The Saint Paul & Pacific Railroad

An Empire in the Making, 1862–1879

Augustus J. Veenendaal, Jr.

“A fascinating history.”—H. Roger Grant

- Founded in 1862 to connect St. Paul and Minneapolis with outlying towns, this pioneering line in virgin territory played a vital role in the early economic development of Minnesota and the Northwest.

Dutch bankers, who would eventually become the second largest group of foreign investors in American railroads, provided capital for building the Saint Paul & Pacific. When railroad tycoon James J. Hill took over the railroad in 1879, it was absorbed into lines that eventually, as the Great Northern Railway, reached the Pacific Ocean. 178 pages 65 b/w illus. $49.95 cloth 8¾ × 10¾

The North Western

A History of the Chicago & North Western Railway System

H. Roger Grant

“A highly readable but serious history.”

—Chicago Tribune

303 pages 173 illus. $49.95 cloth 8¾ × 10¾

The Blues

A History of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield System

Robert Cunningham III and Robert M. Cunningham, Jr.

“Places the development of the Blues in a broad context of political and labor unrest and explains many of the troubling developments of recent years.”

—Journal of American History

- This first history of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield system investigates the development of America’s largest and oldest health care insurer. Reflecting broad economic, social, and political changes, The Blues traces health care coverage from its modest beginnings to the turbulent 1990s, offering timely insights into issues affecting health care, including HMOs and federal programs.

TECHNOLOGY AND CULTURE

The International Quarterly of the Society for the History of Technology

John M. Staudenmaier, S.J., Editor-in-Chief

With the support of the Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village and the University of Detroit Mercy.

TECHNOLOGY AND CULTURE is the foremost international vehicle for the scholarship of professional historians of technology—and for the historical writing of scholars and professionals in a variety of neighboring disciplines. Readers include engineers, anthropologists, sociologists, museum curators, archivists, and others. In addition to essays, each issue features extensive book reviews as well as reviews of important new museum exhibitions. Recent special issues have focused on biomedical technology, patents, and inventions; labor history and the history of technology; engineering in the twentieth century; and gender and technology.

Published in January, April, July, and October.

GUIDELINES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

GENERAL INFORMATION

Manuscripts are considered for publication on the understanding that they are not concurrently under consideration elsewhere and that the material—in substance as well as form—has not been previously published.

Three copies of the manuscript should be submitted.

Authors should identify themselves only on a separate title page that provides name, mailing address, and telephone number. Authors must also remember not to identify themselves in the body of the manuscript; specifically, references to their own work in the text should be in the third person, and citations should be written without possessive pronouns—not “See my”

Potential contributors should initially submit hard copy, not diskettes, but it will save considerable work for all parties in the event of acceptance if authors follow a few rules from the beginning:

- In general, use as few formatting commands as possible.
- Left justify text.
- Do not hyphenate words at the end of lines.
- ALL material—including extracted quotations and notes—must be double spaced.
- Notes should be numbered consecutively and citations should be placed as footnotes or endnotes formatted as indicated by The Chicago Manual of Style (1993).
- Each table and figure must be accompanied by a complete source.

Each article should be accompanied by an abstract of 75 to 100 words outlining the main point(s) of the paper and placing the article in context. Subheads should be used to divide the manuscript into three or four sections (or more, depending on length). We do not have an upper or lower page limit, but articles usually run between 25 and 50 typescript pages, including notes and other material.

We are always eager to publish illustrations, but authors should not include originals of illustrative materials at the time of submission; photocopies of such material may be included. Authors are responsible for obtaining all illustrative materials and permissions for reproduction, and for writing captions.

Authors of accepted manuscripts will receive two copies of the issue in which the article appears, and twenty-five offprints.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION

We use the 14th edition of The Chicago Manual of Style (1993) and spell and hyphenate words according to Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary.

The journal encourages authors to use gender-neutral prose in all cases where it is not anachronistic to do so; male nouns and pronouns should not be used to refer to people of both sexes. We use the day-month-year form for dates, as 11 Feb. 1998. Double quotation marks should be used for journal titles and direct quotation; single quotation marks are used for quoted material inside quotations.

SAMPLE CITATION FORMS

Book: Alfred D. Chandler, Jr., The Visible Hand: The Managerial Revolution in American Business (Cambridge, Mass., 1977), 321-22.

Journal: Charles Cheape, “Not Politicians but Sound Businessmen: Norton Company and the Third Reich,” Business History Review 62 (Autumn 1988): 444-66.

Note that we do not include the publisher in book citations. We do not use loc. cit., op. cit., or idem., but ibid. (not italicized) may be used.
