STRATEGIC SURVEY 1970

Each Spring, the ISS publishes its review of the previous calendar year. Like its predecessors, Strategic Survey 1970 gives a succinct but authoritative account of the most important events and trends affecting security in every area of the world. By combining factual narrative with analysis and by setting military events into their political and economic context, it provides an indispensable complement to the Institute's other annual publication, The Military Balance.

As always, Strategic Survey 1970 includes chronologies for each region, as well as maps and statistical tables. Above all, it contains separate, short studies of more than twenty international security issues which demanded attention during the year. Among the subjects thus covered are:

The Relationship of the Super-Powers
Strategic Weapons
China
Japanese Defence Policy
The Indo-China War

Arabs and Israelis
The Soviet Military Presence in the UAR
Civil Wars in Africa
Colonial Conflict in Africa
Economic Policies and Security

Aerial Piracy

STRATEGIC SURVEY 1970 is available from the ISS now.
