Law and War in the Virtual Era

Jack M. Beard

409

Unmanned aerial vehicles and other remotely controlled or “virtual” military technologies are refashioning the conduct of military operations, the functioning of military institutions, and even the objectives of war itself. Virtual technologies are unexpectedly and ironically giving unprecedented traction, transparency, and relevance to venerable jus in bello principles protecting civilians from the effects of hostilities, and are forcing states to confront revitalized and new duties to avoid causing harm to civilian populations.

The Pillar of Glass: Human Rights in the Development Operations of the United Nations

Mac Darrow and Louise Arbour

446

Although human rights are among the defining purposes of the United Nations and apply to all its staff, recent intergovernmental debates on UN development operations have downplayed human rights, generating both confusion over the actual related duties of UN workers and political controversy. This response analyzes the roles and responsibilities of UN development workers under international human rights law, taking into account the overarching political context as well as the practical realities on the ground.

PROGRAM OF WORK

In addition to publishing the American Journal of International Law, the ASIL offers a variety of information resources and participation opportunities for members as well as nonmembers. These programs, best viewed at www.asil.org, include: publications such as International Legal Materials and Studies in Transnational Legal Policy; electronic bulletins such as ASIL Insights, International Law In Brief, and IL.post; events such as the Annual Meeting and other gatherings in Washington, D.C. and around the world; outreach programs for the judicial sector, the media, and other audiences; an array of resources on the ASIL web site, such as the Electronic Information System for International Law (EISIL) and the Guide to Electronic Resources for International Law (ERG); and opportunities to be part of an active network bridging expert and nonexpert communities associated with the development of international law.

PHILANTHROPY AND THE SOCIETY

The ASIL accomplishes much of its work through charitable support. The Society is grateful to its many members who contribute to the annual fund and the endowment, the foundations whose grants fund special programs, and the law firms, publishers, universities, and others that sponsor ASIL activity. The Society is particularly honored to receive contributions through the Patrons program and to be included in our members' estate plans through the ASIL Heritage Circle. We recognize these contributors below.

PATRONS

Patrons of the Society contribute $10,000 or more to the ASIL Endowment for International Law. Patrons may also be recognized posthumously upon such a donation being made in their name.
