., Stanford, CA 94305.

Barbara Sinclair, Department of Political Science, University of California, Riverside, Riverside, CA 92521. □

Journal Discounts Offered to APSA Members

Members of APSA should watch the mails for their listing of journals offered at discounted rates. The listing, with subscription coupons, will be mailed to all individual members in late September. □

Salisbury Named Book Review Editor of the APSR

Samuel C. Patterson, incoming managing editor of the American Political Science Review, has named Robert H. Salisbury book review editor.

Robert Salisbury of Washington University in St. Louis is new book review editor of the APSR.

Salisbury is Sydney W. Souers Professor of American Government at Washington University in St. Louis where he has spent most of his career and has served as chairman of the Department of Political Science and director of the Center for the Study of Public Affairs. He has been a visiting lecturer at 27 universities in the United States and abroad.

In addition to the eight books he has published, Salisbury has written numerous articles for the major journals in the profession. His most recent publication for the March 1984 issue of APSR, "Interest Representation: The Dominance of Institutions," extended his path breaking work on interest groups. He has also written on the politics of education, urban politics, public policy analysis, governmental reorganization, elections, political parties, and Congress.

Salisbury is a former vice president of APSA and has served on its Council. He has been both president and program chair of the Midwest Political Science Association. He has served on the editorial board of the American Journal of Political Science and the American Politics Quarterly.

Active in civic affairs, Salisbury has been a consultant for the Office of Economic Opportunity, the U.S. Office of Education, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors. He has also served as a member of the St. Louis County Charter Commission and the Missouri Commission on Local Government.

PS asked Salisbury to comment on his plans for the book review section of the Review, and his response, intended as an open letter to the discipline, follows:

As book review editor of the APSR, building on the splendid work of my predecessors, I hope to do several things. First, I want to make the review section as interesting and provocative to read as possible so that political scientists will find intellectual stimulation there as well as information and evaluation of newly published work. Whenever appropriate I will commission essays from established scholars and ask them to review substantive areas of inquiry and traditions of scholarship as well as to assess the current book or books under review. At