THE CRUCIFIXION (Carlos Solórzano)
THE EVE OF THE EXECUTION, or GENESIS WAS TOMORROW (Jorge Díaz)

"Sound, intelligent, exciting, contemporary theatre . . .

"This is a fine collection of plays that not only represents good Latin American authors but also sound and effective theatre . . . The plays are all 'engaging' in one way or another. They should have production appeal . . . As a director I could make any of them work . . . and work well."

William I. Oliver, Stage Director and Professor of Theatre Arts
University of California, Berkeley

"Excellent . . . Intelligently and imaginatively selected and well translated. I enjoyed reading [the collection.] There is a good combination of well-established and not-so-well-known authors, which seems an advantage in this kind of anthology".

Margaret S. Peden, Professor of Latin American Drama

The book for people who don't go by the book.

Maxine Klein's TIME, SPACE, AND DESIGNS FOR ACTORS doesn't look like other books. It doesn't read like other books, either. In fact, it's not a book for reading at all. It's a book for doing.

TIME, SPACE, AND DESIGNS FOR ACTORS is over 200 concretely detailed experiential designs that cover every aspect of actor training. Most experiences follow a four-part sequence: a brief explanation of the acting principles to be experienced; a mental/physical preparation; one or more designs to implement the principles – performed in class with fellow actors; and a carrythrough section specifying ways that actors can practice the principles on their own. The instructor guides, counsels, and criticizes. Student actors innovate, experiment, and learn their craft by doing their craft.

If you think people don't learn to act by reading a book, then TIME, SPACE, AND DESIGNS FOR ACTORS is the book to go by.

POETRY & PLAYS

THE COMEDIES OF ARIOSTO

Translated, Edited, and with an Introduction by

Edmond M. Beame and Leonard G. Sbrocchi

The immense popularity and fame of Ariosto's masterpiece, Orlando Furioso, had tended to obscure the fact that the sixteenth-century poet was the initiator of Italian "erudite" or vernacular comedy. In this volume Edmond M. Beame and Leonard G. Sbrocchi provide the first English translation of all five of Ariosto's plays.

THE COMPLETE COMEDIES OF TERENCE

Modern Verse Translations

Palmer Bovie • Constance Carrier •
Douglass Parker

The six comedies of Terence—who in his short career became one of the masters of the Roman stage—have fortunately come down to us virtually intact. This first translation of them into modern English verse conveys all the vigor and flavor of the Latin. Each play differs from the others in manner, idea, logic of action, and psychology.

All are as playable now as when originally staged at Roman festivals, and just as captivating. All offer audiences “some new knowledge drawn from the vast reservoir of traditional human behavior. Terence’s genius lay in making sense of the complexities of human character, in fashioning this sense into honestly thought-out and well-spoken Latin poetry.”

—From the introduction by Palmer Bovie.

Donald Bruce

A brief, lively study of the Restoration comedies and their writers, this new book examines the historical background and origins of the comedies, as well as the general subject matter of the plays. The author assesses the leading writers—including Congreve, Wycherly, and Farquhar—and explores the content of their plays in relation to the mores of the period.

Published 1974 224 pages $9.95, clothbound

The Medieval Theatre

Glynne Wickham

Charting the genesis and development of dramatic art in Christian Europe, the author demonstrates how audiences, actors, and playmakers in the middle ages laid the foundations of a dramatic tradition that was to blossom in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries into a golden age of theatre.

THEATRE CRAFTS

shows you how.

So the show can go on.

Behind every great production an even greater production is holding the show together.

Whether it's Simon on Broadway. Or Shakespeare in Butte, Montana.

That's why there's THEATRE CRAFTS. For the "stars" whose costumes and scenery set Shaw's Inferno ablaze. Whose lighting brings out the best in Olivier. And whose direction keeps the freshman class from falling flat on its face.

How do they manage it?

Every other month they tell you exactly how in THEATRE CRAFTS. With diagrams and drawings. Candid, no-nonsense dialogue. And the best of the best from their decades of professional experience.

You'll find plenty of "how-to" information in articles on lighting, set design, make-up, costuming, movies, film and so much more!

And it's all yours. In the magazine that's all yours. THEATRE CRAFTS, especially written for the people who never take a curtain call.
