

CAMBRIDGE

Education and Social Change in Nineteenth Century Massachusetts

Carl F. Kaestle and Maris A. Vinovskis

"The authors grapple imaginatively with rural and urban education differences, the decisions to hire women as teachers, and the competition between employment options and continued schooling for older boys. Detailed case studies of a variety of Essex County communities provide convincing examples to augment the impressive search for significant state educational trends."—Joseph M. Cronin, Superintendent of Education, Illinois $22.50

State, Society, and University in Germany, 1700–1914

Charles E. McClelland

In this comprehensive history of the German university system in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, McClelland examines the evolution from their moribund state in 1700 to their rise to the pinnacle of world prestige and scientific leadership in 1914. $29.95

Sir John Seeley and the Uses of History

Deborah Wormell

Based on unpublished private papers, this book examines Seeley's contributions to adult education, the establishment of new universities and higher education for women, and his efforts in placing the teaching of history on a sound academic basis. $32.50

A Chance to Learn

A History of Race and Education in the United States

Meyer Weinberg

"His work is social/educational history of the first order—lucid, impeccable in its masterful use of sources, and superbly adequate to the task."—Intellect Hardcover $37.50 Paper $9.95

English Popular Education, 1780–1970

Second Edition

David Wardle

"The book begins with a study of the late eighteenth-century climate of opinion and the need for educational expansion; then it surveys the 'raw material' of education, the development of administration, curricula, and teaching methods, and the changing role and status of teachers. . . . Its value is enhanced by forthright stands on all recent educational issues."—The British Studies Monitor Hardcover $17.95 Paper $6.95

THE MODERN SCHOOL MOVEMENT

Anarchism and Education in the United States

PAUL AVRICH

Between 1910 and 1960 anarchists across the country established more than twenty schools where children might study in an atmosphere of freedom and self-reliance in contrast to the formality and discipline of the traditional classroom. In this comprehensive study of the Modern School movement, Paul Avrich narrates its history, analyzes its successes and failures, and assesses its place in American life. In doing so, he shows how the radical experimentation in art and communal living as well as in education during this period set the precedent for much of the artistic, social, and educational ferment of the 1960s and 1970s.

Announcing a new Pergamon journal

History of European Ideas

Editor: EZRA TALMOR, Haifa University, Israel

This multi-disciplinary journal is being established by a group of international scholars to study the history of the cultural exchange between European nations and the influence of this exchange on the formation of European ideas and the emergence of the idea of Europe.

It is planned that each issue will contain three to four main articles. There will be a section devoted to book reviews; another section for discussions, and space will be provided for announcing symposia, colloquia, conferences and congresses. Each issue will be 100–120 pages long.

Truly multi-disciplinary in scope, the journal will cover the following areas: European Studies, Philosophy, Literature, Politics, Economics, History of Religion, European History, Sociology, Linguistics, History of Science, Education, Military History and Law. Contributions will be welcomed from any country.

The first issue is scheduled for publication early in 1980. The theme of the first issue will be: THE RISE AND DEVELOPMENT OF THE IDEA OF EUROPE

Mind and Political Concepts

This book describes not only the nature of a political theory, but also its origins in the political practice of ancient Greece and in the tradition of philosophical debate. By stressing the creative dimension of the political thoughts of Plato, Hobbes and Rousseau the author attempts to re-establish the vital link between speculative thinking and human practice.
