

versity, will give a special seminar on "NATO: New Concept in International Organization" at the January, 1953, session of the Salzburg Seminar in American Studies.

Joseph E. McLean, associate professor of politics at Princeton University, is handling the staff work for the Committee on Selection for the Rockefeller Public Service Award Program. Professor McLean has also been appointed a member of the New Jersey Law Enforcement Council by Governor Driscoll.

Norman D. Palmer, professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania, who is in India as a visiting Fulbright professor at the University of Delhi, addressed the Indian Council of World Affairs in New Delhi, August 22, 1952, on the subject: "United States Policy Toward China in the Postwar Period." Professor Palmer is assisting in the inauguration of a postgraduate program in political science at the University of Delhi, and is lecturing to the students who are enrolled in this program. He is also visiting other Indian universities for brief periods, for lectures and consultation.

John E. Stoner, associate professor of government at Indiana University, is engaged in a comparative study of highway administration, and during the summer conducted a pilot study of the highway administration in three adjoining counties in Indiana, Ohio, and Michigan. The project is sponsored by the Graduate School of Indiana University, The Joint Highway Research Project at Purdue University, and The Highway Research Board of the National Research Council.

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

Spencer D. Albright, of the University of Richmond, was a visiting professor of political science at Emory University during the 1952 summer session.

Andrew Anderson has left the University of Connecticut to engage in the private practice of law.

Vernon Aspaturian has been named assistant professor of political science at The Pennsylvania State College and will teach courses in international organization and international law. He received his doctorate at the University of California (Los Angeles) in 1951, and, until his appointment to the faculty at Penn State, served in the Psychological Warfare Section of the Far East Command stationed in Tokyo.

Robert S. Avery has been advanced to a full professorship at the University of Tennessee and has been granted a leave of absence to serve in the Point Four Program in Panama.

Theodore Stevenson Baer has been appointed instructor in the department of government at Harvard University.

Charles P. Beall of Indiana University has been appointed to an assistant professorship at the University of Wyoming.

Curt F. Beck is on leave of absence from the University of Connecticut to serve as an intelligence research analyst in the Division of Research for USSR and Eastern Europe, Department of State.

George Belknap, formerly with the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, has been appointed assistant professor of political science and associate director of the Governmental Research Bureau at Michigan State College.

Marver H. Bernstein, assistant professor of politics at Princeton University, is on leave of absence during the 1952-53 academic year. Professor Bernstein plans to be abroad from January until August, 1953.

Donald G. Bishop has been promoted to professor of political science in the Maxwell Graduate School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University. He is also serving as chairman of the Board of Russian Studies during the current academic year.

Frederick F. Blachly, who recently completed an assignment as a research director for the Committee for Study and Recommendation of Reorganization of the Executive Branch, State of New Mexico, is teaching at the University of Redlands during the current academic year.

George Blair has been designated acting associate director of the Bureau of Public Administration at the University of Tennessee.

William T. Bluhm has accepted an appointment to the faculty of the department of government at the University of Rochester for the 1952-53 academic year.

Ralph J. D. Braibanti, of Kenyon College, has returned to his teaching duties after spending the summer as political adviser to the Civil Administrator of the Ryukyu Islands. While in the Far East, he spent some time in Japan surveying political conditions. Next year Professor Braibanti will start a two-year study of Japanese bureaucracy under the auspices of a fellowship awarded by the Ford Foundation Board on Overseas Training and Research.

Edward H. Buehrig, associate professor of political science at Indiana University, has been granted an extension of leave until the second semester of 1952-53 to serve as a member of the research staff of the Brookings Institution.

Edgar B. Cale has resumed his duties as associate professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania after having served for one year as assistant director of the Albert M. Greenfield Center for Human Relations.

Alan Keith Campbell has been appointed instructor in the department of government at Harvard University.

William N. Cassella, Jr., has been promoted to an assistant professorship in political science at the University of Missouri.

Mary M. Clarke, formerly of Fordham University and The Johns Hopkins University, has been reappointed as lecturer in political science at Bryn Mawr College for the 1952-53 academic year.

Kenneth C. Cole, who was acting chairman of the department of political science at the University of Washington during the past year, has been made permanent chairman of the department, effective September 15.

