Using Law, Policy, and Research to Improve the Public's Health: A National Conference Atlanta, Georgia September 13-15, 2010

This conference is sponsored by the American Society of Law, Medicine & Ethics, the Public Health Law Association, and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention with support from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

The goals of this conference are to (1) examine the role of law and policy in promoting, protecting, and improving global and domestic public health; and (2) help build effective partnerships to accomplish public health law and policy objectives.

In addition to plenary and training sessions, an array of concurrent sessions during the conference are designed to address the major themes in communicable and chronic disease prevention and control (including lessons learned from H1N1 influenza); global, national, tribal, state, and local health law and policy; research in public health law and policy, relationships among public and private partners, and critical, emerging issues.
