

People in Political Science

1982 by the Dushkin Publishing Group.

David P. Rebovich has been promoted to assistant professor II, Rider College, Lawrenceville, New Jersey.

Frank Rusclano, ABD, University of Chicago, joins the faculty of Rider College, Lawrenceville, New Jersey, as assistant professor, as of September, 1982.

Retirements

Victor Alba, professor, Kent State University.

Kenneth Colton, associate professor, Kent State University.

George G. Clucas, professor, California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo.

Peter J. Fless, professor, University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Jack B. Gabbert, professor emeritus, Washington State University.

John H. Hallowell, James B. Duke professor, Duke University.

Henry Hart, Department of Political Science, University of Wisconsin-Madison, has retired with emeritus status.

John W. Lederle, Joseph B. Ely Professor, Department of Political Science, University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Lyman B. Kirkpatrick, Jr., professor, Brown University.

Grant McConnell retired from the Board of Studies in Politics, University of California, Santa Cruz. A conference honoring McConnell entitled, "Private Power and Public Values" was held on the Santa Cruz campus on May 8-9.

Jacob Walkin, professor emeritus of political science, Auburn University, effective August 1982.

Award Recipients

Guggenheim Fellowships

The following political scientists will receive Guggenheim Fellowships:

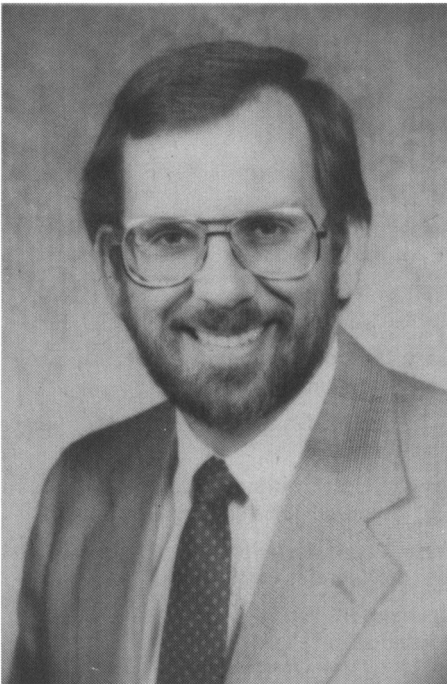

Benedict R. O'G. Anderson, professor of government and Asian studies, Cornell University: State and society in the making of modern Indonesia.

Douglas E. Ashford, professor of government, Cornell University: The political development of the European welfare state.

Jack Dennis, professor of political science, University of Wisconsin at Madison: A study of partisanship.

Morris P. Fiorina, professor of political science, California Institute of Technology: Studies in the politics of regulatory origin.

Michael Harrington, professor of political science, Queens College and Graduate Center of the City University of New York: The political and social consequences of religious belief and disbelief.

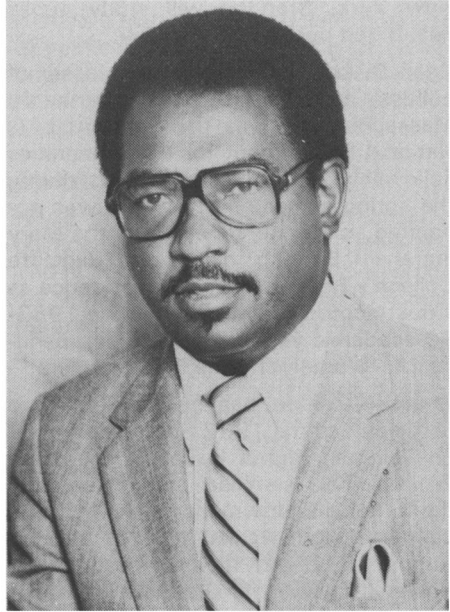

James S. Fleming has been awarded the Thomas Jefferson Award at Rochester Institute of Technology.

Richard G. Niemi, professor of political science, University of Rochester: The application of a theory of fair political districting.

G. Bingham Powell, Jr., professor of political science, University of Rochester: Extremist political parties and democratic political performance.

William H. Riker, professor of political science and university dean of graduate studies, University of Rochester: Applied social-choice theory and the controversy over Constitutional revision, 1786-1788.