Robert M. Darrow has been appointed instructor of politics at Princeton University.

Emmett Davidson has been promoted to an associate professorship in political science at the University of Minnesota, Duluth Branch.

William E. Diez, associate professor of government at the University of Rochester, is on sabbatical leave in Uganda for the purpose of studying the political institutions and processes of the Kingdom of Buganda.

Edward F. Dow, professor and head of the department of history and government at the University of Maine, has been granted a leave of absence during the fall semester of 1952-53 in order to serve as executive secretary of the Committee of Citizens to Study the Government of Maine. Professor Dow is also serving as technical assistant to the Legislative Research Committee, which is making a study of county government in Maine.

Aurie N. Dunlap is serving as acting head of the department of international relations at Lehigh University during the absence of Professor Leon Godshall.

Samuel J. Eldersveld has been advanced to an associate professorship at the University of Michigan.

Eugene Elkins, formerly employed by the Office of Price Stabilization in Washington, D. C., has accepted an appointment as research assistant in the Bureau for Government Research at West Virginia University.

Ernest A. Engelbert, on leave from the University of California (Los Angeles), has joined the staff of the Ford Foundation as a resources analysis consultant for the fall semester, 1952.

Julian Fahy of Alexandria, Virginia, is serving on the staff of the President's Commission on Immigration and Naturalization.

G. Lowell Field, formerly of Wayne University, has been appointed professor and head of the department of government and international relations at the University of Connecticut.

Guy Fox resumed his duties as associate professor of political science at Michigan State College in September after spending one year on Okinawa assisting in the establishment of the University of Ryukyus.

Edgar S. Furniss, Jr., on leave from Princeton University, is spending the 1952-53 academic year in France.

W. Leon Godshall, head of the department of international relations at Lehigh University, has been appointed to the U. S. Foreign Service as executive officer of the Fulbright program in Tokyo.

Milton Greenberg has been appointed instructor in political science at the University of Tennessee and research associate in the Bureau of Public Administration.

Lee S. Greene has resumed his duties as professor and head of the department of political science at the University of Tennessee and director of the Bureau of Public Administration after a two-year leave of absence.

Morris A. Greene, regional administrative officer, North American Regional Office, United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, has accepted a lectureship in the department of political science and public administration at The American University.

Farid Hanania, professor of law and chairman of the department of political science and law at the American University of Beirut, Lebanon, is serving as a visiting professor during 1952-53 in the Woodrow Wilson School of Foreign Affairs at the University of Virginia.

John H. Herz, formerly professor of international relations at Howard University, has been appointed associate professor of government at the City College of New York. During the summer, Professor Herz taught at Columbia University.

John P. Horlacher is teaching part time at the University of Pennsylvania, in addition to serving as director of the Regional Wage Stabilization Board in Philadelphia.

Clyde E. Jacobs, who recently completed his graduate work at the University of Michigan, has accepted an appointment as instructor of political science at the University of California (Davis Campus).

Walter O. Jacobson, chief of the Training and Development Division, Office of Civilian Personnel, Office of the Secretary of the Army, has been appointed lecturer in political science and public administration at The American University.

Ralph T. Jans, recently of Berea College, has been appointed instructor in government and politics at the University of Maryland in the European program.

Scott D. Johnston has been designated director of the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation program at Hamline University with the rank of associate professor.

Otto Kirchheimer, chief of the Central European Branch, Division of Research for Western Europe, U. S. Department of State, has been appointed lecturer in the department of political science and public administration at The American University.

Norman Kogan has been promoted to an assistant professorship in political science at the University of Connecticut.

Fred Kort has been transferred from the Hartford branch of the University of Connecticut to the main campus at Storrs.

Edward G. Lewis is on leave from the University of Illinois for the academic year 1952-53 to lecture at the University of Grenoble and to do research on the French legislative process, on a Fulbright grant.

Ernest M. Linton has been promoted to the rank of professor at Indiana University.

Benjamin E. Lippincott, of the University of Minnesota, has been appointed visiting professor of political theory at Stanford University for the winter and spring quarters of 1952-53.

Theodore V. Liss, of the University of Michigan, has accepted a one-year teaching appointment at West Virginia University.

