

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

ALVARO ASTUDILLO es egresado del programa de Master of Arts in Economics de la Universidad Alberto Hurtado que dicta en conjunto con Georgetown University. Desde ese mismo año se desempeña como coordinador del equipo de metodología del proyecto "Actualización de los índices de Precio al Productor y al por Mayor" desarrollado por el Instituto Nacional de Estadísticas de Chile. Sus áreas de interés son economía de la educación, economía laboral y desarrollo de políticas públicas.

XÓCHITL BADA is assistant professor in the Program of Latin American and Latino Studies at the University of Illinois at Chicago. She received her Ph.D. in sociology in 2008 from the University of Notre Dame. Her scholarship focuses on the civic, cultural, and political participation of Chicago-based Michoacano migrant hometown associations. Her research interests range from immigrant access to political and social rights, Black-Latino relations, and transnational communities. For the last two years, she has been codirecting a multisited Latin American immigrant civic integration study led by the Mexico Institute at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, D.C. The results of this project can be found at <http://www.wilsoncenter.org/migrantparticipation>.

RUBÉN BERRÍOS teaches economics at Lock Haven University of Pennsylvania and has been teaching at the College of Business Administration at the University of Pittsburgh. He is the author of Contracting for Development (2000), a monograph, and some thirty articles and chapters in books on international and economic development issues.

MARÍA SOLEDAD CATOGGIO es licenciada en sociología por la Universidad de Buenos Aires, donde ejerce la docencia. Además es becaria doctoral del Consejo Nacional de Investigaciones Científicas y Técnicas.

RODRIGO CORDERO is a research fellow at the Institute of Social Sciences at Universidad Diego Portales, Santiago de Chile. He is currently a doctoral candidate in sociology at the University of Warwick in the United Kingdom. He is editor of La sociedad de la opinion: Reflexiones sobre encuestas y cambio politico en democracia (2009).

JUAN E. DE CASTRO is assistant professor in the literary studies department at Eugene Lang College, the New School for Liberal Arts. He is the author of Mestizo Nations: Culture, Race, and Conformity in Latin American Literature (2002) and The Spaces of Latin American Literature: Tradition, Globalization and Cultural Production (2008). He is currently finishing a book on Mario Vargas Llosa as a "public intellectual" and editing, with Nicholas Birns, an anthology of essays on Vargas Llosa's novels and essays after his embrace of neoliberalism.

PATRICIA DE SANTANA PINHO holds a Ph.D. in social sciences from the Universidade Estadual de Campinas and is the author of Mama Africa:

Reinventing Blackness in Bahia (forthcoming). Her research interests focus on the themes of blackness and whiteness in Brazil. She is an assistant professor in the Department of Latin American, Caribbean, and U.S. Latino Studies at the University at Albany.

CLÁUDIA JÚLIA GUIMARÃES HORTA is a researcher with the Fundação João Pinheiro in Minas Gerais, Brazil, and professor in the Escola de Governo Professor Paulo Neves de Carvalho. She is a member of the study group on living conditions and human development. Her recent publications include "Desenvolvimento humano em Minas Gerais" (in O estado do Estado, 2007) and "Análise dos indicadores de desenvolvimento humano para a cidade de São Paulo" (Desenvolvimento da cidade de São Paulo, 2007). She also published, with José Alberto Magno de Carvalho and Olinto José Oliveira Nogueira, "Evolução do comportamento reprodutivo da mulher brasileira — 1991–2000: Cálculo da taxa de fecundidade total em nível municipal," (Revista Brasileira de Estudos de População, 2005).

JUDITH LAIKIN ELKIN is the author of The Jews of Latin America and founding president of the Latin American Jewish Studies Association. An associate of the Frankel Center for Judaic Studies at the University of Michigan, Elkin has been awarded fellowships by the National Endowment for the Humanities, American Association of University Women, American Jewish Archives, and the John Carter Brown Library.

WILLIAM M. LEOGRANDE is dean of the School of Public Affairs at American University in Washington, D.C. He has written widely on U.S. relations with Latin America. His most recent book, coedited with Philip Brenner, Marguerite Rose Jimenez, and John Kirk, is A Contemporary Cuba Reader: Reinventing the Revolution.

TRINE LUNDE is an economist at the World Bank working on issues related to women's economic empowerment and to the socioeconomic conditions of indigenous peoples. She holds a Ph.D. from the Paul H. Nitze School of Advanced International Studies at Johns Hopkins University, and her dissertation combines ethnographic and economic research in a study of poverty dynamics in twelve indigenous communities in southern Mexico.

JOSÉ ALBERTO MAGNO DE CARVALHO is presently dean of the School of Economics, Federal University of Minas Gerais, Brazil. He is former president of the International Union for the Scientific Study of Population. He is also author, with Charles Wood, of The Demography of Inequality in of Brazil (1988); "The Stability of Census-Based Racial Classifications in Brazil," with Charles Wood and Flávia Andrade (Population Studies, 2004); and, with Laura Wong, of the chapter "Age-Structural Transition in Brazil: Demographic Bonuses and Emerging Challenges," in Age-Structural Transitions Challenges for Development (2006).

