Mathematical Models for the Growth of Human Populations

J. H. POLLARD

This book is an account of some of the more important models which have been proposed for studying the growth of human populations, with particular emphasis on stochastic models. It draws together the theoretical analysis of the mathematician and the practical problems and devices of the actuary. Exercises are set at the end of each chapter and brief solutions appear at the back of the book.

'... an informative and concise monograph on population models applicable not only to human, but also to some animal populations. The book should prove of great value to biological and social scientists, as well as demographers and mathematicians.'

The International Journal for the Sociology of Law is successor to the International Journal of Criminology and Penology. Over recent years sociologists of crime and deviance have come to realise that their work must be enriched by placing it in the broader context of the study of social control. The new journal links this concern with the rapidly developing fields of the sociology and anthropology of law.

Contributions to Volume 7 will include:

Kit Carson: Early factory crime

Jason Ditton: Part-time theft

Sally Falk Moore: Max Gluckman

Femi Odekunle: Nigeria police force

Rogelio Perez-Perdomo: Lawyers and politics in Venezuela

The Netherlands Journal of Sociology

Sociologia Neerlandica

Managing Editor: G. TEITLER, Erasmus University, Rotterdam, the Netherlands.

Sociology in the Netherlands between the two world wars was often criticised for keeping to itself and for generally showing little interest in intellectual discussion with other countries. During the last three decades there has been a dramatic shift, and sociology in the Netherlands has now taken a place in Western sociology equal to that of France, Scandinavia and America. Strongly oriented as it is to present-day problems, Dutch sociology has lately shown an unprecedented desire to take part in international discussion of these problems, and, whenever possible, to make a worthwhile contribution to that discussion. This journal aims to provide colleagues and other interested people all over the world with a balanced view of developments occurring in the Netherlands and present the results of research which deserves wider international recognition.

Some recent articles:

Welfare State and Welfare Society: The Dutch Experience
Jacques van Doorn

Age, Cohort and Period: A General Model for the Analysis of Social Change
Jacques Hagenaars and Niko Cobben

The Dutch Electoral System in Comparative Perspective: Extreme Proportional Representation, Multipartism, and the Failure of Electoral Reform

Quality & Quantity is an interdisciplinary journal which systematically correlates disciplines such as mathematics and statistics with those of the social sciences, particularly sociology, economics and social psychology. The journal constitutes a major point of reference for all European and non-European scholars wishing to discuss instruments of methodology for more rigorous scientific research in the social sciences.

Some recently published articles:

Latent Probability Models with Direct Effects between Indicators (J. A. Hagenaars).
What Weight should Weights have in Individual Differences Scaling? (I. Borg and C. Lingoes).
Away from a General Model of Mass Political Violence: Evaluating Hibbs (D. Sanders).
Potentials and Pitfalls of Path Analysis: A Tutorial Summary (M. K. Miller).
The Derivation of Goodman's Model from a Continuous Stationary Markov-Process (B. Schmeikal).
Spectral Decomposition of Economic Time Series by the Method of Eigenvectors (A. Basilevsky).
