International NETWORK

The International Network for Social Network Analysis, which was founded in 1977 by Barry Wellman, Associate Professor of Sociology, University of Toronto, is interested in drawing its organization to the attention of political scientists. The 200-member group of social scientists from all continents is interested in social network analysis. The principal activity of INSNA is its thrice-yearly informal journal, Connections, which provides a variety of information: review articles, although not substantive research papers, preliminary news of research findings, computer programs, theoretical and methodological developments, new books, unpublished and published papers abstracts, an annotated updated directory of members and their interests, thesis summaries and conference information. Recent issues have been about 60 pages. INSNA has also sponsored and co-sponsored a number of conferences, including a recent World Congress at Uppsala, Sweden. Among the research that INSNA members do which may be of interest to political scientists is the analysis of interlocking corporate directorships and structural studies of political contentions for power.

Annual membership in INSNA is $8 (including air mail outside of North America). In addition, INSNA members are eligible for a special rate of $20 for the new scholarly journal, Social Networks, a saving of more than 50 percent. Membership and subscription funds should be sent to INSNA, c/o the Centre for Urban and Community Studies, University of Toronto, Toronto, Ontario M5S 1A1, Canada.

LEGISLATIVE Process, Behavior, and Representation Group

At the last APSA meetings, a group of political scientists engaged in legislative research met to form the Legislative Processes, Behavior, and Representation Group. The group attempts to provide a continuing forum for legislative scholars for the exchange of ideas of mutual interest. Four panels at the upcoming 1979 APSA meetings are planned. Information as to other activities will be supplied by special mailings to members and through the Newsletter in Legislative Studies Quarterly.

The Steering Committee for 1978-79 consists of Barbara Hinckley, University of Wisconsin, Madison, Chair; Abdo Baaklini, SUNY-Albany, Secretary-Treasurer; Harrison Fox, Washington, D.C., Program Chair; John Grumm, Wesleyan University; and Roger Davidson, University of California, Santa Barbara.

Those interested in legislative research are warmly invited to join by writing Professor Abdo Baaklini, Department of Political Science, SUNY-Albany, Albany, New York 12222, and enclosing $2 for annual dues.

WOMEN in Government Forum

In March, 1978, the Department of Public Administration at The George Washington University added a new feature to its community services program: The Forum on Women in Government. Sensitive to the concerns of a growing number of women pursuing careers in public service, the Forum was created to provide a setting for scholarly, professional, and personal exchange among men and women.

Meeting monthly, the agenda highlights a prominent guest speaker. Topics are wide-ranging, encompassing issues pertinent to professional women such as recognizing and dealing with sex discrimination, the current status and future picture for women entering politics, balancing career and family, and reinterpreting what power means to and for women. Speakers have included Elinor Bachrach, Legislative Assistant, U.S. Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee; Dr. Joan Baratz, Director, Education Policy Research Institute; Sarah Carey, Esq. attorney-at-law, Bowman and Conner; Daisy Fields, founder of Federally Employed Women, Inc.; Dr. Donna Shalala, Assistant Secretary, Office of Policy Development and Research, Department of Housing and Urban Development; and faculty members Dr. Astrid Merget and Dr. Susan Tolchin. Founded by Dr. Merget, the Forum has proven a success by its repeatedly drawing large, diverse, and animated audiences from within the University and the Washington community.

For further information, contact Astrid Merget at (202) 676-6516 or Susan Tolchin (202) 676-7019, or write to them in care of the Department of Public Administration, The George Washington University, Washington, D.C. 20052.

HOOVER Presidential Library Program

The Herbert Hoover Presidential Library Association announces establishment of its Hoover Presidential Fellowship and Grant Program. Priority will be given research projects which focus on the public career of Herbert Hoover or on national public policy during the Hoover Period, 1921-1933, and which utilize the historical resources of the Herbert Hoover Presidential Library and Museum. Awards will range to an annual maximum of $10,000 per individual. For additional information write Chairman, Fellowship and Grants Committee, Hoover Presidential Library Association, P.O. Box 696, West Branch, Iowa 52358.

PREWITT Named SSRC President

Kenneth Prewitt, professor of political science and Director of the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago, has been named President of the Social Science Research Council. During the first months of his presidency, Dr. Prewitt will serve part-time at the Council while continuing his duties at the University of Chicago, pending the appointment of his successor at NORC.