W. Richard Lomax resigned his position in the department of government at Indiana University to become deputy director of personnel in the Federal Housing Administration.

Daniel S. McHargue has been promoted to an assistant professorship in political science at the University of Michigan.

Edwin B. McPheron has been advanced to an associate professorship at Indiana University.

Robert Humphrey Marden has been appointed instructor in the department of government at Harvard University.

David Mars, formerly associated with Rutgers University, has been appointed instructor in the department of government and international relations at the University of Connecticut.

Henry L. Mason has joined the staff of the department of political science at Tulane University as an assistant professor. Last year he was an assistant professor of government at Louisiana State University.

Wallace Mendelson has been promoted to the rank of professor of political science at the University of Tennessee.

Lester Milbrath has been appointed research associate in the Bureau of Public Administration at the University of Tennessee.

James W. Miller, on leave of absence from Michigan State College, is spending the current year as associate director of the Citizenship Clearing House, New York University.

Malcolm Moos has been promoted to a full professorship in political science at The Johns Hopkins University.

Robert L. Morlan has been advanced to an associate professorship at the University of Redlands.

Martin W. Moser has been appointed assistant professor of government and politics at the University of Maryland in the European program.

Clark F. Norton has been advanced to a full professorship in the department of political science at DePauw University.

Miriam E. Oatman, who recently completed an assignment as a research director for the Committee for Study and Recommendation of Reorganization of the Executive Branch, State of Mexico, is teaching at the University of Redlands during the current academic year.

C. Bickford O'Brien has been named acting chairman of the department of history and political science at the University of California (Davis Campus).

Gene D. Overstreet, of the Russian Institute, Columbia University, has been appointed instructor in political science at Michigan State College.

Guy Jean Pauker has been appointed to an instructorship in the department of government at Harvard University.

George A. Peek, Jr., has been advanced to an assistant professorship at the University of Michigan.

Lester H. Phillips, professor of government and director of the division of social science at the University of Redlands, is serving as visiting professor at Florida State University during 1952-53.

Palmer C. Pilcher has been appointed to the faculty of the department of political science and public administration of The American University as assistant professor.

Elmer Plischke returned in July from Europe where he served as special historian in the Office of the United States High Commissioner for Germany. During the two years of his service abroad, Dr. Plischke prepared five monographs which were published by the Historical Division. Since his return, he served for two months as a consultant in the U. S. Department of State. Upon resuming his duties at the University of Maryland, Dr. Plischke was promoted to a full professorship.

Felix Rackow, who taught last year at Lawrence College, has been appointed instructor in political science at Brown University.

Joseph M. Ray has been granted a two-year leave of absence by the University of Maryland to serve as assistant chief, Information and Education Branch, Headquarters U. S. Air Force.

Martin R. Ream has been appointed instructor in political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

John S. Reshetar, of Princeton University, spent the summer at the Russian Research Center at Harvard University engaged in analysis of materials for the Harvard Project on the Soviet Social System.

Marian E. Ridgeway has joined the staff at Southern Illinois University as assistant professor of political science.

Clayton L. Ringgenberg, formerly research assistant with the Rhode Island Public Expenditures Council, has been appointed assistant professor and research specialist in the Institute of Public Affairs, State University of Iowa.

Dorothy Roberts was recently transferred from the Hartford branch of the University of Connecticut to the main campus at Storrs.

Nicholas de Rochefort has been appointed lecturer in the department of political science and public administration at The American University.

Dankwart A. Rustow has been appointed assistant professor of politics at Princeton University.

John W. Schwada has been advanced to an assistant professorship in political science at the University of Missouri.

Harry H. Shapiro has been appointed assistant director of the Albert M. Greenfield Center for Human Relations and lecturer in political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

Walter R. Sharp, of Yale University, spent July and August, 1952, in Southeast Asia as special consultant for the Public Administration Service of Chicago, assisting the Mutual Security Agency in the development of its technical assistance program in public administration for Cambodia, Laos, and Vietnam.

William Siffin, formerly a member of the staffs of the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Kentucky Legislative Research Commission, has accepted appointment as assistant professor and director of the Institute of Training for the Public Service at Indiana University.

Hans Speier, chief of the Social Science Division, The Rand Corporation, is serving as professorial lecturer in political science at The American University.

