Contents

Li	st of Figures	page viii
Li	st of Tables	ix
Αc	cknowledgments	X
In	troduction	1
1	The Origins of the English-Only Movement	29
2	Creating English-Only Policies: Ghostwriting, Templates, and Genre Choices	61
3	Emphasizing the Local in Language Policy: From Upscaling to Downscaling	89
4	Resisting and Rewriting: How People Undo English-Only Policies	112
Conclusion		144
$A_{I}$	ppendix A: Research Methods	152
Appendix B: Policy Texts		156
References		178
Index		206

Figures

1.1	John Tanton with pen and paper at his desk in Petoskey,
	Michigan, in 1986	page 53
2.1	A map showing the location of the four counties in Maryland
	that passed or proposed English-only policies between 2012
	and 2013: Frederick County, Carroll County, Anne Arundel County, and Queen Anne's County; Washington, DC, is marked
	as a point for reference	62
3.1	A map showing Carroll County, which passed an English-only
	policy; two more linguistically and racially diverse nearby countie	es, Montgomery County and Howard County; and the two major cities in the region, Washington, DC, and Baltimore, Maryland	91

viii