PEARLS OF THE FAITH;

OR, ISLAM'S ROSARY.

Being the Ninety-nine Beautiful Names of Allah (Asmâ-el-Husnâ).

With Comments in Verse from various Oriental sources as made by an Indian Mussulman:

By EDWIN ARNOLD, M.A., C.S.I.,

Author of "The Light of Asia," &c., &c.

"Allah hath most excellent names; therefore call upon Him by the same."—KORAN, Ch. 7,
"Al Aarâf."

EXTRACT FROM PREFACE:—It is a custom of pious Muslims to employ in their devotions a three-stringed chaplet, each string containing thirty-three beads, and each bead representing one of the "Ninety-nine beautiful names of Allah," whenever this, among many other religious uses, is made of it. I have enumerated these ninety-nine "beautiful names" and appended to each—from the point of view of an Indian Muhammedan—some illustrative legend, tradition, record, or comment, drawn from diverse Oriental sources. . . . In this way it seemed possible to present the general spirit of Islam under a new and not unacceptable form. . . . I have thus at length finished the Oriental Trilogy which I designed. In my "Indian Song of Songs" I sought to transfer to English poetry a subtle and lovely sanskrit idyll of the Hindu theology. In my "Light of Asia" I related the story, displayed the gentle and far reaching doctrines of that great Hindoo prince who founded Buddhism. I have tried to present here, in the simple, familiar, and credulous, but earnest spirit and manner of Islam—and from its own points of view—some of the thoughts and beliefs of the followers of the notable prophet of Arabia."

EMERSON AT HOME AND ABROAD.By MONCURE D. CONWAY,

Author of "The Sacred Anthology," "The Wandering Jew," "Thomas Carlyle," &c.

PROFESSOR TYNDALL.—"The loftiest, purest, and most penetrating spirit that had ever shone in American literature."

THE ST. JAMES'S GAZETTE.—"Almost all Americans appear to be agreed that Emerson holds the foremost place in the history of their national literature. . . . For more than thirty years Mr. Conway was intimately acquainted with Emerson, from whom in truth he received much kindness; and he has been able to record in a clear and attractive style his recollections of his friend's character and modes of thought as they revealed themselves at different periods in daily intercourse. Mr. Conway has not, however, confined himself to personal reminiscences: he brings together all the important facts of Emerson's life, and presents a full account of his governing ideas—indicating their mutual relations, and tracing the processes by which Emerson gradually arrived at them in their mature form."

THE NATIONAL REFORMER.—"We have this volume of tribute to the dead from the sympathetic and practised pen of Moncure D. Conway. If we cannot make our readers eager to read this book it will not be for want of will; we have friendly feeling for the author, and reverent admiration for his subject."

THE SPECTATOR.—"Mr. St. George Stock, an accomplished Oxonian, who believes, though not without having found many cases of imposture, in those manifestations of invisible agents which are classed generally under the head of modern Spiritualism, has just published a book, called 'Attempts at Truth,' which invents for sceptics a new horror, a horror such as the scepticism of ancient times hardly ever conceived. A great many thinkers have contended that while there is the most absolute proof of the existence of a spiritually perfect God, there is no proof whatever of the continued existence after death of human beings. A great many have contended that there is proof of both—the existence of a spiritually perfect God and the continued existence after death of the beings whom He created in His own image. But it has been reserved for modern times to invent the horrible creed that while there is the most convincing evidence that human beings survive death—and cannot, whether they will or not, help surviving death—the belief in the spiritually perfect God, or in any God who deserves the love and trust of human beings, is not only a guess in the dark, but a guess in the dark decidedly inconsistent with all the convergent lines of our actual knowledge."

EXTRACT FROM THE PREFACE.—Amongst ideas, that of the Devil may rank as one which has taken a powerful hold on the mind of man. The present volume is directed to an examination of some of the many causes which have contributed to the construction of the ideal Devil.

It is difficu't to discriminate with accuracy all the links which have formed the direct lines of descent, as each link in its turn has been a centre of radiation, a point of departure for other conceptions. It has been necessary to examine some of these collateral branches, in order to illustrate the process of divergence and point out some of the collateral relationships; and indeed the temptation to digress is great. But this has been done as little as possible, the object being, not to dogmatise on the result, but to examine the origin of a single but complex ideal, and the stages by which the result is connected with the original germs.

The Devil treated of is the modern orthodox Devil of Christian Belief. No attempt is therefore made to discuss the ideals and personifications of evil realized by other creeds, except so far as light may seem to be thrown on the history of the Christian Devil.

As to the conclusions to which the facts may point, it is for each to form his own opinion. The existence or non-existence of the Devil, his personality or abstract existence, are not the questions treated of in the pages of this work. An ideal of the Devil has existed and still exists, and the only object is to trace the origin and evolution of that ideal.

STRUCTURE OF CHINESE CHARACTERS,
UNDER 300 PRIMARY FORMS;

AFTER THE SHWOH-WAN, 100 A.D., AND THE PHONETIC SHWOH-WAN, 1833.

By JOHN CHALMERS, M.A., LL.D., A.B.

To the majority of students of Chinese, whether they be natives or foreigners, eight or nine-tenths of the characters in the language are nothing more than conventional signs, having no resemblance to the things or natural association with the ideas which they represent. The main object of this work is to point out the original resemblance of the characters to things, and explain the uses of the several parts.

