Vol. 2: The West from the Fathers to the Reformation

Edited by G. W. H. LAMPE

The Cambridge History of the Bible treats the Bible as the central document of Western civilization: a source of doctrine and of Church government, and an influence on education, on the growth of scholarship, and on art and literature, as well as on the liturgy and life of the Church. This volume covers the period from Jerome and the Fathers to the time of Erasmus.

Understanding the Apocalypse

Wilfrid Harrington, noted scholar and author, applies his well-known method of scriptural analysis to the Book of Revelation. He begins with a discussion of the authorship of the work, its literary form, the purpose of the book and its plan and interpretation. Next is a study of the doctrines that appear in the work and an appreciation of the relevance of the Apocalypse to contemporary Christian living. Following this is a verse by verse commentary on the text.

Synopticon

The Verbal Agreement between the Greek Texts of Matthew, Mark and Luke Contextually Exhibited

Edited by WILLIAM R. FARMER

An objective reference work for synoptic studies. The book includes the Greek text of the Gospels Matthew, Mark and Luke with coloured indications showing how passages in each Gospel correspond with passages in the others. Different colours show where words occurring in the same context are identical, where they occur in exactly the same sequence, and where the words are not the same but different forms of the same root. This enables the user to see at a glance the extent of verbal agreement between any two or three of the Synoptics. £10 net
