Family Violence

Volume 11 of the Crime and Justice series

Volume editors: Lloyd Ohlin and Michael Tonry

Series editors: Michael Tonry and Norval Morris

Increasingly drawing the attention of legislators, sociologists, criminologists, policymakers, and the public at large, family violence is a far-ranging problem that was once tolerated in relative silence. In this climate of increased awareness, just how much do we really know about the actual causes and effective control of violence within families?

Family Violence presents a review of current research on the legal, social, and criminological issues surrounding family violence. Providing a comprehensive approach to all areas of family violence (including domestic assault and homicide, marital rape, child abuse, and reprisal), this collection of commissioned essays includes

Family Violence as Crime

Lloyd Ohlin and Michael Tonry

Criminal Approaches to Family Violence, 1640 to 1890

Elizabeth Pleck

The Explanation of Family Violence: The Role of Biological, Behavioral, and Cultural Selection

Robert L. Burgess and Patricia Draper

Family Violence Research Methodology and Design

The Journal of Law & Economics

Sharpening your understanding of the relations between law, economics, and political science

Ronald Coase
Paul Joskow
Theodore Keeler
Benjamin Klein
Frank Mathewson
Peter Pashigian
Sam Peltzman
George Stigler
Kip Viscusi

The Journal of Law & Economics focuses on the influence of regulation and legal institutions on the operation of economic systems. Although topically varied, articles are most often concerned with the behavior of markets and the impact of governmental institutions on markets. As such, the Journal provides a basis for an informed discussion of public policy. For more than thirty years, scholars in law, economics, business, and political science have relied on JLE for rigorous research results in a wealth of related areas. Over the years, the Journal has presented the work of distinguished scholars such as those listed at left.
