GLOBAL ECONOMICS AND RELIGION

James Finn, editor

Focusing on the significance of religion in a complex social and political environment, specifically on changes in the relationship between religion and economics, these essays examine the close interdependence of religion and economics in India, Iran, Mexico, Japan, and Nigeria: countries of world significance possessing different religions. In wide-ranging and incisive essays, the contributors describe the underlying core values which permeate and support the economic institutions and activities of each of these five societies and perceive how they relate to the major religions of that society.

James Finn is associate director for research at Freedom House and was formerly vice president of the Council on Religion and International Affairs.