PI SIGMA ALPHA Chapter Installations

Five new chapters of Pi Sigma Alpha, the National Political Science Honor Society, have recently been installed, according to its National Director, Howard Penniman. They are Ohio University at Athens, Iota Zeta Chapter; Arkansas State University, Iota Eta; Pittsburg State University (Kansas), Iota Theta; University of Hawaii-Hilo, Iota Iota; William Paterson College of New Jersey, Iota Kappa.

PARLIAMENTARY Intern Program

The Department of Politics of Catholic University in cooperation with Educational Programmes Abroad is offering upper level and graduate students an opportunity to work full-time as Research Assistants to members of Parliament for a ten-week period during the coming summer from May 16 to July 27.

The Internship involves a close relationship with the Member of Parliament since that institution provides little in way of administrative support. It may comport a broad range of duties in addition to research, including constituency relations, representation, party liaison, etc. Parliamentary sponsors for Interns are matched on the basis of background, interests and ideological orientation.

The Profession

Six semester hours of credit are given for this Internship. Candidates are selected from the Mid-Atlantic region on the basis of interests, previous academic performance, personality and evidence of maturity. A written biographic summary (including questions on interests and professional objectives), an oral interview and a test of written expression are normally employed to screen applicants.

Prospective Interns are advised to read extensively in British government and politics, and are given supplemental materials directly relevant to their work as Research Assistants. Interns provide their own transportation to London and back; the Laker Skytrain or a charter are advised. Intensive briefings, assignment of lodgings and a basic familiarization with British life begin on Wednesday, May 16, at West Dean, a Conference Center near Chichester. The following Monday Interns begin work at Westminster. Lectures, tours and special programs focused on British government complement the Interns' professional activities. They are expected to maintain a log indicating their activities and the time spent on them day by day. They are also asked to retain any non-confidential studies they prepare. These materials, the M.P.-sponsor's assessment and a departmental oral examination based on the Intern's reading and experience provide the basis for grading. The oral review and examination is in the Fall.

Enrollment fee for the Parliamentary Internship Program is $1,300, which covers tuition, housing, breakfast and dinner during the period of the Internship. A $200 deposit, refundable prior to March 31, 1979, is required upon acceptance into the Program, and the remainder is due on May 15, 1979.

For additional information and application forms, write or call Dr. Charles Dechert, Department of Politics, Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C. 20064, (202) 832-1815.

POLITICAL BEHAVIOR

Political Behavior, a new quarterly journal embracing both psychology and political sociology has been established. Reflecting the nature of the subject, Political Behavior will publish important work from all the disciplines involved, such as social and clinical psychology, social psychiatry and sociology as well as political science. The Editor of the journal is Samuel Long of Baruch College; political scientists among Associate Editors are Heinz Eulau, Stanford University, and Fred Greenstein, Princeton University. The journal welcomes manuscripts and subscriptions. Manuscripts should be sent to Samuel Long, Editor, Political Behavior, Baruch College, CUNY, 17 Lexington Avenue, New York, New York 10010. Subscriptions, $13.50 annually for individuals and $22.00 for institutions should be sent to APS Subscriptions, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York 10011.

WPQ WOMEN and POLITICS Issue

The Western Political Quarterly is considering publishing a special issue on Women and Politics. Articles on women from any field of political science are welcome. Four copies of the manuscript should be submitted to the Editor, WPQ, University of Utah, as soon as possible and before January 1, 1980. Manuscripts will go through the regular review process. Manuscripts may be submitted simultaneously for the Women and Politics Prize to Betty Moulds, Department of Government, California State University, Sacramento, Sacramento, California 95819.

GLOBAL Political Assessment

Global Political Assessment, a semi-annual analysis of global political, economic and military trends is published every six months. It analyzes events and trends affecting the industrial democracies, the global economy, the global military situation, the north-south dialogue, east-west relations and the communist countries. It provides a survey of trends in each region of the world.

Global Political Assessment was founded in 1976 by Zbigniew Brzezinski and William H. Overholt, to provide a concise but comprehensive survey of world trends for use by senior foreign affairs executives and business planners. As the only regularly available survey of global trends, it has begun to be used by scholars for research purposes and by teachers as the most concise available introduction to world affairs.