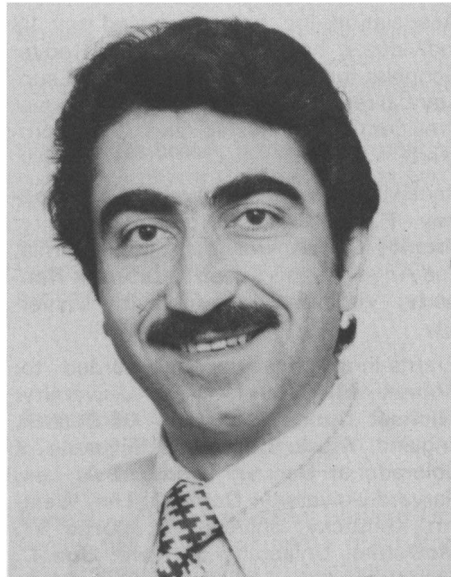

Huey L. Perry won the Rodney Higgins award for the best paper presented at the 1981 annual meeting of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists.

Fulbright Awards

John H. Hallowell, James B. Duke professor, Duke University, has been awarded a Fulbright Grant to teach at the University of Western Australia for fall 1982.

Garth N. Jones, University of Alaska at Anchorage, was awarded a Fulbright Fellowship, 1982-83, to National Chengchi University, Taiwan. He will spend spring and summer 1983 in Indonesia on organizational and system design multi-river development project under AID sponsorship, West Java, Indonesia.

Robert C. Rickards, assistant professor, College of William and Mary, has received a Fulbright award for a six-week seminar in Bonn in Berlin. The seminar will examine the political, social and economic institutions of the Federal Republic of Germany.

Shawky Zeidan is attending a 1982 summer seminar sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

National Endowment for the Humanities

William P. Brandon of the University of Rochester Medical Center and of Department of Political Science has been awarded a fellowship for 1982-83 by the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH). He will spend the school year at the Institute of Society, Ethics, and the Life Sciences, at Hastings-on-Hudson,

New York. Brandon will study public health and public health policy.

Joan B. Landes, associate professor of politics, Hampshire College, Amherst, Massachusetts, was the recipient of a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship for College Teachers during the spring semester 1982 and was appointed as a Bunting Fellow by the Mary Ingraham Bunting Institute of Radcliffe College where she will be in residence as a post-doctoral scholar during the 1982-83 academic year completing her manuscript "Women and the Public Sphere."

Shawky Zeldan has been selected to participate in the 1982 Summer Seminar on "Human Rights Issues in the Third World." This seminar, administered by the National Endowment for the Humanities, lasts eight weeks (June 21 through August 13, 1982). It will be based at the University of Denver Graduate School of International Studies. The stipend for each participant is $2,500.

Hoover Scholars

The Herbert Hoover Presidential Library Association, Inc. has announced that 13 individuals have been named Hoover Scholars for 1982 and recipients of substantial research awards under its Hoover Presidential Fellowship and Grant program.

Receiving Perrine Fellowships are Rodney P. Carlisle, Rutgers University; Stanley Cohen, University of California, Los Angeles; and Susan Estabrook Kennedy, Virginia Commonwealth University.

Grants-in-aid have been awarded to: Robert M. Cover, Yale University; Michael Dunne, University of Sussex, England; Mark S. Foster, University of Colorado at Denver; Bradford A. Lee, Harvard University; David D. Lee, Western Kentucky University; George W. McDaniel, University of Iowa; Sue C. Patrick, Indiana University; Richard A. Pfau, University of Miami (Florida); Fredric A. Propos, University of California, Los Angeles; and Priscilla M.

Roberts, King's College, Cambridge, England.

Since the establishment of the program in 1978, the association has provided research assistance to 41 scholars seeking to conduct original investigations into the personal and public careers of President Herbert Hoover or into national public policy during the Hoover period, 1921-33.

Charlotte W. Newcombe Fellowship Winners

Two political scientists to receive Charlotte W. Newcombe Fellowships are:

Wendy L. Brown, Princeton University, politics: The Agony of Virtue—Manhood and the Political in Western Political Thought.

Nancy Sue Love, Cornell University, government: Commodities and Idols—Marx and Nietzsche on the Myths of Modern Society.

German Marshall Fund Fellows

The German Marshall Fund of the United States announces awards totaling $360,000 to 11 scholars in its 1982 Fellowship Program. The Fellows were selected from over 245 North American and European applicants.

