

About our contributors

Donald M. MacKinnon

was until his retirement the Norris-Hulse Professor of Divinity in the University of Cambridge.
10 Dunbar Street, Old Aberdeen AB2 1UR, Scotland

Gordon Graham

teaches in the Department of Moral Philosophy at the University of St Andrews.
The University, St Andrews KY16 9AL, Scotland

Colin Gunton

is Professor of Christian Doctrine in the University of London.
Department of Christian Doctrine and History, King's College London,
Strand, London WC2 2LS

Teresa McLean

writer and researcher; wrote for radio on the Four Last Things.
31 Newmarket Road, Cambridge CB5 8EG

The Editor thanks Fergus Kerr OP for suggesting the topic and Eamon Duffy for help in planning the issue. He thanks Andrew Lascaris OP, Nicholas Lash, Iain Mortimer OP, Robert Ombres OP and W.S.F. Pickering for ideas, information and criticism. Of the quotations in the Preface, he found the one from James I in Keith Thomas's Religion and the Decline of Magic (London 1971), the ones from Gladstone, J.R. Thrane and Mill in Geoffrey Rowell's Hell and the Victorians (Oxford 1974), and the one from Musil in D.J. Enright's anthology The Oxford Book of Death (1983).