LAW IN AFRICA SERIES

Nigerian Law of Landlord and Tenant

No. 12

M. OBUMNEME ONWUAMAEGBU, B.A., LL.M., PH.D.(Lond.),
*of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law,
Solicitor and Advocate of the Supreme Court of Nigeria*

This is the first book on the Nigerian law of landlord and tenant. Beginning with a historical sketch and a description of the Courts which operate these laws, the book deals with the land laws general, and analyses the special relationship which exists between landlord and tenant, as compared with other similar relationships. The author then gives an account of the usual methods of creating tenancies and examines the scope of the grant, the duties of landlords and tenants, the termination of tenancies, and restrictions imposed upon landlords similar to the English Rent Acts. He concludes with a chapter on succession to the rights and duties of the parties.

Family Property among The Yorubas

No. 14

G. B. A. COKER, PH.D., LL.M.,
of Gray's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, Justice, Supreme Court of Nigeria

SECOND EDITION

The Yorubas comprise one of the largest ethnic groups in Nigeria so that their customs in respect of family property are of great importance to practitioners and students in that country. In this book, after an introduction and a discussion of the basic principles of land tenure, the author deals with immovable and movable property, and the creation and determination of rights and restrictions, both in general terms and how they affect special categories of persons such as chiefs, women, minors, etc. Particular kinds of family property are next dealt with, and there follows a discussion of testate succession, devolution by marriage and conveyancing practice and procedure.

BORSTAL RE-ASSESSED

Roger Hood

To what extent is borstal failing? Are the optimistic ideals and system pioneered by Alexander Paterson in the 1930s outmoded? Does the changing pattern of juvenile delinquency—let alone the startling increase in the post-borstal reconviction rate—call for an approach that is radically different? Such questions emerge from this, the first searching major survey of the borstal system to be published. 42s

MURDER FOLLOWED BY SUICIDE

D. J. West

The subject of this monograph is not as recondite as its title might suggest, because for every three murders committed in this country one is followed by the murderer's suicide. In this brilliant analysis of a 150 cases, Dr West concludes that by no means all murder-suicide offenders are insane, or even recognizable as psychiatric cases, but that many of those who are, might be prevented from killing. 35s

SALE OF GOODS

G. H. L. FRIDMAN

B.C.L., M.A.(Oxon), LL.M.(Adelaide)

*Of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law,
Reader in Law in the University of Sheffield*

This is an entirely new students' textbook on the present English law relating to the contract of sale of goods. Its aim is to present, in a logical narrative, and therefore eminently readable form, a straightforward but reasonably detailed and critical account of the law, rather than a section by section commentary on the Sale of Goods Act.

Part I discusses the definition of the contract of sale of goods, distinguishing it from other contracts, explains how such a contract may be made, considers the meaning and different types of "goods" to which this part of the law relates, and describes the effect of a contract of sale. Part II is concerned with the passing of property in goods and the problem of title to goods, having regard to the provisions of the relevant statutes. In Part III various contractual effects of the contract of sale of goods are discussed. These include obligations relating to the character and quality of goods sold, and the duties of delivery, acceptance and payment. The effect of frustration and the notion of risk are also dealt with under these headings. Part IV is concerned with remedies. These include rights of lien, stoppage in transitu and resale, actions for the price and for damages, specific performance, and actions by and against third parties. Throughout, valuable comparisons are made between the English law and the American Uniform Commercial Code.

For the student who wants to pursue his researches the foot-notes carry references to other books and articles. For this reason, for the fresh approach and for the clarity and authority of its text, this book will be welcomed by teachers and students of the subjects at all levels of study.

BRITISH DIGEST OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

Compiled principally from the Archives of the Foreign Office

Editor: Clive Parry, LL.D.

Consulting Editor: Sir Gerald Fitzmaurice, G.C.M.G., Q.C.

*Published under the auspices of the
INTERNATIONAL LAW FUND*

FIRST PUBLISHED VOLUMES

This authoritative and comprehensive work is of the greatest importance to lawyers, to all in legal teaching and research institutions, and especially to law libraries.

To compile the British Digest editors have collected, from Foreign Office and numerous other official sources, every document relevant to the correct presentation of any point of law. It is in this investigating, analysing, and synthesising process that the particular value of the work lies, for the British Digest makes public and accessible for the first time a very great amount of important material. Appendixes in each volume contain texts of legislation and each volume is fully indexed.

The work is divided into two Phases: 1860–1914 and 1914–1960. This division applies, however, only to strictly archival material and in Phase One, every care is taken to incorporate changes and developments, many recent statutes and decided cases. Phase One will comprise ten Parts in ten Volumes. Parts yet to be published include treatment of introductory matters, international persons, territory, jurisdiction, the responsibility of states, treaties, settlements and disputes, war and neutrality. Phase One will be complete by 1968 and will be followed by Phase Two.

Particular care has been taken in the design and production of the British Digest which is printed and bound to the highest standards. A full detailed brochure is available free on application.
