

U.S. NEOCOLONIALISM IN AFRICA

by Stewart Smith

A scholarly study of the broad range of political and economic factors effecting U.S.-African relations in the 60's and 70's. The author, an American research fellow at the Soviet Institute of World Economy and International Relations, provides comprehensive data and analysis on U.S. corporate investments, trade and profits, and U.S. military assistance and ideological penetration in every region of the African continent.

THE RISE OF AFRIKANERDOM Power, Apartheid, and the Afrikaner Civil Religion T. Dunbar Moodie

The Afrikaner personality is often thought to be the key to understanding the intransigence with which Afrikaners have managed to weather world-wide criticism of apartheid. This book discusses from an historical and sociological perspective the growth of the unique Afrikaans-Calvinist spirit during the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. It focuses on the historical factors that welded the minority Afrikaners into a highly disciplined political force capable of gaining control of South Africa in 1948 and tenaciously holding control since then in the belief that their policy is morally estimable.

T. Dunbar Moodie teaches Sociology at the University of Natal, South Africa.

RACE & CLASS (Formerly RACE)

Quarterly Journal of the Institute of Race Relations

Race used to be an academic journal that abstracted and explained away the social reality of oppressed peoples, using the language, methodology and cultural bias of the oppressor.

Now, Race and Class is opening its pages to radical intellectuals, especially those from Third World countries, whose scholarship stems from, and is addressed to, the need to combat racism and imperialism, not least in their own disciplines.

Recent issues have included articles on: Imperialism and archaeology; Trade unions and immigrant workers in Western Germany; Revolution in the Gulf; Radicalism and change in the West Indies; Fascism in Britain; Demystification of Tibet; Analysis of classes in South Africa; Decolonisation in Vietnam.

Quarterly £5.50 or $15.00 a year      £1.50 or $4.00 single copies

THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES

The Journal offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa.

The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; upon the present, not on the more distant past. The best current work is sought from specialists in different academic disciplines, whose contributions can illuminate and cross-fertilise one another.

The Journal seeks to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. It is intended for both the political scientist and the practical politician, the administrator and the advocate, the economist and the educator, the banker and the businessman, the diplomat and the technocrat, the civil servant and the nationalist leader. All have something to contribute to these pages and, it is hoped, much to learn from them.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, whether imperialism, pan-Africanism, capitalism, socialism, or nationalism. Such concepts, however, have relevance to the modern African situation, and merit serious discussion, often from several different points of view, in order that controversial issues may be fairly examined.
