Advice to contributors

Polar Record publishes original articles (2000 to 8000 words) and notes (usually less than 2000 words) of current and historic polar interest. Manuscripts, maps, and photographs are accepted on the understanding that they are original, do not infringe copyright, and are not currently being offered elsewhere. Receipt is acknowledged; manuscripts are submitted to referees and any rejected will normally be returned to the author within six to eight weeks. Where the subject matter is appropriate, the Editor is usually prepared to advise authors on ways of making their material acceptable.

Presentation

Typescripts should be double-spaced with 3 cm margins, on one side only of A4 or similar paper. Send three copies and keep one for reference. Give name, affiliation, and address of each author on the title page, noting with whom the Editor should correspond. Follow the style of articles and notes in the most recent issue of Polar Record.

Articles should start with an abstract of 150–250 words and a table of major headings; secondary and tertiary headings are not listed. Indicate in margins where tables and illustrations fit. Footnotes are discouraged; places where they are considered essential are marked in text with a superscript number, and the footnotes are listed at the end before the References.

Notes are short articles, generally of less than 2000 words. They do not require an abstract or table of headings, but either the first or the final paragraph should summarize the content.

References (essential ones only, please) are cited in text; full references appear in the listing under References at the end; for forms of citations and references see the most recent issue of Polar Record. Authors alone are responsible for the accuracy of their references. References to privately printed or other unpublished reports and data are not accepted unless copies of the material are freely available from a named library or similar repository.

Tables should be kept as simple as possible and typed on separate sheets. They will normally be fitted across the single- or double-column page, only exceptionally lengthwise.

Illustrations. Drawings, maps and diagrams must be of professional standard, with lettering and numbers pencilled in clearly. Authors may be charged for re-drawing if an illustration is inadequate. They should if possible allow for about one-third reduction in width to fit a column (7.8 cm) or page (16.4 cm). Photographs (black and white only) that add substantially to the material are welcome. Glossy prints with high contrast, about one-third oversize, generally reproduce well.

Contributions on disc

The Editor welcomes contributions on floppy discs. The most suitable format is Apple Macintosh 3.5" disc. Output from a wide variety of word processing packages can be accepted, but in case of doubt, a Microsoft Word-compatible document should be produced. Diagrams also can be transferred on Macintosh discs. Discs from other microcomputers may be acceptable if the text is in the form of an ASCII file, with no word processing codes. TAB characters are acceptable. Currently, Polar Record can accept discs from Acorn BBC and Torch microcomputers, Amstrad PCW series microcomputers and IBM PC compatible machines (3.5" discs). If in doubt, please consult the Editor.
