

What do Cindy Milstead and Colleen Dewhurst have in common?

An exceptional acting talent, for one thing—even though Cindy's name isn't exactly a household word. And an exceptional alma mater: The American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

Both of these women spent two tough, demanding years here, learning every skill it takes to become a true professional: from voice training and body movement to theater history and makeup.

One of them is now famous. The other one isn't—yet. But one thing is certain: both women have found the courage and the determination and the heart to become the best actresses they can possibly be.

If that's your goal, then you belong here too. At The American Academy.

DRAMA AND CRITICISM

The Bakkhai by Euripides

Translated with an introduction and notes by Robert Bagg

"Bagg's translation maintains all the force and visual immediacy of the original throughout the lengthy piece. . . . He has successfully translated one work of art into another, rendering living Greek into living English. The clarity of his poetry confronts the audience directly with the horror and stunning beauty of the Dionysiac forces"—The Garleton Miscellany. This translation has been or will be produced at the University of Utah, Yale University, and Smith College. $8.50 cloth; $3.95 paper

Black Drama of the Federal Theatre Era

Beyond the Formal Horizons E. Quita Craig

" . . . the first in-depth study of this experimental theater of the 1930's. Craig argues that this is a literature of 'dual communication'—with one level of language and meaning for white audiences and another for black—and shows these dramatists to have been the 'advance forces of black "consciousness" and "commitment".' . . . [A] valuable source on Afro-American art and American theater history"—Library Journal. $15.00 cloth

Modern Hebrew Drama Glenda Abramson

Although it is largely unknown in the West because of language difficulties, Hebrew drama has evolved into a remarkably rich and complex art form. In Modern Hebrew Drama Glenda Abramson traces the development of the genre from the play "He Walked the Fields," which inaugurated the "documentary" drama movement in 1948, to the radical and controversial plays now performed. She also analyzes the function of the critic, director and audience in the process of creating drama, the nature of "national" drama, and the particular problems facing Israeli dramatists today.

Department of Drama, Undergraduate

IS OFFERING AN ALTERNATIVE PROGRAM IN:

EXPERIMENTAL THEATRE

The Department of Drama, Undergraduate, which offers a B.F.A. degree in acting, is pleased to announce an alternative program of study with the Experimental Theatre Wing. A limited number of students will have the opportunity to work intimately with leading experimental theatre groups in a two-year program designed for students who have completed two years of foundation work with one of the three professional studios associated with our Department: Stella Adler Conservatory of Acting, Circle in the Square Theatre School, and The Lee Strasberg Theatre Institute. The ETW is also open to students who have studied acting elsewhere and who wish to transfer into our Department. Students in the ETW will work in unique acting, voice and movement workshops taught from the point of view of members from each of the following experimental theatre groups: The Performance Group (best known for explorations of audience participation and environmental theatre), The Ridiculous Theatrical Company (specializing in Commedia dell'arte), Mabou Mines (known for conceptual adaptations of Beckett and experiments with new music and movement), Chi-Kanji and original members of the Open Theater—each known for uniquely experimental approaches to ensemble acting. In addition to studying with the groups, students will be expected to take dramatic literature, theatre history (including studies in the avant-garde), and performance theory courses offered through the Department. The program also includes summer workshops with the Iowa Theater Lab and the Bread and Puppet Theater.

Since the nature of the groups involves frequent international tours, the order and availability of the groups varies each semester. For each year's schedule and further information contact:

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT!

Once upon a time theatre meant clowns and jesters, animals and acrobats. Today's theatre-goer wants food for thought, sophistication - and entertainment all wrapped up in one lively package.

In Scene Changes, you'll get all of these attractions. Nine times a year, the curtain goes up on intriguing features such as The Canadian Producer, Great Theatrical Getaways, Comedy Tonight! and Kid Actors. And in every issue, you can expect the most complete onstage calendar of Ontario theatrical events you'll find anywhere, the finest theatrical reviews, the most sparkling interviews with leading show business personalities and the best coverage of theatrical news items of the day.

We've kept our subscription rates low - only $8 for the first year and $6 for each additional year after that - to give you a savings of up to 40% off the regular newsstand price.

There's no business like show business. And with Scene Changes you'll always have aisle seats to the best entertainment package in town.

Is Shakespeare Our Contemporary?

How does one account for the fact that now, more than 350 years after his death, in every part of the globe, in virtually every language and culture, Shakespeare is still read, studied, and performed as a living playwright? This is the kind of question you will find addressed in the pages of Shakespeare Quarterly.