It is compiled from reports prepared by outstanding academic specialists, including Thomas P. Bernstein, Seweryn Bailer and Donald Zagoria of Columbia University; William E. Griffith, Robert Rotberg and Myron Weiner of MIT; Jerome Fried of the Middle East Institute; Colin Gray of the Hudson Institute; Wolfgang Leonhard of Yale University; Christopher Makins of the Carnegie Endowment; Guy Pauker of RAND; and Allen Whiting of the University of Michigan. Global Political Assessment is edited by William H. Overholt, who is solely responsible for its content.

Global Political Assessment costs $60.00 per year (two issues) for institutions and $30.00 for individuals. Subscriptions are tax deductible contributions to a nonprofit organization. Special volume rates are available for educational purposes. Subscriptions are available from Circulation Editor, Global Political Assessment, Research Institute on International Change, Columbia University, 420 West 118th Street, New York, New York 10027.

PUBLIC POLICY and Administration Program

The Department of Political Science at Texas A&M University has initiated an interdisciplinary, non-thesis program leading to the Master of Public Administration (MPA) degree. The program of study utilizes a variety of educational offerings throughout the University and is under the joint auspices of the College of Liberal Arts and the College of Business Administration. By drawing from over 25 public policy and administration faculty in several disciplines, the program offers a professional curriculum designed to provide broad preparation in public policy and administration at all levels of government and in a variety of policy areas including city management, staff services, marine resources, energy, science and technology, agriculture and natural resources, judicial and regulatory processes, and defense and foreign affairs. For additional information write to Professor Paul P. Van Riper, Director, MPA Program, Department of Political Science, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

APQ CONGRESSIONAL Elections Issue

American Politics Quarterly invites manuscripts for a special issue on Congressional Elections tentatively scheduled for October, 1980. Although manuscripts may be submitted any time during the next calendar year, the deadline for submission is May 1, 1980. The topic is broadly defined and not limited to data on the 1978 congressional elections; nevertheless, recent data analyses are encouraged since this project will enable a more timely reporting of research than otherwise permitted in the discipline. All facets of congressional elections will be considered, including electoral impact on behaviors, processes, and policy. Prospective authors should note the conventional manuscript instructions in the Quarterly, including those associated with length and style. Since manuscripts will be subjected to the normal refereeing process, early submissions are advisable. Manuscripts, an abstract, and biographical statement should be submitted in quadruplicate to Samuel A. Kirkpatrick, Editor, American Politics Quarterly, Department of Political Science, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843.

Universal HUMAN RIGHTS Journal

Universal Human Rights published its first quarterly issue in February carrying the symposium theme of "Human Rights and U.S. Foreign Policy," with a lead article by Patricia M. Derain. Articles scheduled for May publication carry the theme of "Human Rights and Economic and Political Development in the Third World," with a lead article by Richard Ralk. The new journal offers scholars in the fields of social science, law and philosophy a forum in which to present transnational and international research on public policy within the scope of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Richard Claude is editor-in-chief, Government and Politics Department, University of Maryland, College Park, Maryland 20742. Included in the journal will be an empirically oriented "Research Notes" department and a useful "Teaching Notes" section. A book review department will be inaugurated in the August issue, and the book review editor is Professor Marshall Carter, Department of Political Science, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio 45701. Individual subscriptions at $19.50, and institutional subscriptions at $39.50, should be addressed to: Earl M. Coleman Enterprises, Inc., 875 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10001.

McGREGOR Award

The Journal of Applied Behavioral Science has announced its annual Douglas McGregor Memorial Award for 1979. The Award is given "for the best article exemplifying the interplay among theory, practice, and values in any domain of planned change." It consists of a $1,000 honorarium and publication in the Journal.

Articles should be 3,000 to 6,000 words long, and submitted in four copies no later than September 1, 1979. Send the articles to or request information from: Susan Sherman, Assistant to the McGregor Award Committee, NTL Institute, P.O. Box 9155, Arlington, Virginia 22209.

