COMPLETION OF SIR GUY LAKING'S GREAT WORK

EUROPEAN ARMOUR AND ARMS through Seven Centuries

By SIR GUY LAKING, Bt., C.B., F.S.A., late Keeper of the King's Armoury.

Vol. V just published, completing the work. Royal 4to. With over 1,800 Illustrations.
Price £15 15s. per set of 5 volumes.

'This splendid book is the epitome of a life's assiduous labour. . . . It is not merely a learned work, but also a fascinating one. . . . Sir Guy Laking has indeed covered his subject with exemplary thoroughness. It is a work which no serious student of medieval European history can afford to ignore, while to every one interested in armour the work will be indispensable.'—Connoisseur.

'The text is as informing and the illustrations are as carefully chosen and as delightful as ever. One could hardly have believed without turning the leaves of the book how wonderful a picture of the beauty, splendour, and interest of medieval life is brought back to us by a pictorial record of armour.'—Spectator.

'The work before us is at once the record of the life's study of one of the most notable among the students of arms and armour in Europe, and it is at the same time by far the most searching and complete exposition of the subject that has been or, indeed, is ever likely to be produced. . . . In the text we have the results of the long study and ripe experience of one who has omnivorously devoured all the literature that bears upon his work, and has had a practical acquaintance, such as is given to few, of all the notable armour in Europe. On the other hand, the illustrations, besides in their choice revealing the mind of the real student and investigator, give us, for the first time side by side, records which have either been hitherto unobtainable or else, if published, have been hidden in little known works of reference. . . . The whole production is to be highly commended.'—Country Life.

Motya: A Phoenician Colony in Sicily

By JOSEPH I. S. WHITAKER (of Malfitano, Palermo).

With numerous illustrations, maps, and plans. Demy 8vo. 30s. net.

Motya was one of the latest sites occupied by the Phoenician colonizers of Sicily; though its exact position was long a matter of doubt, it is now identified by all scholars and archaeologists with the small island of San Pantaleo at the N.W. extremity of Sicily. Recent excavation undertaken by its owner, Mr. Joseph I. S. Whitaker, has confirmed this conclusion, and this volume contains a detailed account of his discoveries, and of the many vestiges of the ancient and interesting race who played so large a part in the early civilization of Europe.

'A valuable contribution to Sicilian history and archaeology. . . . Mr. Whitaker presents his results in a scholarly and convenient form.'—Geographical Journal.
