Elemental Ideas

from Chicago

The Great Derangement

Climate Change and the Unthinkable
Amitav Ghosh

“The Great Derangement bristles with trenchant and dense ideas, expressed with exemplary lucidity and finesse. At a time when the idea of the engagé intellectual is not just unfashionable, but in full-blown retreat, here is a book that triumphantly announces its return.”—New Statesman
“Ghosh is one of the most important living writers writing in English.”
—Los Angeles Review of Books

CLOTH $22.00

Life Breaks In

A Mood Almanack

Mary Cappello

With a Portfolio by Rosamond Purcell

“Cappello’s compositions are at once sonic memoir, embodied criticism, and narrative cultural observation. . . . Her new book is rhapsodic, sensate, and intellectually captivating. . . . Reading Life Breaks In is, indeed, a kind of listening. It is time spent in a language-made listening room, a stroll into shifting human emotive time, a resounding of memory, imagination, story, and thought.”—Los Angeles Review of Books

CLOTH $29.00

Hidden Hitchcock

D. A. Miller

“Miller offers . . . a way to rethink the ways we watch and engage with all films, not just the Hitchcockian ones.”
—Popmatters

“The drama of Hidden Hitchcock is an amour fou between its subject and its author, the hypervigilant viewer whom Hitchcock baits with meaningless discrepancies and rankling imperfections.”—Cineaste

CLOTH $27.50

Camera Orientalis

Reflections on Photography of the Middle East

Ali Behdad

“Finding that the Middle East served as an important site for the development of photography, Behdad traces the unequal gazes through which photography enabled Orientalist ways of seeing. But, surprisingly and powerfully, Camera Orientalis goes on to show that photographic encounters yield multidirectional gazes and hybrid practices that borrow from and inspire one other, in sometimes troubling ways.”—Marianne Hirsch, author of The Generation of Postmemory

PAPER $30.00

That Self-Forgetful Perfectly Useless Concentration

Alan Shapiro

“Alan Shapiro’s essays are smart, funny, earnest, erudite, dexterous, and down to earth, they both teach and delight in connecting the highest arts of poetry to the basics of lived life.”—Michael Ryan, author of This Morning

PAPER $25.00

The Marvelous Clouds

Toward a Philosophy of Elemental Media

John Durham Peters

“The book is, on one level, an ambitious re-writing of concepts of media and culture. On another, it is a rich and entertaining compendium of arcana, covering everything from shipwrighting to planetary motion. Ultimately, it is nothing less than an attempt at a history of Being, from an unusually brisk, cheerful, and pragmatic Heideggerian.”—Los Angeles Review of Books
