A Personal View of Man in America

By GEORGE F. CARTER

Our knowledge of the hundred-thousand-year prehistory of man in the Americas has grown in spite of false starts and disciplinary straitjackets. George F. Carter has for forty years been at the forefront of the controversy over the length of American antiquity, arguing for greater age than the mainstream has believed. Here he tells the story of that controversy and of the fascinating unraveling of the record of man's American presence. He describes some key early sites and explores the problem of recognizing artifacts. He weaves together evidence from various disciplines to consider the passage of primitive men through the icy Bering regions, their probable origins, and their cultures. 400 pp. 54 illus. $19.95

NORTH AMERICAN ARCHAEOLOGIST

A new journal from the publishers of Abstracts in Anthropology

The only general journal dedicated solely to North America, with total coverage of archaeological activity in the USA, Canada, and Northern Mexico, surveys all aspects of prehistoric and historical archaeology within an evolutionary perspective. It will incorporate the results of Cultural Resource Management and work within state and regional societies along with the more traditional academic-museum research activities.

Current Titles in Archaeology From

PREHISTORY OF THE EASTERN SAHARA

By FRED WENDORF and ROMUALD SCHILD

A Volume in the STUDIES IN ARCHAEOLOGY Series

FROM THE PREFACE: This book describes the major results of a long-term multi-disciplinary study of the Pleistocene and Early Holocene environments of the Western Desert of Egypt and the human exploitation of these environments. The area studied is today one of the driest and least hospitable on earth, with virtually no rainfall, extremely high temperatures during much of the year, and seemingly devoid of all life except near widely scattered wells or oases.

Following a brief description of the research methods and the modern environment, the main body of the book is concerned with the presentation of data from five widely separated localities. For each locality the lithostratigraphic sequence is given first, followed by a detailed consideration of the associated archaeology. These data are then used to reconstruct both the environmental sequence of the Western Desert and the pattern of human exploitation of the area, and to compare these with data available from elsewhere in North Africa.

FLORIDA ARCHAEOLOGY

By JERALD T. MILANICH and CHARLES H. FAIRBANKS

A Volume in the NEW WORLD ARCHAEOLOGICAL RECORD Series

Florida Archaeology traces the evolution of the Florida aborigines from 10,000 B.C. to the 1750s and recounts the archaeology of the Florida Seminole Indians.

The authors evaluate the history of archaeological research and early ethnographic documentation in the state, the natural and cultural areas, and the early hunters and gatherers of the Paleo-Indian and Archaic periods. Then they describe the later cultures and peoples—including Deptford, Swift Creek, Weeden Island, and the peoples of east and central Florida, north central Florida, and the Lake Okeechobee Basin—and discuss Mississippian period and historic period groups and their cultural and natural environments. Many of the early Indian artifacts are described and illustrated.

ADVANCES IN ARCHAEOLOGICAL METHOD AND THEORY

Edited by MICHAEL B. SCHIFFER

FROM THE REVIEWS: "An important vehicle for reporting progress in archaeological method and theory. . . ."

"An impressive and informative set of papers. The discussions appear to be quite up-to-date, verging on the fine edge between what is known and what is not. The target audiences of Advances are advanced undergraduates, graduate students, and professionals, the latter striving to keep abreast of a rapidly changing field. All of these groups should be well served by this fine series."—Albert C. Goodyear in ARCHAEOLOGY

The Palenque Round Table Series Volume V

THIRD PALENQUE ROUND TABLE, 1978
PART 2

Edited by Merle Greene Robertson

The four previous volumes published as a result of the Palenque Round Tables have become essential tools for all serious students of the ancient Maya. With Volume V, the second publication to emerge from the 1978 meeting, the University of Texas Press assumes publication of the series.

This particular volume emphasizes art, architecture, hieroglyphic decipherment, and mythology; regionally, Bonampak and Palenque are prominent; illustrated in detail with line drawings and photographs.

200 pp., 3 color and 132 b&w photos, 97 line drawings, 1 map, $30.00

Mexican Masks

By Donald Cordry

This magnificent book preserves the crucial link to Mexico's past represented by Indian ritual dance masks. It contains a wealth of information about mask-making and mask use, describing materials and techniques, regional and ethnic variations, and shamanistic, symbolic, and social functions. Each of the hundreds of illustrations is accompanied by a detailed description.

304 pp., 201 color and 84 b&w plates, 28 line drawings, 2 maps, $39.95

In the Land of the Olmec

VOLUME 1. THE ARCHAEOLOGY OF SAN LORENZO TENOCHTITLÁN

VOLUME 2. THE PEOPLE OF THE RIVER

By Michael D. Coe and Richard A. Diehl

In the Land of the Olmec presents the results of a large-scale expedition to explore the age and nature of the Olmec, Mesoamerica's first complex society. Reports on landscape, excavations, magnetometry, ceramics, lithics, monuments, faunal remains, radiocarbon samples, and petrography in volume 1 provide data to begin to explain why and how Olmec civilization first arose here. Volume 2 presents one of the most detailed investigations yet carried out of human adaptation to the New World tropics.

640 pp., 1575 line drawings, 19 color plates, 327 b&w photos, 14 maps, 68 tables, $80.00 boxed set

Skywatchers of Ancient Mexico

By Anthony F. Aveni

Combining as it does the romance of space with the mystery of the past, the study of pre-Columbian skywatchers of the New World has drawn increasing scientific and popular attention in recent years. Aveni, one of the pioneers in the emerging interdisciplinary field of archaeoastronomy, couples basic astronomy with archaeological and ethnological data to synthesize what is known of ancient astronomy in this hemisphere.

An Inside View of Southwestern Archaeology

by Marc Gaede, photographer; Marnie Gaede, editor; and thirteen contributing authors.

Pecos, Kiet Siel, Awatovi, Mesa Verde ... the spirit of these and ten other significant Southwestern archaeological sites is now captured as it's never been before. Recollections of the people who worked these digs are juxtaposed with a series of 46 magnificent full-page photographs in a truly one-of-a-kind book. These reminiscences testify that an archaeologist's life is not confined to digging and cataloging, but also encompasses camaraderie, adventure, and a sense of inquiry that is as much humanistic as it is scientific.

The Special Publications Committee of the SAA invites proposals for SAA Papers III. Detailed proposals or queries should be addressed to Dr. Dena F. Dincauze, Department of Anthropology, Machmer Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, MA 01002. The Committee will accept proposals for either edited or individually authored monographs. Further details regarding the submission of proposals will be published in the future.

MODELS AND METHODS IN REGIONAL EXCHANGE

The Society for American Archaeology introduces the first volume of its special publication series, SAA Papers. SAA Papers I provides an in-depth study of intraregional exchange of ceramics in Mesoamerica and the American Southwest. The eight papers in this volume address three common themes: the approaches and techniques useful in discriminating different production centers; the characterization of the structure of localized exchange systems; and the strategies used by local communities and social groups. Two commentaries offer critical perspectives on the approaches covered in the papers.

Editor Robert E. Fry says about this first volume in the series: "The 'whole' . . . is greater than the sum of its component parts."

The volume includes papers by: Robert L. Rands and Ronald L. Bishop; Ronald L. Bishop; Prudence M. Rice; Lawrence P. Allen; H. Wolcott Toll, Thomas C. Windes, and Peter J. McKenna; Haree L. Deutchman; Stephen Plog; Robert E. Fry.

Commentaries are contributed by Dean E. Arnold and Ian Hodder.