For more than a quarter of a century, Shakespeare Quarterly has been read and depended upon by Shakespearians the world over for such features as:

- articles interpreting the works in light of the intellectual, social, and artistic contexts in which they were produced;
- wide-ranging surveys of the full cultural impact of Shakespeare in today's world;
- informative reviews of the latest books and articles about Shakespeare and his age;
- an annual performance issue highlighting and evaluating the most important contemporary productions of Shakespeare;
- the unique, comprehensive, annotated World Shakespeare Bibliography;
- announcements and advertisements reflecting the most recent trends and developments in Shakespearean activity.

PERFORMANCE STUDIES

A New Approach To Performance Studies

Theatre changes. So do standards and methods of research, publication, teaching and employment. The Department of Performance Studies, which offers masters and doctoral research exclusively, regularly revises its curriculum to emphasize responsible study of the performing arts. It now offers new courses and concentration in these areas:

DANCE PERFORMANCE

Dance study, in the context of the performing arts, is designed for independent-minded dance scholars concerned to explore new methods of research which deal responsibly with present dance conditions and put the past in a useful perspective. Seminar courses are led by leading dance scholars and critics who organize study and discussion to cover particular figures, movements and periods. The area is expanding to provide increased doctoral concentration. Applicants should write the Chairman for full details and new course offerings.

POPULAR PERFORMANCE

Folk and popular entertainment (including modern media) have constituted a culturally and artistically vital alternative theatre. The need to study such forms is now emphasized by their influence on contemporary performance. This concentration studies the history of traditional forms, the relating of such practice to theatre history, and the place of folk and popular entertainment in contemporary performance.

PERFORMANCE THEORY

Theatre and social science scholars are increasingly concerned with the continuum from human action and ritual to formal performance in all societies. Extensive interdisciplinary study includes field work and theory that relate to concepts of social and theatrical performance, in the dimensions of ritual, public ceremony, and "life events." Courses are planned in the roots of art, liminality, and collective performance methods, as well as workshops in converging techniques of performance and therapy.

PERFORMANCE WRITING AND RESEARCH

Acquired knowledge in performing arts may be published in a variety of media. Research courses cover bibliography, archival documentation, textual study and interview methods, as well as description of performance practice. Applied courses emphasize editorial methods and standards for reviewing, criticism, features, scholarly articles, books and media.

CONTEMPORARY PERFORMANCE

Contemporary theatre has been shaped more significantly through performance theory and practice than through dramatic literature. Courses cover the practice, theory and methods, and institutional structure of contemporary performance in the fullest possible range, including commercial theatre, experimental and alternative theatre, and related study in dance and popular entertainment.

PERFORMING ARTS ARCHIVES

Research in performing arts extends beyond published materials. Archives and collections exist in theatre, dance, film, broadcasting, recording. Folk and popular entertainment require particular research and curatorial techniques, rarely available through graduate study. Professional instruction will be offered in the acquisition, cataloguing, and curatorial maintenance of performing arts collections.

recreating
reflecting theatre in performance*

The leading British theatre journal since 1971, Theatre Quarterly enters its second decade with a new format and even wider coverage of theatre in performance, past and present, experimental and mainstream, worldwide.

All current and new subscribers will receive our specially enlarged tenth birthday issue, TQ41, which will provide a unique, authoritative retrospect of the past decade of British theatre by leading theatre writers and critics — and a prospect for the next.

Other issues for the coming year will include TQ's usual wide range of interviews, company and production logbooks, critical analysis, documentation, and reference material — on all the live performing arts from mime to melodrama, from the classics to the clubs.

Theatre Quarterly never goes out-of-date — but several issues are almost out-of-print. So, as a special birthday opportunity, we are offering complete sets of back numbers, as well as special offers on other TQ Publications, for a limited period to subscribers only.

Annual subscriptions (including detailed annual index) cost only $25.00 for individuals, $40.00 for institutions. Or send $5.00 for a specimen issue and catalogue of all TQ publications to:

The School of the Arts Announces a New Program in Dramatic Writing.

Beginning in the fall of 1980, dramatic writing will take its place along with film, television, and drama as a major course of study in the School of the Arts at New York University.

The dramatic text is enjoying a resurgence of interest. An increasing demand for new writers has encouraged the School to design this specialized curriculum focused on the writer's skills, problems, and opportunities.

A unique advantage for the writer is the closeness of this new program to the School's established programs in performance and production. Participation in production is a vital part of the writing curriculum. Ample opportunity exists to develop works in progress in staged readings and on videotape as well as on the page.

In the School of the Arts tradition, all faculty members are active, working professionals—writers, producers, and editors. Students will also have the benefit of advice, counsel, and criticism from distinguished members of New York's artistic community.

A limited number of students will be accepted in both the Bachelor of Fine Arts and Master of Fine Arts programs. For more information, return the coupon below or call (212) 598-3722.