The German Marshall Fund Fellowship supports analysis of political, social, and economic issues of common concern to advanced industrial societies. Appointments permit research and writing on individual projects for up to one year. The recipients in political science are:

David Baldwin, Department of Government, Dartmouth College: "Economic statecraft," the use of economic means to influence the government or society of another state or interenational institution, in the United States and the United Kingdom.

Ronald Inglehart, Department of Political Science, University of Michigan: A panel survey of stability and change in public values and attitudes in The Netherlands, West Germany, and the United States.

Adam Przeworski, Department of Political Science, University of Chicago: Growth, investment, and income distribution—political determinants of macro-economic policies in democratic capitalist societies.

Donald Puchala, Department of Government, Columbia University: The impact of fiscal harmonization on international cooperation in the European Community for the last 25 years.

The Wilson Center Fellows and Guest Scholars

The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, D.C. has announced the following political scientists have been selected as Fellows and Guest Scholars:

History, Culture, and Society

Maurice Cranston, United Kingdom, professor of political science, London School of Economics. The sources and structures of Rousseau's republicanism. (July 1982-September 1982)

Nelson W. Polsby, professor of political science, University of California, Berkeley. American political party reform and its consequences. (January 1983-June 1983)

Latin American Program

Robert Kaufman, professor of political science, Douglass College, Rutgers University. The political economy of authoritarian rule in Latin America. (February 1983-July 1983)

Steven E. Sanderson, assistant professor of political science, University of Florida. U.S. agricultural food policy and the future of the Mexican food crisis in the 1980s. (May 1983-August 1983)

Arturo Valenzuela, associate professor of political science, Duke University. The origins of democracy: theoretical reflections on the Chilean case. (October 1981-July 1982)

East Asia Program

Hong Yung Lee, assistant professor of political science, Marquette University. The politics of transition and the personnel management of cadres in China. (September 1981-August 1982)

Susan J. Pharr, associate professor of political science, University of Wisconsin-Madison. The politics of opposition in Japan. (September 1981-May 1982)

Rockefeller Foundation Humanities Fellowships Awards

The following political scientists have been awarded Rockefeller Foundation awards:

Jane J. Mansbridge, associate professor of political science, sociology, and urban affairs, Northwestern University: Envy and equality.

Rogers Smith, assistant professor of political science, Yale University: The concept of citizenship in the American constitutional tradition.

William Taubman, professor of political science, Amherst College: Khrushchev's American policy.

Robert C. Tucker, professor of politics, Princeton University: Stalin—a study in history and personality.

American Council of Learned Societies Grants

Benjamin E. Schwartz of Harvard University has been awarded a grant from the American Council of Learned Societies for advanced research in the humanities and social sciences relating to Chinese civilization. A Leroy B. Williams professor of history and political science, Schwartz will research the emergence and range of ancient Chinese thought. The grant was made possible by grants from the Ford Foundation, the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation, and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Pedro Ramet and Robin Remington have been awarded grants by the American Council of Learned Societies for research in the humanities and social sciences relating to Eastern Europe. Ramet, a visiting lecturer in political science at the University of California at Santa Barbara, will study the Catholic church in communist Yugoslavia. Remington, a political science professor at the University of Missouri, will research the functions of Yugoslav nonalignment and the Warsaw Treaty Organization's third decade. The grants were made possible by grants from the Ford Foundation and the National Endowment for the Humanities. The program on East European Studies under which the grants were awarded to Ramet and Remington is sponsored jointly by the ACLS and the Social Science Research Council.

Melvin Richter of the City University of New York, Hunter College and the Graduate Center, has received a grant-in-aid from the American Council of Learned Societies for postdoctoral research. Richter will use the grant to study Oriental despotism in the political thought of the late Enlightenment.

Dirksen Center Awards Grants

The Dirksen Center recently announced the names of 14 congressional research grant recipients for 1982.

Awards of up to $3,500 will fund projects ranging from a study of congressional careers to a book about the conservative coalition in Congress, 1932-45.

The Center's research grants program has grown from $2,500 awarded in 1979 to $20,000 in 1982. These funds go to scholars to help defray the costs of conducting research on Congress.

The Dirksen Center accepts applications all year and awards grants each summer.

