Language Learning and Communication

A journal of applied linguistics in Chinese and English

Editors

Dr. Cheung Yat-shing, Chinese University, Hong Kong
Dr. Jack Croft Richards, University of Hawaii

This bilingual journal provides a forum for the exchange of ideas and experiences among Chinese and Western scholars of language and language education. It explores the teaching and learning of the Chinese and English languages in China, as well as in areas such as Hong Kong and Southeast Asia where there is a strong tradition of Chinese culture in education.

Language Learning and Communication reflects a balance between articles dealing with practical issues in language teaching and more exploratory papers which highlight theoretical insights from disciplines such as linguistics, sociolinguistics, and psycholinguistics.

Articles appear in either Chinese or English, along with abstracts of each article in the other language; some articles are printed in both languages.

Topics include: descriptions of Chinese or English relevant to learning and teaching; comparative studies of language and cultural environment; teaching methods; curriculum policies; classroom and laboratory techniques; and the design and evaluation of instruction programs and materials.

Language Learning and Communication is published three times yearly. Annual subscriptions are $40.

Cambridge Journals on Linguistics

Applied Psycholinguistics

A new international journal whose scope encompasses work both on normal and on disordered language and communicative functioning and development in adults and children. In addition to full length articles and shorter notes, a special feature of Applied Psycholinguistics is the Editor's Overview which serves an integrative function and helps readers keep abreast of major trends in the field.

Journal of Child Language

The journal publishes material on all aspects of the scientific study of language behaviour in children and the principles which underlie it. In addition to articles and book reviews, the journal contains a Notes and Discussion section, and from time to time an Observations section with short pieces of data illustrating points of general theoretical interest.

Journal of Linguistics

The Journal of Linguistics is published on behalf of the Linguistics Association of Great Britain. It is concerned with all branches of linguistics, including phonetics. Preference is given to articles of general theoretical interest, but the journal covers as wide a field as possible, and includes articles on a variety of languages, as well as book reviews and a section devoted to comment arising from recent articles.

Language in Society

An international journal of sociolinguistics concerned with all branches of the study of speech and language as aspects of social life. In addition to original articles, the journal publishes book reviews, brief accounts of work in progress, and notes and comments on points arising out of recent publications.

*The British Council and
The Centre for Information on Language Teaching & Research (CILT)*
Joint Language Teaching Library

The British Council and CILT jointly maintain the Language-Teaching Library at 20 Carlton House Terrace, London SW1Y 5AP. The library contains over 25,000 volumes and subscribes to some 400 periodicals, including those from which the articles abstracted in this journal are taken. All articles abstracted may be consulted in the library (open 0930–1730, Monday–Friday). (Requests for photocopies – see preface.) The library also compiles specialised bibliographies on various aspects of language teaching and research, and stocks British Council and CILT publications. It has extensive holdings of published courses and teaching materials with facilities for hearing and viewing non-book components. A register of research relevant to language teaching is available for reference.

Language Teaching

The international abstracting journal for language teachers and applied linguists

Language Teaching and Linguistics: Abstracts is changing its name from 1982 to Language Teaching to emphasise its function as an indispensable tool for everyone concerned with the teaching and learning of foreign languages. It will maintain the following important features which have made it such a popular publication:

- * articles from nearly 400 journals from all parts of the world are selected and abstracted by experts
- * it offers comprehensive cover of the field for its readers in a compact and inexpensive form so that practising teachers, teacher trainers, applied linguists, students, research workers, writers and educational administrators can keep up to date with a minimum expenditure of time and money
- * it encourages cross-fertilisation of ideas between those concerned with the teaching of different foreign languages (e.g. French, English, German) as well as between practising teachers, applied linguists and educational researchers
- * it makes international experience published in many languages accessible to an English-reading audience
- * information about good practice in classroom teaching and effective language learning as well as the latest research findings
- * sources of further information for in-depth study in the form of bibliographies on particular topics and annotations of recent publications
- * details of research projects in various countries

Published Quarterly

Changes from 1982 include:

- * 20% greater coverage
- * greater emphasis on teaching methods and materials
- * as a special feature, a state-of-the-art survey article on a major subject in language teaching in every issue
- * subject and author indexes in every issue
- * full list of periodicals scanned in every January issue