THE TIMES OF INDIA.—"We part from Dr. Hunter with much respect for the care and trouble he has taken in writing this small manual. We consider it to be far the best manual of Indian History that has hitherto been published, and quite equal to any of the Historical Series for Schools edited by Dr. Freeman. We trust that it will soon be read in all the schools in this Presidency."

AN INDEX TO PERIODICAL LITERATURE.

By WILLIAM FREDERICK POOLE, LL.D.,

Librarian of the Chicago Public Library.

THIRD EDITION, brought down to January, 1882.

Mr. W. F. Poole, the present Librarian of the Chicago Public Library, and former Librarian of the Boston Mercantile and Athenæum Libraries, whilst a student of Yale College, over thirty years ago, recognised, even at that date, the great need of an Index to Periodical Literature. From the meagre materials then within his reach, he compiled one which appeared in 1848, and enlarged in 1853. Thirty years is a long time in our particular epoch. The best thought of the day now makes its first appearance in this department, which is yearly and with rapid strides increasing in extent and importance. A glance at the list of writers for the leading reviews and magazines in any year will show the names of the best writers of the time—Historians, Scientists, Poets, Essayists, Novelists. In 1876, Mr. Poole associated himself with Mr. W. I. Fletcher, Assistant-Librarian of the Watkinson Library, Hartford, and with the active co-operation and assistance of many members of the Library Association of the United Kingdom, and of the American Library Association, undertook the preparation of the above announced Third Edition. Two Hundred and Forty Periodicals are included, embracing nearly the whole list of English and American Magazines and Reviews for the Present Century, coming down to January, 1882. The number of Volumes indexed exceeds 6,000. More than 250,000 slips have had to be alphabetically arranged.

Amongst the leading English Periodicals indexed the following will be found:—

AMATEUR MECHANICS,

An Illustrated Monthly Magazine.

Conducted by PAUL N. HASLUCK.

The scope of the Magazine is indicated by its title. Mechanics embrace the shaping and uniting of materials by means of tools or instruments to form any kind of machine, and these are the subjects that will be treated upon. Mechanical engineering, mechanism of all kinds, and the various incidental manipulative processes, will each have consideration: Lathe-work—which is, perhaps, the most popular of all mechanical pursuits followed by Amateurs—will have a proportionate share of attention. Subscribers will be invited to make known their various requirements, so that these may be studied and supplied. Practical Working Drawings—produced by lithography—will form a valuable and novel feature, and each monthly issue will be illustrated by at least Four full-page Lithographs. Original Articles, from the pens of those who practise what they teach, will appear in each issue; also a selection of appropriate matter likely to interest Amateurs, will be reproduced from the pages of current literature. The entire contents will be carefully supervised by the Editor, whose practical knowledge is a guarantee that none but thoroughly sound information will be circulated. The Magazine will be Imperial 8vo size, and include 32 pp. of letterpress, besides the lithographs, well printed on good paper, and produced in a style worthy of its contents, forming a volume suitable for binding as a Work of Reference for the Library of every Amateur Mechanic.

PART I. will include articles on: How to commence Engineering—The Art of Turning—Fitting up a Workshop—Files and Filing—Iron and Steel—Sharpening Plane Irons—Small Screws—Cutting a Worm Wheel—Lantern Pinions for Clocks—Softening Horn, &c., &c., &c.

The Lithographed Working Drawings comprise An Inexpensive Lathe—A Portable Book Case—Slide—Rest—Tools—Wood working Attachment for Lathe—with an exhaustive description of each. Also a full-page Photographic Illustration of a SPECIMEN OF ORNAMENTAL TURNERY will be included in Part I.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

COUGH,
COLDS, ASTHMA.
BRONCHITIS.

BRONCHITIS.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE
—This wonderful remedy was discovered by Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE, and the word Chlorodyne coined by him expressly to designate it. There never has been a remedy so vastly beneficial to suffering humanity, and it is a subject of deep concern to the public that they should not be imposed upon by having imitations pressed upon them on account of cheapness, and as being the same thing. Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is a totally distinct thing from the spirituous compounds called Chlorodyne, the use of which only ends in disappointment and failure.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE
—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD STATED PUBLICLY in Court that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was UNDOUBTEDLY the INVENTOR of CHLORODYNE, that the whole story of the defendant was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—See The Times, July 13th, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE
is a LIQUID MEDICINE which ASSUAGES PAIN of EVERY KIND, affords a calm, refreshing sleep, WITHOUT HEADACHE, and INVIGORATES the NERVOUS SYSTEM when exhausted.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE rapidly cuts short all attacks of EPILEPSY, SPASMS, COLIC,
PALPITATION, HYSTERIA.

GREAT SPECIFIC FOR
CHOLERA, DYSENTERY, DIARRHŒA.

THE GENERAL BOARD of HEALTH, London, REPORT that it ACTS as a CHARM, one dose generally sufficient.

Dr. GIBBON, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, states—"TWO DOSES COMPLETELY CURED ME of DIARRHŒA."

From SAMES & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla—January 5th, 1880.

To J. T. DAVENPORT, Esq, 33 Great Russell St., Bloomsbury, London.

Dear Sir—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation this justly esteemed medicine has earned for itself, not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their sale, we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad nauseam of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a deliberate breach of faith on the part of the chemist to prescriber and patient alike.—We are, Sir, faithfully yours,

SYMES & CO.

*Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain,
His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists.*

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE is the TRUE PALLIATIVE in