AEI CONGRESS Study

The American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research has initiated a new project for the study of the Congress. The project will conduct sustained scholarly investigation into the Congress as an institution. It will cover its formal rules, informal norms, party structure, staffs, internal distributions of power and the recruitment and composition of its membership. Co-directors of the project are John Bibby of the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, and AEI Adjunct Scholar, and Thomas E. Mann of the American Political Science Association who will be an AEI visiting fellow. Norman Ornstein of Catholic University and an AEI Adjunct Scholar and Michael Malbin, an AEI Resident Fellow will also have significant involvement in the project. The work of the project will include a biennial congressional review analyzing important institutional and membership changes; analyses of major changes in Congress over the past two decades; their consequences and prospects for the future, and monographs on congressional process, politics and policy. The project will be part of AEI's ongoing program on political and social processes which is directed by AEI Resident Scholars Howard Penniman, and Austin Ranney. For further information write to AEI Congress Project, 1150 17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Political Power and Ideology SEMINAR

For the two years 1980-82 the subject of the Seminar of the Shelby Cullom Davis Center for Historical Studies at Princeton University will be the relationship between political power and ideology. The seminar hopes to deal with topics involving the ways in which political systems in the past have gained or lost legitimacy. These will include the history of use made of ideas of the state, power, and legitimacy; the manipulation of education, religion, ritual, and other cultural forms to support or weaken the political status quo and to obtain or limit participation and consent; and the reasons why such methods have succeeded or failed. The seminar proposes to examine these general problems through historical case studies of particular state systems and systems of ideas.

The Center will offer a limited number of Research Fellowships for one or two semesters, running from September to January and from February to June, designed for highly recommended younger scholars, as well as for senior scholars with established reputations. Candidates who have not both finished their dissertations and had at least a year of full-time teaching experience thereafter are not eligible. Fellows are expected to live in Princeton in order to take an active part in the intellectual interchange with other members of the Seminar. Funds are very limited, and candidates are, therefore, strongly urged to apply to other grant-giving institutions as well as the Center.

Inquiries and requests for Fellowship Application Forms should be addressed to the Secretary, Davis Center for Historical Studies, 129 Dickinson Hall, Princeton University, Princeton, New Jersey 08540. The deadline for fellowship applications and letters of recommendation for 1980-81 is December 1, 1979. Scholars who are not applicants for Fellowships but would like to visit Princeton to offer a paper to the Seminar are asked to write to the Director.

FISCAL OBSERVER

The Fiscal Observer, an independent bimonthly report on New York City's finances, has been established. The report is published by the Center for New York City Affairs. Subscriptions are available to educators, government officials and officials of non-profit organizations for the special rate of $47 annually. For further information, write to Julia Vitulle-Martin, Center for New York City Affairs, New School for Social Research, 66 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York 10011.

POLLSTERS Positions

The Social Sciences Services and Resources Inc., a non-profit organization, is interested in hearing from political scientists who may be interested in doing part-time polling for future candidates for public office in a midwest urban state. For further information write to Jack Kinton, Executive Director, Social Sciences Services and Resources, Inc., 1109 11th Avenue, St. Charles, Illinois 60174.

Directory of Federal WOMEN

The Task Force for Women in Science and Engineering has undertaken the task of compiling a directory of federal women in scientific and engineering jobs. Once compiled, the directory will be used in a variety of ways: To send out information to persons in the directory, to aid organizations in recruiting scientific and technical women, and to help locate women willing to speak about their careers in training courses or special programs.

Federally employed women in the physical sciences, the biological and life sciences, the social and behavioral sciences, computer sciences, or mathematics are invited to be in this nationwide directory by writing to Joan Humphries, National Science Foundation, Room 517, 1800 G Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20550. Include your name, address, discipline, phone number, and agency.

The task force members hope to have the directory ready for distribution by June 1, 1979.

URBAN Innovation Abroad

Urban Innovation Abroad serves the urban objectives of public interest organizations in the United States and Canada by encouraging international exchanges of practical experiences. Beyond its practitioner orientation, Urban Innovation Abroad is widely used as a teaching tool to supplement texts in public administration, comparative government, urban planning, and the environment. The newsletter publishes occasional special supplements dealing with specific subjects of priority concern, with guest articles by Hans Ulrich-Klose, George Gallup, Enrique Penalosa, David Popenoe, and Neil R. Peirce. A complimentary subscription to the quarterly, Urban Transit Abroad, a council newsletter targeting major public transportation issues and strategies throughout the world, is included in the subscription price of Urban Innovation Abroad.