RENATA MORENO: Colombiana. Socióloga da Universidad del Valle e mestre em Ciências Sociais do CEPPAC-UnB. É professora e pesquisadora da Universidad del Valle en Cali, Colombia. Membro do grupo de pesquisa de Ação Coletiva da Faculdade de Ciências Sociais e Econômicas.

Autora do livro Los Hijos de una Revolución: estudio sociológico sobre la juventud habanera.

RAFAEL GUERREIRO OSORIO is a researcher at the International Policy Centre for Inclusive Growth, IPC-IG/UNDP, in Brasilia, Brazil. His recent publications include "Desigualdade racial e mobilidade social no Brasil: Um balanço das teorias" (in As políticas públicas e a desigualdade racial no Brasil: 120 anos após a abolição, 2008), and "Desigualdades raciais e de gênero no serviço público civil" (2006).

MARGARITA PALACIOS is a lecturer in the School of Psychosocial Studies at Birkbeck, University of London, and she previously held the DAAD Visiting Professorship at the Free University of Berlin. She graduated from the New School for Social Research, New York (2004). Her research focuses on violence and cultural change and her recent publications include the monograph Fantasy and Political Violence: The Meaning of Anti-Communism in Chile (2009).

HARRY ANTHONY PATRINOS is lead education economist at the World Bank. He specializes in the economics of education, school-based management, demand-side financing, and public-private partnerships, and he conducts research on the socioeconomic conditions of indigenous peoples. He is the coauthor of Indigenous Peoples, Poverty and Human Development in Latin America (2006) and Indigenous People and Poverty in Latin America: An Empirical Analysis (1994). He has many publications in the academic and policy literature, with more than forty journal articles.

MARCELA PERTICARA obtuvo su Ph.D. en economía de Texas A&M University en el año 2002. Desde este mismo año se desempeña como profesor asistente en la Facultad de Economía y Negocios de la Universidad Alberto Hurtado en Chile y como professorial lecturer in economics de Georgetown University, en Washington, D.C. En agosto del 2008 fue también designada directora de investigación y publicaciones de la Universidad Alberto Hurtado. Sus áreas de interés son economía laboral, en especial temas de género, pobreza y movilidad.

SONIA RANINCHESKI: Brasileira, Doutora em Sociologia. É professora e pesquisadora do CEPPAC-UnB. Desenvolve pesquisas sobre Estado, elites políticas e relações de trabalho na América Latina. É autora do livro As leis trabalhistas, o sistema partidário e os parlamentares no Brasil e no Uruguai: origens da questão social e organizadora do livro Américas (com) partilhadas.

RAFAEL PEREZ RIBAS is a doctoral student in economics at University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. He has worked in impact evaluations of social programs, such as Bolsa Família in Brazil, Tekopora in Paraguay, and Programa Subsídio de Alimentos in Mozambique.

CHRISTOPHER SCHMIDT-NOWARA is Magis Distinguished Professor of History, Fordham University. He is currently completing the book Slavery, Freedom, and Abolition in Latin American and the Atlantic World. He is also editing a special issue of Social History dedicated to Caribbean history.

His current research focuses on the Spanish intellectual and exile Joseph Blanco White.

ELIZABETH B. SILVA is professor of sociology at the Open University. Her publications include Technology, Culture, Family (2010), Cultural Analysis: Bourdieu's Legacy (coedited, 2010), Culture, Class, Distinction (coauthored, 2008), Contemporary Culture and Everyday Life (coedited, 2004), as well as various journal articles on cultural capital, household technologies, family life, gender, and qualitative methods. She researches on Britain and Brazil.

EMMANUEL SKOUFIAS is a lead economist at the World Bank, where he works on poverty and distributional issues in Latin America. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota, and he has published more than forty papers in various academic journals on the targeting of poverty alleviation programs, the welfare impacts of the Progres program in Mexico, the role of public transfers in redistributing income in Latin America, land tenancy, labor demand and supply, risk sharing, and household vulnerability.

FABIO VERAS SOARES is a researcher at the International Policy Centre for Inclusive Growth, IPC-IG/UNDP, and at the Institute for Applied Economic Research, in Brasilia, Brazil. He coordinates at IPC-IG the research area of Social Protection and Cash Transfer.

CHARLES H. WOOD is a member and former director (1996–2004) of the Center for Latin American Studies at the University of Florida in Gainesville. He is the author, with Marianne Schmink, of Contested Frontiers in Amazonia (1991) and Rethinking Development in Latin America, with Bryan Roberts (2005). His recent articles include "Time, Cycles and Tempos in Social-Ecological Research and Environmental Policy" (in Time and Society, 2008) and "The Stability of Census-Based Racial Classifications in Brazil," with José Alberto Magno de Carvalho and Flavia Andrade (in Population Studies, 2004).