

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	page ix
Abbreviations	xii
Introduction	I
1 From Plato to Dionysius of Halicarnassus ...	6
2 ... and from Lysias to Isocrates	10
3 Creating the Ancient Rhetorical Tradition	15
Part I Lysias, Isocrates and Plato: Ancient Rhetoric in Athens	17
1 Lysias in Athens	19
1.1 Lysias ...	22
1.2 ... and the Corpus Lysiicum	27
2 Reflections on Lysias and Lysianic Rhetoric in the Fourth Century BCE	32
2.1 Plato's Lysias	38
2.2 After Plato	55
3 Isocrates and His Work on Rhetoric and Philosophy	62
3.1 Challenging the Poetic Tradition	65
3.2 Isocrates on Prose	68
3.3 On What Is and What Is Not Philosophy	74
4 Isocrates on Socrates	92
5 Contemporary Reflections on Isocrates and His Role in Rhetoric and Philosophy	106
5.1 Alcidas	106
5.2 Plato's Isocrates	110
5.3 Isocrates and Aristotle	126

Contents

Part II Creating the Ancient Rhetorical Tradition: Dionysius of Halicarnassus in Rome	137
6 From Athens to Rome: Lysias, Isocrates and the Transmission of Greek Rhetoric and Philosophy	139
6.1 Post-Fourth-Century BCE and Hellenistic Receptions of Lysias and Isocrates	139
6.2 Ps. Demetrius on Lysias and Isocrates	150
6.3 The Reception of Lysias and Isocrates in Cicero and Philodemus	155
7 Dionysius of Halicarnassus on Lysias, Rhetoric and Style	176
7.1 Context and Contemporaries	176
7.2 Dionysius and Lysias	183
7.3 Dionysius and Lysias' Charm	196
7.4 Lysias – a Greek Writer for Rome	201
8 Isocrates and Philosophy in Dionysius of Halicarnassus' Rhetorical Writings	214
8.1 Dionysius' On Isocrates	215
8.2 Dionysius on True Rhetoric, True Philosophy and True Isocrates	228
Bibliography	245
Index	271