510 PS Summer 1982

The following scholars received grants in June:

R. Douglas Arnold, Princeton University, The Logic of Congressional Action;

Susan W. Hammond, American University, and Arthur G. Stevens, University of California at Santa Barbara, Informal groups and Congressional Leadership;

John Johannes and John McAdams, Marquette University, Congressional Leaders' Constituency Relations;

Frederick Kaiser, Library of Congress, Congressional Leadership and Foreign Policy;

Samuel Kernell, University of California at San Diego, Congressional Careers;

Lawrence Longely, Lawrence University, and Walter Oleszek, Library of Congress, Conference Committee Politics;

Karl O'Lessker, Indiana University, Origin of Redistributive Politics in the U.S.;

William Panning, University of Iowa, Patterns of Policy Leadership in the Senate;

Elliot A. Rosen, Rutgers University, Age of the Conservative Coalition, 1932-45;

Steven S. Smith and Christopher J. Deering, George Washington University, House Majority Party Leadership and Committee Composition.

Other Honors and Awards

Shlomo Avineri, professor at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and A. D. White Professor-at-Large at Cornell University, received the Present Tense Award for best book on social and political analysis published in 1981 for his book The Making of Modern Zionism.

Lawrence Baum is one of three junior faculty members to receive a Distinguished Research Award at Ohio State University. This award recognizes faculty showing "great scholarly promise," and recipients are selected from departmental nominations by a committee of senior faculty, including past award winners.

The awards include honoraria and unrestricted research funds. Baum, associate professor of political science, has taught at Ohio State since 1973.

Arthur S. Fleming, former chairperson of U.S. Civil Rights Commission, former Commissioner on Aging and former HEW Secretary, was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters Degree at Wayne State's May commencement.

James S. Fleming, coordinator of the Public Policy Degree Program at Eisenhower College of Rochester Institute of Technology, was recently awarded the Thomas Jefferson Award at commencement ceremonies on May 23.

Jeffrey A. Hart, associate professor at Indiana University, was awarded the Paul Henri Spaak Fellowship in U.S.-European Relations for 1982-83. This fellowship is funded by the Frank Boas Foundation and is administered by the Center for International Affairs at Harvard University. Hart will be conducting research for a book on the industrial policies of major capitalist countries with a focus on the effects of sector-specific crises on U.S.-European relations. He will be in residence at the Center for International Affairs during the academic year.

Judith A. Hill, an upcoming graduate of the public administration program at the University of Illinois at Chicago, was selected as one of this year's Presidential Management Interns.

Ole Holsti, George V. Allen professor, Duke University, has won an award for the best article in 1979-80 published in International Studies Quarterly.

Mark Lichbach of the University of Illinois at Chicago has been awarded a contract by the National Foreign Assessment Center, CIA, to develop statistical models of governability on a global basis.

Daniel J. Nelson, associate professor, Auburn University, was named a National Fellow of the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution, and Peace at Stanford University for 1982-83.

Lawrence J. O'Toole, Jr., associate professor, Auburn University, was awarded a five-year appointment as an Alumni Associate Professor of Political Science.

The Alumni professorship is awarded by Auburn University for highest faculty achievement and example and includes an annual salary supplement.

Huey L. Perry of Texas A&M University is the recipient of the Rodney Higgins Award for the best paper presented at the 1981 annual meeting of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists for his paper entitled "Democracy and Public Policy: An Analysis of Minority Input in the Formulation and Administration of National Energy Policy During the Carter Presidency."

Lee Sigelman of the University of Kentucky has received a $500 University of Kentucky Foundation research award.

In Memoriam

Malcolm C. Moos

Malcolm C. Moos, former professor of political science at Johns Hopkins University, consultant to President Eisenhower, and former President of the University of Minnesota, died from a heart attack at his northern Minnesota home, on January 28, at age 65.

During his diverse career, he was an educator, political scientist, newspaperman, consultant to U.S. presidents, author, scholar, and expert on government. He was an aide and consultant to President Eisenhower, a consultant to President Kennedy, and a professor at both Johns Hopkins and Columbia Universities.

During his long career in public service, he was both director of policy and planning and director of the Office of Government and Law for the Ford Foundation and served on more than 30 public and private boards, commissions, and councils. He was president of the University from 1967 until 1974, a difficult period of campus unrest and change for higher education. He later served as president of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions and headed a major Carnegie Corporation study on the future of the University of Maryland.