Murray S. Stedman, Jr., has been advanced to the rank of associate professor at Swarthmore College.

T. Noel Stern has been promoted to the rank of associate professor in the department of government at Boston University.

Ward Stewart has been appointed assistant commissioner for program development and coordination in the U. S. Office of Education. Dr. Stewart comes to the Office of Education from the Economic Stabilization Agency where he served on the staff of the administrator. He recently returned from South America where he served for six months as deputy chief of the Public Administration Mission to Colombia in Bogota.

Edwin J. Stillings, who has completed his graduate work at the University of Chicago, has been appointed instructor in government and politics at the University of Maryland.

Dorothee Strauss has resigned from the Bureau of Public Administration, University of Tennessee, to continue graduate work at the University of Michigan.

Robert Strausz-Hupé has been appointed professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

Earl Strong, director of executive development programs, U. S. Civil Service Commission, has been appointed professorial lecturer in public administration at The American University.

Albert L. Sturm is on leave of absence from West Virginia University this year and is serving as visiting professor of political science at the University of Michigan and visiting research associate in the Institute of Public Administration.

Joseph Sutton, formerly of the University of Michigan and recently returned from Japan where he made a special study of Japanese political behavior, has accepted a position as instructor in the department of political science at Western Reserve University.

Eugene D. Thoenen, of West Virginia University, has accepted an appointment as assistant professor of international relations at Lehigh University.

Henry A. Turner, assistant professor of political science at the University of California, Santa Barbara College, has been awarded a fellowship by the Ford Foundation to spend the 1952-53 academic year in Washington, D. C. studying the functioning of political and administrative institutions in the national capital.

John E. Turner has been promoted to an assistant professorship in political science at the University of Minnesota.

James Dyke Van Putten has accepted a position as acting chairman of the department of political science and history at Hope College for the 1952-53 academic year. During the past summer, he was a visiting professor at the State University Teachers College, New Paltz, New York.

Gerhard von Glahn, head of the department of political science at the University of Minnesota, Duluth Branch, has been advanced to a full professorship.

Henry Wells has returned to his post as assistant professor of political science at Yale University, following a year's service as a visiting professor and research associate in the School of Public Administration at the University of Puerto Rico. Professor Wells was a member of the research group that assisted the Puerto Rican Constituent Assembly in drafting a constitution for the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Lloyd M. Wells has been appointed instructor of politics at Princeton University.

Norman Wengert has resigned his position as assistant professor of government in the City College of New York and is now chairman of the department of social science at North Dakota Agricultural College. During the past year he was on leave from the City College while serving with the Program Staff, Office of the Secretary, United States Department of the Interior.

Robert R. Wilson has returned to his position as professor of political science at Duke University after a year spent in Turkey as a Fulbright professor at the University of Istanbul.

Roland A. Young has been advanced to a full professorship at Northwestern University.

William H. Young has been named chairman of the department of political science at the University of Wisconsin.

R. R. Zimmerman has been promoted to the rank of professorial lecturer in the part-time faculty of the department of political science and public administration of The American University.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

Suggestions Requested by Nominating Committee

The Nominating Committee of the American Political Science Association for 1953 is as follows:

JOSEPH P. HARRIS, Chairman, University of California (Berkeley)

HUGH L. ELSBREE, Library of Congress

GEORGE A. GRAHAM, Princeton University

CHARLES B. HAGAN, University of Illinois

CHARLES B. ROBSON, University of North Carolina

E. S. WENGERT, University of Oregon

The officers to be elected at the next meeting of the Association include a President-Elect, three Vice-Presidents, and eight members of the Council. Members of the Association are invited to send in suggestions of persons to be considered for nomination to the Chairman of the Nominating Committee. All suggestions should be received by February 1, 1953.

Information Needed for the New Directory

The editor of the next edition of the Directory reports that there are still 2,000 members who have not submitted biographical data. Naturally he is anxious to include in the Directory as many biographies of the members as possible. Hence it is urged that those members who have not yet submitted biographical data do so as early as possible. In the event that there is doubt on the member's part as to whether he has submitted the data, an inquiry to Dr. George P. Bush, 1785 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington 6, D. C., will receive a prompt reply, either to the effect that the data is on hand or in the form of another copy of the questionnaire.