INSTITUTE NOTES

OBJECTS OF THE INSTITUTE

The Royal Institute of Philosophy was founded in order to promote the study of philosophy within the Universities and other educational institutions and also among the educated public generally. It pursues its aim by

- (1) Organizing courses of lectures;
- (2) Providing those of its members who wish for it with advice on philosophical reading;
- (3) Publishing a quarterly journal, PHILOSOPHY, in which philosophical problems are discussed and new books reviewed.

Philosophy is a group of studies rather than a single one, and it has been pursued by different methods at different times. The Royal Institute of Philosophy interprets the term in a wide sense, so as to include ethics, aesthetics, metaphysics, the philosophy of religion, logic and the philosophy of science, the philosophy of history, political and social philosophy, and the philosophy of mind, and is not committed to any single school or method. The specialization which has taken place between the sciences and within them has made it desirable for scientists and philosophers to consider, from time to time, the relationships of the sciences to one another and to other aspects of human endeavour. Developments in psychology, psychiatry and social anthropology raise not only scientific and logical problems but also appear relevant to the ways in which men think about religion, morality and law, so that there is a constant need for unprejudiced and detailed inquiry into the precise points at which these developments are relevant and into the consequences which ought to be drawn. It is constantly desirable, too, that there be a renewal of our thinking on the questions of freedom and equality, authority and criticism, tradition and progress, which form the subject-matter of political philosophy. Persisting throughout all social changes is the deep-rooted metaphysical interest in the nature of the soul, its relation to material things, the origin of the world and the place of man in it—problems summed up by Kant as concerned with "God, freedom and immortality".

It is the object of The Royal Institute of Philosophy to provide a forum for the rational discussion of these and similar questions. This requires strenuous thinking, but it is hoped that the services which the Institute provides, and particularly the existence of a journal in which such thinking is carried out in language as free from technicalities as the nature of the subject allows, will help to maintain standards of intellectual appreciation and satisfy a cultural need.

The annual subscription to the Institute is £1 10s. Members receive the Institute's Journal, PHILOSOPHY, published quarterly, and may, of course, attend the Lectures.

ASSOCIATE MEMBERSHIP

Full-time students applying for election are eligible for Associate Membership which carries all the privileges of full Membership save that of participating in the government of the Institute. The period during which a student may enjoy Associate Membership is limited to three years, and the subscription is at the much reduced rate of 8s. 6d. per annum.

CENTRES

Local centres of the Institute have been established at Bangor and Newcastle. The Newcastle Branch holds six discussion meetings a year. Any member who is interested should get in touch with Colin Strang, Dept. of Philosophy, King's College, Newcastle on Tyne 1.

Forms of application for membership may be had on application to the Assistant Secretary at 14 Gordon Square, W.C.1.

Pictorial History of Philosophy

BY DAGOBERT RUNES

With nearly 1,000 stunning portraits, photographs and drawings, dozens of reproductions of paintings, statues and art works relating to the great thinkers—assembled for the first time in one volume—illuminating their times, the societies they grew up in, and the important figures who influenced their lives.

It represents every school of philosophy, providing a complete survey in text and illustration of the Western mind and the thought and religions of India, China, Russia, Japan and other countries of the Middle and the Far East. Each nation or group of nations is treated in a separate section, emphasizing its basic traditions and the continuity of its thought. Both the contributions of the individual philosophers and great storehouses of religious thought are discussed including the Talmud, the Old and New Testaments, the Upanishads, the Vedas and the Yogasutras. In addition, the basic philosophies of men who were primarily known as writers, military leaders and statesmen are analysed.

A range as broad as man's thought through the ages

Here is the diversity of thought that mirrors the great time span, the widely differing heritages, and the sharply contrasting personalities that make up world history. From Epicurus to Albert Schweitzer, from Shankara to Gandhi and Tagore . . . from Moses and Solomon to Spinoza, this is the book that extends as far as the boundaries of man's thinking.

A publishing event of major importance

INTERNATIONAL LIBRARY OF PHILOSOPHY AND SCIENTIFIC METHOD

Edited by A. J. AYER

Wykeham Professor of Logic, Oxford University

The revival of a famous series in this new form is a publishing event of major importance. The Editor writes:—

“As editor of Routledge and Kegan Paul’s new International Library of Philosophy, I hope to maintain the high standard which was set by C. K. Ogden’s editorship of the same publisher’s International Library of Psychology, Philosophy and Scientific Method. This new series will differ from its predecessor in that it will not comprise psychology. On the other hand, it is intended to cover the whole range of philosophical studies, including the history of philosophy and the philosophy of science.

The series will be genuinely international. Besides representing the main trends in contemporary Anglo-Saxon philosophy, it will also include translations of important foreign work. It will reflect a wide variety of standpoints: phenomenology and Marxism, as well as pragmatism and linguistic analysis. The editorial policy will be to publish work of merit, irrespective of the school of philosophy to which it belongs.”

PHILOTHEUS BOEHNER OFM

The selection contained in this volume gives a balanced introductory view of Ockham's writings on logic, metaphysics and ethics. ## Practical Reason and Morality

A Study of Immanuel Kant's Foundations for the Metaphysics of Morals

A. R. C. DUNCAN

The present author examines afresh and in detail the contents of the Foundations for the Metaphysics of Morals and shows that it is not, as has hitherto been mistakenly assumed, an ethical treatise but is what it claims to be—the foundations for a metaphysics of morals, a critique of practical reason, written by the man who had already produced the Critique of Pure Reason.