Urban Innovation Abroad, founded in 1977, is edited by George G. Wynne. Subscription rates are $24 per year for individuals, $12 per year for students, and $30 per year for individuals residing outside the United States. For further information write to Herbert H. Werlin, Room 840, 818 18th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

OBERLIN Public Service Studies Program

Under a grant from the Sloan Foundation, the Public Service Studies Program has recently been established at Oberlin College with Paul Dawson, Associate Professor of Government, as its director. Building upon the disciplinary framework of economics and political science, PSSP trains undergraduate students in the application of analytical problem-solving methods to public concerns while furthering multidisciplinary research on contemporary issues. Program components include (a) a core curriculum of courses, (b) policy workshops, (c) summer internships, and (d) frequent public affairs presentations, including conferences. Students may earn a "concentration" by participating in a combination of these activities in which policy analysts, public officials, and other leaders are invited to enrich the perspectives provided by the faculty. Areas of expertise of the PSSP faculty include campaign finance, citizen participation, foreign investment, electoral participation, education policy, legislative processes, trade policy, nuclear power, environmental economics, finance, economic and employment policy, and policy evaluation. For further information, write to Keith Boone, Program Administrator, Public Service Studies Program, Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio 44074, or call (216) 775-8487.

ASIAN AMERICAN Roster

The UCLA Asian American Studies Center announces the publication of The National Asian American Roster 1979. The Roster contains the names and addresses of Asian-American elected officials at the federal, state, and local levels for 11 states of the U.S., Guam, American Samoa, and Canada. It also lists major Asian-American political party clubs and employee associations. The Roster was compiled by Dr. Don T. Nakanishi of UCLA.

The Roster is available for $2.00 from the Asian-American Studies Center, 3232 Campbell Hall, UCLA, Los Angeles, California 90024. Mail orders must be accompanied by $.50 for postage and handling. California residents add 6% tax.

Committee on PARTY RENEWAL

The Committee on Party Renewal is an informal group of over a hundred political scientists and activists interested in strengthening American parties. Chaired by James MacGregor Burns, it distributes an occasional newsletter and issues positions on relevant public questions. Persons interested in the group should contact Gerald Pomper, Director, at the Eagleton Institute of Politics, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey 08903. In its most recent activity, members of the Committee have adopted a statement in support of public financing of Congressional elections. Copies of the statement are available from Professor Pomper.

Federal ELECTIONS COMMISSION

Representatives of the Federal Commission have informed the Association that they will be glad to assist political scientists in gaining access to the Commission's information and services. As an initial contact it is suggested that Judith Corley, Chief Public Communications, Federal Elections Commission, 1325 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20462, telephone toll free (800) 424-9530, or in Washington, D.C. 523-4068, be contacted. A brief brochure detailing the background and services of the Commission, which includes a bibliography of its publications, is also available.

CALIFORNIA and the World Directory

California and the World, a directory of 550 organizations in California involved with various aspects of international affairs is now available. The volume, with emphasis on associations and university programs, is published by the Center for California Public Affairs, an affiliate of Claremont College. The Directory, available from the Center, P.O. Box 10, Claremont, California 91711, is priced at $12.00 a copy.

SCHOLAR-DIPLOMAT Program

The Scholar-Diplomat Seminar Program will begin its tenth year this fall. University faculty members spend a week in the State Department observing the foreign policy process at first-hand and discussing current policy issues. The Seminars bring together scholars, particularly younger Ph.D.s and government officers involved in making and executing foreign policy. More than 1500 scholars have participated in the program since its inception in 1969. One indication of the program's effectiveness is the fact that most new applications are received from scholars who have heard about the program from previous attendees.

To facilitate informal give-and-take discussion, the seminars are kept small (20 is the usual maximum). A key element of the program is the assigning of each scholar to a host officer whose interest most nearly matches that of the scholar. During the week the scholar views the host officer's work, discusses policy papers and contributes knowledge and ideas. Participating scholars receive a security clearance prior to the Seminar and are therefore able to read classified materials and discuss fully their host's work.

