

The Foreign Policy System of Israel

Setting, Images, Process

MICHAEL BRECHER

Professor Brecher's inquiry illuminates Israel's behaviour in a setting of intensive hostility. The book is a major contribution to our understanding of Israel's political structure, and the programmes and pressures of interest groups and competing élites within her society. Endpaper maps £7

The Conventions of Crisis

A Study in Diplomatic Management

C. BELL

The author examines the differences between the crisis histories of the inter-war and post-war periods, outlines the moral and political dilemmas of the crisis management process, and offers definitions and criteria for the further investigation of crisis as a regular phenomenon in international politics. £1 Oxford Paperbacks Royal Institute of International Affairs

Britain and West Germany

Changing Societies and the Future of Foreign Policy

Edited by KARL KAISER and ROGER MORGAN

Domestically, Britain and West Germany are undergoing important changes; and they conduct their external relations in a world dominated by the two superpowers. The essays in this book explore these factors and their implications for the foreign policies of the two countries and their relations with each other. £4 Royal Institute of International Affairs

Germany's Ostpolitik

Relations between the Federal Republic and the Warsaw Pact Countries

LAWRENCE L. WHETTEN

Dr Whetten analyses the issues at stake in Chancellor Brandt's new 'eastern policy', and shows how the future development of the Federal Republic's relations with her eastern neighbours depends on, and in turn affects, the prospects for a broader East-West détente, as well as the settlement of particular issues—such as the Berlin problem—still in dispute.

The British Ombudsman

FRANK STACEY

This is a study of the campaign for an Ombudsman in Britain, of the drafting and passage of the Parliamentary Commissioner Act 1967, and of the first four years of its operation. It is based both on documentary materials and on interviews with many of those concerned, including Sir Edmond Compton. £4

The Skill Factor in Politics

Repealing the Mental Commitment Laws
in California

Eugene Bardach

This is a study of political skill. It examines the tactics used by a political entrepreneur to win approval for policy change in a legislative or bureaucratic setting by coping with four basic problems: mobilizing allies with effective and appropriate political resources; gaining endorsements, or neutrality, from enough interests to win over the authorities; stalling, inhibiting, or neutralizing opponents; and timing actions appropriately in an evolving context of risk, uncertainty, and opportunity. 300 pages £4.75

The Congress Party in Rajasthan

Political Integration and
Institution-Building in an Indian State

Richard Sisson

In his consideration of an important facet of modernization,—party building in a society undergoing social, economic, and political transformation—Mr Sisson focuses on the institutionalization of the Congress Party in Rajasthan. He analyzes three interrelated aspects of this process: the social and political antecedents governing the emergence of the Congress after independence; the structure and process of organizational adaptability; and the process of conflict management and organizational integration. Not only is his enquiry the first thorough analysis of politics in a former princely state of India, but his findings are central also to the development of comparative research beyond the Indian situation.

The West German Legislative Process

A Case Study of Two Transportation Bills

Gerard Braunthal

Focusing on two highly-contested bills—the Transportation Finance Act of 1955 and its companion Highway Relief Act—this book offers a detailed description and assessment of the West German legislative process. In tracing these bills from their inception to their ultimate fate, the author illuminates the interplay and power relationships of political institutions, political parties, interest groups, elites, and the public.

The University and Military Research

Moral Politics at M.I.T.

Dorothy Nelkin

The events leading up to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's decision to divest the controversial Instrumentation Laboratory are vividly set forth in this engrossing case study. The decision, announced on May 20, 1970, followed a year of efforts to cope with dissent focused on the issue of weapons-related research on campus. Several key issues are illuminated: the problems of defining appropriate research and public service policy in universities; the social responsibility of scientists and engineers; and the complicated relationship between government sponsorship and university research.

EUROPEAN CONSORTIUM FOR POLITICAL RESEARCH

FIFTH
ESSEX SUMMER SCHOOL
IN SOCIAL SCIENCE
DATA ANALYSIS

5 JULY to 16 AUGUST 1972

The European Consortium for Political Research will be sponsoring the Fifth School, to be held at Essex from 5th July to 16th August. The main subjects to be covered will be selected from a range including :

REGRESSION AND VARIANCE DECOMPOSITION

SCALING AND FACTOR ANALYSIS

CAUSAL MODELLING

TIME SERIES ANALYSIS

MATRIX ALGEBRA AND CALCULUS

MATHEMATICAL MODELS

COMPUTER BASED SIMULATION

Instruction will emphasise particularly the application of these techniques to data collections held by the School. Full supporting computer facilities will be available. This year, for the first time, there will be a concurrent summer school in quantitative methods for historians. There will be ample opportunities for mixing between the two schools, and for exchanges of ideas and criticisms. Financial support may be available to participants from their own Institutions or National Research Councils ; failing such support, the Consortium may offer aid to suitable applicants. The organizers particularly wish to attract graduate students, research assistants and junior staff. Interested persons should write to :

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. All contributions should be sent to: The Editor, British Journal of Political Science, University of Essex, Colchester, Essex.

2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 12,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible.

3. Notes are welcome and every effort will be made to publish them quickly. A note should contain a body of original information, a new method for doing something or a new idea (speculation, argument, proof, etc.) presented in a brief and unadorned form without any inessential commentary. Only exceptionally will notes over two thousand words in length be accepted.

4. It is hoped to carry in each issue, where possible, an article of some 10,000 words reviewing the state of some area of the discipline. Review articles submitted without prior consultation will be considered, but in their own interest contributors would be well advised not to prepare a review article specially for the journal without first discussing the subject with the editor.

5. Letters, criticisms of articles, and similar contributions will be considered for early publication, especially if they are brief—say under 1,000 words.

6. Authors of articles and review articles receive twenty-five free offprints. Additional copies may be bought if ordered at proof stage.

7. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere. In the interests of authors, copyright is normally assigned to the Cambridge University Press.

8. Contributions intended for publication should, if possible, be submitted IN DUPLICATE. They must be typed and reproduced in any clearly legible form. The preferred size of paper is A4 (8½ × 11½ in) but quarto (8 × 10 in) or the US standard size (8½ × 11 in) will also be accepted.

9. The entire material, including quotations, footnotes, appendices, etc., should be double spaced with left-hand margins of at least 1½ in. The preferred treatment of footnotes is that they should be numbered consecutively in the text and typed all together at the end, beginning on a fresh page, but manuscripts employing other methods of arranging footnotes will not be rejected simply on those grounds.

10. References to books and articles should include the following details: in the case of books, the full title, place of publication, publisher and date; in the case of articles, the author and title, full name of the journal, volume, year and page reference (first and last page). Good articles which contain this bibliographical information will be accepted, even if they do not follow the journal's own arrangement of the information.

11. Anyone who is contemplating writing an article (etc.) for submission to the journal is urged to follow the style sheet issued by the journal, which covers a number of detailed points of spelling, punctuation, etc. Copies can be obtained by writing to the editor; in addition members of the board and the consultative committee can supply their colleagues with copies.

12. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the editor, by airmail where appropriate, within ten days of receiving them. The master proof will always be sent direct to the editor by the printer; contributors will receive duplicates.