As part of the Seminar, workshops are scheduled "for scholars only" during which candid, unbiased observations are drawn together by participants for a paper that is usually presented to the host bureau's assistant secretary and/or country directors. In some cases the paper is forwarded to the Secretary of State.

In-depth sessions are arranged with the major organizational units of the Department, both geographic and functional. Similar sessions are also arranged with other government agencies involved in the foreign policy process.

Requests for application forms or for further information concerning the program should be addressed to: Scholar-Diplomat Seminars, National Capital Division, Office of Public Programs, Bureau of Public Affairs, Room 5831, Department of State, Washington, D.C. 20520, (202) 632-3340.

A tentative schedule for academic year 1978-79 will be available after May 1, 1979.

Institute in QUANTITATIVE Political Research

The Political Science Departments of American University, Georgetown University and George Washington University have formed the Washington Summer Institute in Quantitative Political Research. The courses for the Institute will be taught from Monday, June 11 to Saturday, July 14.

The Profession

The Institute offers introductory courses for both undergraduate and graduate credit in the practical application of statistical techniques to the study of politics in such areas as public policy evaluation, international and comparative politics and the study of public opinion.

The courses are taught by faculty members from the participating universities and practitioners in the Washington area and are held on the Georgetown campus. A weekly seminar session allows participants in the Institute to meet with people working in the field and discuss aspects of the practical problems and uses of quantitative approaches.

Each course is offered for three credits. The tuition is $345 per course.

The four courses to be taught are Introduction to Quantitative Political Analyses, Quantitative Analysis of Comparative and International Politics, Quantitative Analysis and Evaluation of Public Policy and Survey Research Techniques. For further information write to: The Washington Summer Institute in Quantitative Political Research, Department of Government, Georgetown University, Washington, D.C. 20057.

development; knowledge development includes the processes of creation, diffusion, and utilization. This international, interdisciplinary journal is committed to highlighting much-needed linkages between these processes.

Individuals from all disciplines are invited to submit papers reporting on research findings as well as successful and unsuccessful R&D management practices; "think pieces" are also to be encouraged. In addition, this journal will contain articles on methodological developments, discussions of the state-of-the-art, and commentaries on issues related to knowledge development. Special features will include abstracts of ongoing research in the United States and internationally, book reviews, and periodic "review essays."

Manuscripts should be submitted in triplicate to the editor, Robert F. Rich, KNOWLEDGE, Woodrow Wilson School, Princeton University, Princeton, New Jersey 08540. Persons interested in contributing features (abstracts of ongoing research, book reviews, review essays) should address their inquiries to the editor, who will forward it to the appropriate associate editor. Specimen copies, which will be available in August 1979 and subscription information may be obtained from the publisher, Sage Publications, 275 South Beverly Drive, Beverly Hills, California 90212.

KNOWLEDGE Journal

Knowledge: Creation, Diffusion and Utilization is the title of a new international quarterly journal which will be launched in September 1979 to provide a forum for researchers, policy-makers, R&D managers, and practitioners engaged in the process of knowledge

compiled by
Carl Beck, Eleanor D. Dym, J. Thomas McKechnie

published by the American Political Science Association

produced by the University Center for International Studies, University of Pittsburgh

The Political Science Thesaurus was created to provide a “terminology-regulating” device for a computer-based information storage and retrieval system being designed at the University Center for International Studies, University of Pittsburgh, in conjunction with the American Political Science Association. This information system is now in published form and known as United States Political Science Documents.

The Political Science Thesaurus comprises, in addition to a foreword and a preface, a Description and Use of the Thesaurus section, the Thesaurus of Terms, a Permuted Index, a Hierarchical Index, and three Appendices—Thesaurus Rules and Conventions, Sources of Terms Used in the Data Bank, and a list of Participants in the production and creation of the Thesaurus. The main body of the publication—the Thesaurus of Terms—consists of Part I: Political Science Terminology and Part II: Geographical/Political Areas.

The Political Science Thesaurus is available in both casebound and paperback editions of 470 pages. The paperback is $15.00 to individuals and $25.00 to institutions. Orders should be sent to the American Political Science Association, 1527 New Hampshire Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. Checks should be made payable to the American Political Science Association, and APSA members should deduct 20% from the total.
